Moore's only regret in Ford murder try: she missed

LONG BEACH (AP) — Sara Jane Moore, who tried to assassinate President Ford in 1975 and now faces a life in prison, says she has only one regret: she missed.

The comments from the 46-year-old Miss Moore were published in a copyrighted story by Mary Neiswender in Sunday editions of the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram.

After a year of refusing interviews with what she calls "the straight press," Miss Moore granted an interview to Miss Neiswender last Thursday in the medium-security Terminal Island Prison where she is currently serving a life sentence.

"Strictly in terms of a political assassination," Miss Moore said, "he (Ford) was a good target. The buildup to kill him didn't happen in two days.

She said that in planning to kill Ford, "There had been a lot of obstacles — beginning with Lynette Fromme's waving her gun which tightened security, but that day everything fell into place."

She said she was up at 5:30 a.m., fought with her 9-year-old son, Eric, then nervously drove him to school. "I was not the calmest person in the world. I don't see how I drove him to school without killing both of us. I was one bundle of nerves...one falling-apart female."

That day she telephoned the man she called her "gun man." She arranged to buy a .38-caliber revolver because the day before the FBI had confiscated from her a .44-caliber weapon and 100 rounds of ammunition she planned to use.

"I had a time problem, though. I had to change into what I call my assassination uniform — actually it was my suburban matron attire. Then I had to get 35 miles out in the country (to pick up the gun) and 35 miles back." She loaded the gun on the way back, while she drove.

Miss Moore said she parked in an underground garage, "and I waited." She chatted with a number of others who knew her. "All this time I had my hand in my purse, on the loaded gun." The gun was a shiny nickel-plated revolver, which she wrapped in a kerchief "so the light would not glint off it when it came out.

"I don't remember the point at which I pulled the hammer back and cocked the gun, but I remember thinking, 'My god, I'm going to do it.'"

Although the actual firing of the gun took only a few seconds, she said she remembers it in slow motion.

"My instant reaction was that the gun hadn't gone off — but I knew it had. Yet in my mind was the thought that it couldn't have gone off because he was still standing there. I was expecting the man's head to explode."

She blamed missing Ford on the fact she was using an unfamiliar weapon.

Oliver Sipple, an ex-Marine and Vietnam veteran, was credited by Secret Service agents with deflecting the shot by knocking Mrs. Moore's arm downward, causing the bullet to hit the pavement.

Ford later sent Sipple a personal letter thanking him for his action.

Still rosy-cheeked but now reconciled to a life in prison, Miss Moore recalled her life as an FBI informant in 1974. By the time of the assassination attempt she had long since decided she hated the presidency. And her actions that afternoon in San Francisco were not specifically directed against Ford, she said, but against the office.

"...And what good would it have done to kill Nixon? He was doing more than anyone else to raise the consciousness of the American people as to the kinds of shenanigans in which our government was involved."

Cease-fire order given

6 leaders meet, hope to end Lebanon war

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fighting between Syrian troops and Palestinian guerrillas stopped abruptly Saturday as Yasir Arafat, Syrian President Hafez Assad and other key leaders gathered in Saudi Arabia for what could be crucial talks on the war in Lebanon.

The Saudi Arabian foreign minister, Prince Saud, announced in Riyadh that the Syrian president on Friday had ordered his forces to cease hostilities, the Cairo-based Middle East News Agency reported.

Saud said the cease-fire order "makes us more hopeful that the six-nation summit is the beginning of the turning point in Lebanon so desired in the Arab and Islamic worlds," the agency said.

Saud also said Assad issued the order "in response to the urging of His Majesty King Khaled," according to the report.

Fighting continued, however, between right-wing Christian and leftist Moslem forces in Beirut Saturday.

The Saudi king was sponsoring the six-party conference, aimed at producing a peaceful solution to the 18-month-old civil war between the Lebanese Christians and an alliance of Palestinians and Lebanese leftists. The conflict has deeply divided the Arab world, especially since the Syrians intervened in June on the side of the Christians.

Arriving in Riyadh were Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization; Assad; Egyptian President Anwar Sadat; Lebanese President Elias Sarkis, and the emir of Kuwait, Sheik Sabah al-Salem al-Sabah, the official Saudi news agency reported.

Canal treaty talks reopen this week

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Panama government reopens negotiations with the United States on a new canal treaty this week in an apparent effort to divert attention from economic problems of the regime of Gen. Omar Torrijos.

Torrijos, who promised soon after gaining power in a military coup eight years ago that Panama would win control of the canal zone, needs a popularity booster. He appears to count on progress in the negotiations, which began 2½ years ago, to ease some of the recent discontent over inflation and low wages.

The student disturbances began shortly after the government increased the price of rice from 20 to 23 cents a pound and milk from 35 to 37 cents a quart. Sugar increased from 15 to 20 cents a pound last summer.

Shortly after the student disturbances, Panama insisted that the United States reopen the canal treaty negotiations. The two countries had earlier agreed to postpone them when they became an issue in the U.S. presidential campaign.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker was expected in Panama on Tuesday to resume the talks.

Panama was part of Colombia until 1903 when it broke away in a revolt encouraged by the United States. Just days later Panama signed a treaty with the United States conceding use and virtually sovereign control of the Panama Canal Zone to the United States forever.

Simon cites business gains; he opposes creating new jobs

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The economy is in the midst of a healthy and balanced expansion but the decline in unemployment is "far slower that we are willing to tolerate," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Saturday.

Although unemployment remains disappointingly high, Simon said, the government must "resist the temptation" to stimulate the economy to create more jobs because it would also bring on a new round of crippling inflation.

Simon also said he doesn't believe oil-producing nations will increase oil prices next year, even though many members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) have said they will push for such an increase.

"I don't expect an oil price increase," Simon told reporters after an address to a closed-door meeting of the Business Council.

The council is an organization of the nation's top corporate executives which serves as an unofficial channel between government and big business.

Simon, except for the unemployment rate, indicated he is not concerned by the recent statistics showing that the economy is slowing down from its gains earlier this year.

He said the economy has grown at a faster rate than the Ford administration predicted in January and said inflation and unemployment are also ahead of the January target. However, the gains have not been equal to the administration's revised economic forecast at mid-year.

The unemployment rate currently is at 7.8 per cent, and Simon said it certainly will be within the administration's January forecast for a 7.7 per cent jobless level by the end of the year. But the administration said in July it thought unemployment would fall below 7 per cent.

In an interview with Associated Press Radio, released Saturday, Simon said the economy is on the road to a lasting recovery and "massive spending programs" to increase employment would only make things worse in the long run.

Also in the interview, Simon said legislation aimed at ending the Arab economic boycott of Israel could jeopardize U.S. peace efforts in the Middle East.

"I think it's a very big issue, the antiboycott legislation," he said. "I think it's clearly counterproductive to our efforts to secure a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Armed convicts hold 7 hostages in uprising

THUNDER BAY, Canada (AP) — Prisoners armed with knives took seven employes including two women as hostages in an uprising Saturday night at the Thunder Bay District Jail near the north shore of Lake Superior, jail officials said.

A guard telephoned reporters that he and six other hostages were taken hostage and handcuffed in an office of the prison by inmates who threatened to kill them if their demands were not met.

The demands included quicker court trials and no reprisals for the disturbance. Most of the inmates at the jail, part of the Ontario provincial prison system, are awaiting trial or transfer elsewhere.

The guard, who identified himself as Sergeant Main, said his captors had allowed him to speak to reporters by telephone.

One report said the hostages included a matron from the jail's women's section and a nun.

City and provincial police surrounded the building.. Dozens of prisoners milled around inside but officials said four convicts actually were holding the hostages.

Quick action saves infant

A Pomona infant was saved from drowning Saturday, thanks to quick thinking by her mother and a neighbor.

The mother of Danelle Cinquemani, 15-month-old girl, dove into the family swimming pool at 1633 W. Ninth St. when she saw the child in the pool.

A neighbor, Dean Schan, was credited by firemen with giving mouth to mouth resuscitation and reviving the baby after she was pulled from the pool.

Search for blind boy hinges on psychic's tip

TEN SLEEP, Wyo. (AP) — Searchers acted on a Denver psychic's hunch Saturday and combed a series of brush-covered hillsides and the banks of a creek for a missing 4-year-old boy who is legally blind and can't talk.

Authorities said the tip relayed here earlier in the day by chartered plane so far had failed to lead searchers to Ronnie Rea, who has been missing since Monday.

A Rea family member in contact with the search party said the psychic's tip led officials five miles from the Rea home southeast of here to a footbridge over No Wood Creek and a dirt road.

Before dawn Saturday morning, psychic William Bingham met a chartered plane flown from this northern Wyoming community to a private airport near Denver. He marked on a road map of Wyoming the spot where he thought Ronnie Rea might be.

Bingham said later the spot he marked was about five miles from the Rea family home, where the missing boy was last seen Monday afternoon. The Reas' house is about 12 miles southeast of here, in a foothills valley on the west flank of the Big Horn Mountains.

Between 30 and 100 searchers have spent the last four days examining an area roughly within a five-mile radius of the Rea home, but they have found no trace of the missing boy.

On Friday, the search was suspended temporarily while officials criss-crossed the area in a helicopter equipped with a heat-detecting scanner. That effort also failed to locate the boy.

Bingham, 53, said he has logged 10,000 hours perfecting his technique of finding missing objects since he learned six years ago how to harness the sun's rays and make them work for him.

He said he began toying with the technique while recovering from a bout with emphysema.

Flattened bullet is removed from skull

Shot in head, woman 'resting'

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — A 45-year-old mother of eight who was shot in the head at point blank range in a holdup early Saturday was sent home "for a rest" after surgeons removed a flattened bullet from her skull.

Mary Nelson, who has been robbed seven times in the three years she has worked as a clerk in the 7-Eleven convenience store chain, took it all in stride.

Her husband, Thomas Nelson, said a lone bandit walked into the store about 3:30 a.m., rifled the cash register and held a revolver "within 18 inches of her forehead and pulled the trigger.

"She said she felt something hit her in the head, so she dropped to the floor and waited until the man left and then got up and called police."

She was taken to Maryview Hospital where a slug from either a .22-or .32-caliber pistol was removed from her forehead. Surgeons stitched up the wound, put a drainage tube in it and sent Mrs. Nelson home to "stay in bed for the day," Nelson said.

"She has an awful headache," he said.

No arrests were made in connection with the robbery.

Mrs. Nelson was held up twice in three days last month as she worked at a 7-Eleven in nearby Portsmouth. In the second of those robberies, Mrs. Nelson was beaten so badly that she missed three days of work, her husband said. He said she hasn't decided whether to return to work after Saturday's robbery.

"The police have told her she may be pressing her luck."

3 rebels reported jailed in coup try

Chinese protesters urge punishment for Mao's wife

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Chinese workers streamed into Shanghai's main boulevard Saturday, demanding punishment for Mao Tse-tung's widow and three of her political allies, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said.

Chiang Ching and her three "radical" colleagues reportedly have been arrested for plotting a coup against Hua Kuo-feng, China's new Communist party chairman and successor to Mao.

The anti-Communist Hong Kong newspaper Fai Po said Saturday it had received reports of clashes in four locations, including Shanghai, between regular army troops and militiamen supporting the radicals. Fai Po's report could not be independently confirmed.

Tanjug, in a Peking-dated dispatch quoting unidentified eyewitnesses in Shanghai, said the demonstrators clogged Sun Yat-sen Boulevard, displaying caricatures of the four radicals, carrying red flags and portraits of Mao and pledging support to the Hua regime. Thousands of others watched from rooftops and windows, Tanjug reported.

In Tokyo, the Kyodo news service said some diplomats in Peking believe the fast-moving political developments in the Chinese capital could clear the way for a political comeback by Teng Hsiao-ping, the "moderate" deputy premier ousted by Mao earlier this year.

This speculation grows from the surprising revival of a television film about the heroics of a military commander believed to have been modeled on Teng as a young man, Kyodo said.

Peking was quiet Saturday but word of mass demonstrations elsewhere in China was filtering in to the capital, the Yugoslav agency reported.

Mondale and Dole get good ratings

WASHINGTON (AP) — As entertainment, the debate between Sens. Bob Dole and Walter Mondale probably would rate better reviews than the first two confrontations between President Ford and Jimmy Carter.

But did it change a vote? Not likely. It's hard to imagine anyone leaping to his feet Friday and shouting, "You've got my vote — or, at least the fellow you're running with does."

People vote for president. The other guy on the ticket is along for the ride.

Vice presidential candidates, like the vice presidents some of them become, are political spear carriers and, occasionally, hatchet men.

A common rule of presidential campaigns is: if there's mud to sling, let the vice presidential candidate do it. Why? Because the public rarely takes him seriously.

Presidential candidates worry about maintaining the proper image, the degree of dignity and aloofness they think the public expects from the nation's top elected official.

Vice presidents have no particular image to protect, unless it's a low profile.

Thus, Mondale, the Democrat from Minnesota, and Dole, the Kansas Republican, could risk swinging a little harder than their ticket leaders were willing to do.

Suspect jailed in shooting of Upland youth, 16

The fifth suspect in the shotgun wounding of a 16-year-old Upland youth last Saturday has been arrested by Ontario police and turned over to Upland police investigators.

Gabriel Trancos Olagues, 19, of 101832 24th St., Cucamonga, was arrested during a car stop at Sunkist Street and Euclid Avenue, Ontario, at 10:17 p. m. Friday.

He is being held at West End Sheriff's Jail, Ontario, on a charge of attempted murder. Bail was set at $5,000.

According to witnesses last Saturday morning, five persons held Robert Lopez to the ground while two others fired three times at him with a .12 gauge shotgun at a house at 1363 Bowen St., Upland.

Booked at the West End jail after the shooting were Ernest Olagues, 24, of 132 N. Monterey St., Ontario, and Roland Bencoma, 19, address unknown.

Two juveniles also were arrested and taken to juvenile hall.

An all-points bulletin was put out for the younger Olagues.

Lopez was taken to county hospital at San Bernardino where he was listed in stable condition. Hospital authorities Saturday reported that Lopez is still in serious condition.

Yoshimura trial slated

OAKLAND (AP) — Wendy Masako Yoshimura, the almost-forgotten underground companion of Patricia Hearst, goes on trial Monday — but she may be overshadowed again by the celebrated heiress-turned-bank robber.

Prosecutor Jeffrey Horner describes Miss Hearst as "a potential witness" at Miss Yoshimura's trial on weapons charges. He also seeks to introduce "vast amounts of evidence" seized on Sept. 18, 1975, at the San Francisco hideout shared by the two women.

Defense attorney James Larson says he will oppose Miss Hearst's appearance in court on every possible ground. "Primarily, her testimony is irrelevant to the current case, which deals with four-year-old charges," he said.

2nd annual parade draws 75 entries

Alta Loma celebrates again

Some 4,000 viewers lined the foothill route beneath sunny skies Saturday morning to watch the Second Annual Community Parade in Alta Loma.

There were 75 entries in the 90-minute event which was sponsored by the Alta Loma Community Chamber of Commerce and assisted by the Cucamonga-Alta Loma Junior Women's Club.

The line of march began on Cornelian Street at Base Line Road, proceeded east to Archibald Avenue then south to Foothill Boulevard.

Included in that line were a number of elected officials and political candidates, youth groups, specialty units, club members, commercial entries and military vehicles.

The Alta Loma High School Band, the Pomona High School Band and the Upland High School Band played in the parade.

Children found Smokey the Bear fascinating and kept time with Familia Foclorica, a Mexican Dancing Group.

A drum corps led the line of march. Last two units in the parade were the San Bernardino Sheriff-West End Mounted Posse and the Tri-Community Incorporation Committee.

Three are wounded in Pomona shooting

Police are seeking the driver of a car who shot two Pomona men and a Bellflower man after an exchange of words Saturday on Palmgrove Avenue in Pomona.

David Welch, 27, and Harvey Welch, 23, both of 949 Russell Place, and Jack Ponton, 29, of Bellflower, escaped major injuries in the shooting incident at 1 a.m.

Officers said the three men were standing in front of a pickup truck on Palmgrove north of Russell when a car drove by. Harvey Welch allegedly challenged the driver with an obscene word, and the motorist stopped within 100 feet of the victims and opened fire with a shotgun.

David Welch suffered multiple wounds of the back, thigh and arm; Harvey Welch was shot once in the calf; and Ponton suffered two pellet wounds in the foot and thigh.

Police said David Welch and Ponton were later treated and released from Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Harvey Welch declined medical treatment.

British ship help find missing jet

LONDON (AP) — A British ship with powerful winches has been sent to the North Atlantic to help raise a missing American F14 jet fighter from the ocean bottom, the U.S. Navy said Saturday.

The Navy said Friday the tugboat Shakori had made a "promising" sonar contact that might be the missing plane. The F14 Tomcat is the Navy's premier fighter, packed with secret electronic equipment.

The missing jet rolled off the deck of the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy during flight operations a month ago and sank in about 1,900 feet of water. The two-man crew ejected safely.

Prison reform probed:

State's penal quagmire draws scrutiny by Alatorre committee

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

Methods of budgeting for the operation of state prisons, medical care for inmates and supervision of educational programs offered inmates are three areas where reforms may be affected within the next two years as a direct result of work now being done by the Assembly Select Committee on Corrections.

BILL MC VITTIE

Chaired by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, the five-member committee began holding hearings in July. It has toured the state visiting prisons and jails gathering testimony.

The committee met in Chino at the California Institution for Men (CIM) and the California Institution for Women (CIW) in July.

These facilities lie within the district served by Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., a member of the select committee with a vital interest in prison programs.

"We haven't finished our hearings yet," said Alatorre. "We're about mid-point. But, it's safe to say we will call for legislative action in three areas — budgeting, medical care and education — as a direct result of our hearings."

Alatorre said the committee was informing the Department of Corrections already it has "a special concern about monies received" by the department, and as quickly as possible would like to see 1977-78 budgets for both CIM and CIW.

"It is an inadequate policy," Alatorre said, "when the amount of money to be alloted a state prison is determined by the number of inmates incarcerated there.

"CIW is the only correctional institution in the state where this is done. This is not a proper budgeting procedure, the committee feels. Programs should be budgeted, not numbers of individuals."

Alatorre said the committee has determined that "there is an unclarity of administrative policy regarding medical care for prison inmates in California" and he said the committee has found "definite abuses on the use of forced medications" to control behavior.

McVittie: 'It is safe to say we will call for legislative action . . .'

"There is a great need to improve medical facilities particularly where women are being held. More program money is needed," said Alatorre, "and more professional staff is needed."

While Alatorre did not have clear recommendations yet for new budgeting and medical care programs, he did have a concrete suggestion in the area of educational programs for prison inmates.

"We now are looking into the possibility of setting up one, uniform school district to serve the entire Department of Corrections," he said.

"This way certain services would be assured. The educational programs in the prisons would be coordinated and realistic.

"If we succeed in doing this, the district could apply for federal funds, which has not been done for prison inmates in the past."

Alatorre said it is very difficult "in a custodial situation to operate an effective educational program.

"You cannot expect a prison superintendent to be a school superintendent," he said. "That individual is not geared toward education, but toward corrections.

"If we are able to organize a Department of Corrections school district, it will be headed by an educator and staffed by educators, separate and apart from the correctional-custodial operation."

Alatorre said he had been back to CIW twice since the July hearing "just to check on a few things."

He said the committee had found that overall there appeared to be more pressing need for reform in prisons and jails where women are held.

McVittie said he is convinced prison reforms are necessary because "we're not getting the returns justified from the amount of monies we are spending on our correctional programs.

"Most of the public and the Legislature are unhappy over the high rate of recidivism (return to crime and antisocial behavior patterns after leaving prison) we have at the present time.

"I'm hopeful this committee will come out with some suggestions that will result in a greater return on the product we have in our state correctional system."

Hearings will continue before the committee for another year and possibly longer, Alatorre said, before firm legislative recommendations evolve. The committee has yet to hear from executives within the Department of Corrections.

Mother of convicted killer seeks ways to block his hanging

NASSAU, The Bahamas (AP) — Shortly after dawn this week, in the small gallows room at Her Majesty's Prison at Fox Hill, Michaiah Shobek, 22, an American, will be hanged.

Shobek, who said he killed three American visitors here because they were "the angels of Lucifer," has exhausted all avenues of appeal.

Authorities say he will be executed Tuesday morning. But his mother, a Milwaukee cleaning woman, still is searching for a way out for her son.

"My boy needs care," Juanita Spencer said in a telephone interview. "He isn't right in his head. It started before he left here."

Mrs. Spencer believes her son is mentally ill, in part from a viral infection he suffered as a child. She also contends he suffered a nervous breakdown and was beaten while in the Bahamian prison.

Shobek was sentenced to die by hanging on Sept. 26, 1975, after his conviction for murder in the January 1974 stabbing death of Irwin Borstein, a New York City accountant. During his trial, Shobek also confessed to killing two other Americans.

Shobek was originally scheduled to be hanged Oct. 7, 1975, but Mrs. Spencer's appeal to U.S. authorities won her son a reprieve. The execution was later rescheduled for this Oct. 19. However, Shobek appeared not to comprehend the meaning of a reprieve.

"He had trouble understanding the news," said U.S. Consul A. Stephen Vitale at the time. "He looked stunned and a little groggy. I had to repeat what I said ... he just shrugged his shoulders."

Mrs. Spencer has tried for another delay. Letters to Wisconsin congressmen and the White House have brought vague replies, she said. "They all say they'll look into it, but nobody's doing anything," she said.

She attended his trial and has visited him since his sentencing.

"I'd like to get another stay because he was never represented right the first time," she said.

"After they got the confession, the attorney was telling him how to act because all they would do would be to send him back to the United States. He believed that."

Bahamian government spokesman Cyril Stevenson says all legal procedures in the case have been exhausted.

"We are not like the U.S. You would have said Shobek was a lunatic and put him in an asylum and let him out in six months to kill some other people."

Shobek spent time in various reform schools for petty crimes as a youngster and was an aggressive and "street-wise" teen-ager, his mother says.

At age 17, he left home. In November 1973, Shobek went to the Bahamas. "He was just bumming around," she said.

During his trial, Shobek confessed to killing Paul Howell, 50, a Massillon, Ohio, attorney attending a convention here. Howell was stabbed in the neck and chest Dec. 5, 1973. Shobek also admitted strangling 17-year-old Katie Smith of Detroit on Jan. 26, 1974. Her body was found in a ditch.

"I was told to do it by my father, God," Shobek told the court.

Shobek was tried only for the murder of Borstein, whose body was found on a remote beach. Death was attributed to multiple wounds.

'Whistle-stopping Ford assails Carter

By Associated Press

With his political fists bared, President Ford rode a whistlestop train Saturday through Illinois, telling crowds that Jimmy Carter will say anything to get elected and attacking his Democratic rival on issues that Carter claims Ford has distorted.

"He wanders, he wavers, he waffles and he wiggles," Ford said of his Democratic challenger. "He isn't the man you want for president."

Carter told a news conference in Kansas City that he had wired Ford on Friday asking him to stop misrepresenting the Democrat's position on four issues. The telegram asked the President to "refrain from making ... misleading and erroneous statements to the American people."

Ford replied with a telegram of his own. He said it told Carter, in effect, that "we're just telling the truth."

"I sent Gov. Carter a telegram indicating I'm delighted to help him clarify his position on such important issues as income taxes, the deductibility of mortgage interest payments, federal spending programs and the defense budget," the President said.

At his stops along his whistlestop trip, Ford attacked Carter on three of the four issues — income taxes, federal spending and defense cuts. And the President, riding a campaign train called "Honest Abe," told reporters: "We're just getting warmed up."

Meanwhile, the vice presidential rivals, Sens. Bob Dole and Walter F. Mondale, returned to the campaign trail following their acrimonious Friday night debate in Houston.

Dole went to his home state of Kansas where he defended his debate remarks blaming Democrats for every war this century. "If they want to keep dredging up Watergate and the (Nixon) pardon, then we'll dredge up a few wars," Dole declared as he began a four-day campaign swing through the Midwest farm belt.

Mondale, also campaigning in Illinois, told a crowd at a shopping center in Fairview Heights, 12 miles east of St. Louis, that he would be glad to debate Dole again.

Carter said his telegram asked the President to stop misleading voters into thinking the Democratic candidate would raise taxes for everyone earning over $14,000; slash $15 billion from the defense budget; push for social programs costing at least $100 billion and try to end tax deductions for homeowners mortgage interest.

Ford: 'He wanders, he wavers, he waffles and he wiggles . . .'

But soon after Carter spoke, Ford began his 10-hour trip aboard the Amtrak train "Honest Abe" in Joliet, Ill., with a blistering attack on Carter. Ford said his challenger "will say anything, anywhere to be president of the United States."

Carter told his news conference before making campaign stops throughout Ohio, that "those who work for a living ... and report all their income for tax purposes would not have an increase in their taxes" under a Carter presidency.

He noted that his economic advisers have estimated that taxes could be cut at all income levels if the tax code was reformed to tighten tax shelters and other provisions that Carter considers loopholes.

Carter said he did not recall ever endorsing a $15 billion reduction in the defense budget, as Ford charged in their foreign policy debate Oct. 6 and in his White House news conference Thursday. The Los Angeles Times and the Savannah Morning News have said he did.

The Democratic candidate declared that he has said consistently throughout his campaign that he favors defense cuts of five per cent, or $5 billion to $7 billion. Asked about two newspaper reports, Carter replied, "I can't deny that I ever said that. I don't remember."

Carter said that as President he would continue mortgage interest and property tax deductions. He acknowledged that he said during the Massachusetts primary that he might consider eliminating them, but he insisted that the following day he made clear that he opposed eliminating the deductions.

Carter has not estimated how much new social programs would cost. But he contends economic recovery and elimination of waste could generate $60 billion for social spending in his first term. He has said that could be used to finance his programs.

He also has said he would balance the federal budget by 1980 and would defer those programs he couldn't finance with new revenue to avoid any general tax increase.

On foreign policy, Carter told his news conference he would not send American troops to fight in Eastern Europe if any of the nations there revolted against the Soviet Union. He said he would not commit American troops to fight abroad "unless our own security is at stake."

"I would not consider our own security at stake if military action was initiated by Hungary or Poland or East Germany against the Soviet Union," he said.

Carter said he would withdraw atomic weapons from South Korea and pull out U.S. troops over a four-to-five year period, although "adequate tactical air cover" would be continued and the South Korean forces would be strengthened.

He also said "I wouldn't go back on the commitment" to protect Taiwan, but would seek a pledge from mainland China that it would not seek to take over the island.

Turning to taxes, Carter said "I would guess that tax rates would be lowered throughout the entire gamut of income" if his reform proposals are enacted.

He said his reforms would make certain that "those who now enjoy the option of not paying any income taxes, like the Ford Motor Co., would certainly pay more."

According to recent reports, the Ford Motor Co. paid no income taxes in 1974, when it had worldwide profits of more than $500 million, or in 1975, when its profits were about $300 million. The reports said the firm, in fact, got tax credits of $189 million against future liabilities.

Carter said estimates by some of his tax advisers at the Brookings Institution in Washigton that tax rates for some of the highest income levels could be reduced 20 per cent and some in the lowest levels could be cut four per cent.

Such estimates were made recently by Joseph A. Pechman, a Brookings tax expert. He defined the highest income levels as being in the $200,000 range and the lowest as $4,900-$5,900 for a family of four.

Carter said he would guess that by those estimates middle-income families, or those between $15,000 to $20,000 a year, could get reductions of about 35 per cent in their taxes.

135 jailings for the 'king'

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Renato Datri, 69-year-old "King of Neapolitan Pickpockets," was arrested on the job Saturday — for the 135th time.

Officers said Datri has a reputation in Paris as well, where he reportedly pickpocketed an unidentified underworld figure but returned the wallet after learning of his victim's identity.

2 cosmonauts forced to return to earth

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet spacemen have had to cancel a link-up with an orbiting space laboratory because of a failure in their spaceship's control systems and are preparing for a return to earth, Tass reported Saturday.

The agency did not indicate that cosmonauts Vyachslav Zudov, 32, and Valery Rozhdestvensky, 37, were in any danger. The two first-timers in space were launched Thursday night.

The brief Tass report gave little indication of what went wrong. It said only that the Soyuz 23 space capsule was put on "automatic regime" for approaching the Salyut 5 space station but docking "was cancelled because of the off-design regime of the spacecraft's approach control system."

Pravda reported earlier that the cosmonauts had put their craft close to the Salyut station, so the failure apparently occurred in the final stages of docking. Western space specialists suggested the docking mechanism itself could have failed or that for some reason the cosmonauts' craft could not approach the space station properly.

In April 1975 Soyuz 18 failed to dock with the Salyut 4 space laboratory after it overshot the lab and did not have enough fuel to maneuver back to it.

Soyuz 23 took off with considerable fanfare in the official press following the successes of two other space flights this year. The Soyuz 21 flight in July and August put the first two crewmen aboard Salyut 5, which was launched in June. The Soyuz 22 flight in September was listed as an eight-day photographic mission not involving the space station.

The early stages of the latest flight had gone well. The two air force lieutenant colonels reported at noon Friday that they were in good shape after 10 orbits and all systems were functioning normally.

The ill-fated linkup operation was attempted at about 10 p.m. Friday but nothing about it was made public until the cancellation announcement at noon Saturday.

The intended duration of the Soyuz 23 mission was not announced in advance, despite a general trend for space authorities to reveal more about space flights, including fragments of their programs and announcements when the ends of flights are imminent.

The Soviet endurance record for cosmonauts in a space station is 63 days, set last year.

In Diamond Bar

School transfer studied

Transfer of four north Diamond Bar schools from the Pomona school district to the Walnut school district is due for action by trustees of the latter Monday night.

To date the Pomona school board has taken no action on the proposal.

One possibility is a technical "protest" by either district. This would mandate an election in March 1977 in the district filing the protest.

Such a protest must be filed before the Los Angeles Board of Education holds a hearing Oct. 26 on the proposed transfer.

The Diamond Bar Homeowners Association is trying to achieve the change.

Frank Morales, member of the Walnut board, said recently that he saw the proposed transfer as one in a series of changes because of changes in the character of the community.

He said geographical barriers, maintaining a consistent educational program and participation of north Diamond Bar people in Walnut organizations all had something to do with the annexation proposal.

Board members also will discuss but are not expected to act on a plan through which a teacher could retire at the age of 55 with annual compensation ranging from $2,500 to $4,000.

Compensation would vary according to salary at the time of retirement.

The teacher or other certificated employe would be employed as an independent contractor to serve 35 days per fiscal year in a capacity determined by the employe and the school district.

The contract would be for five years or until the person reaches the age of 65, whichever comes first.

To qualify, the teacher must have rendered a minimum of 15 years of full-time service to the district.

Ray McMullen, assistant superintendent of personnel and staff development, will present the plan to the board.

Trustees plan to act on several personnel policies resulting from recent ratification of a contract with the Walnut Valley Educators Association.

These include professional evaluation, compensation for both regular school year teachers and summer school teachers, absences and leaves, employe grievances and employer-employe relations.

Walnut teachers recently were granted a 5.4 per cent pay raise.

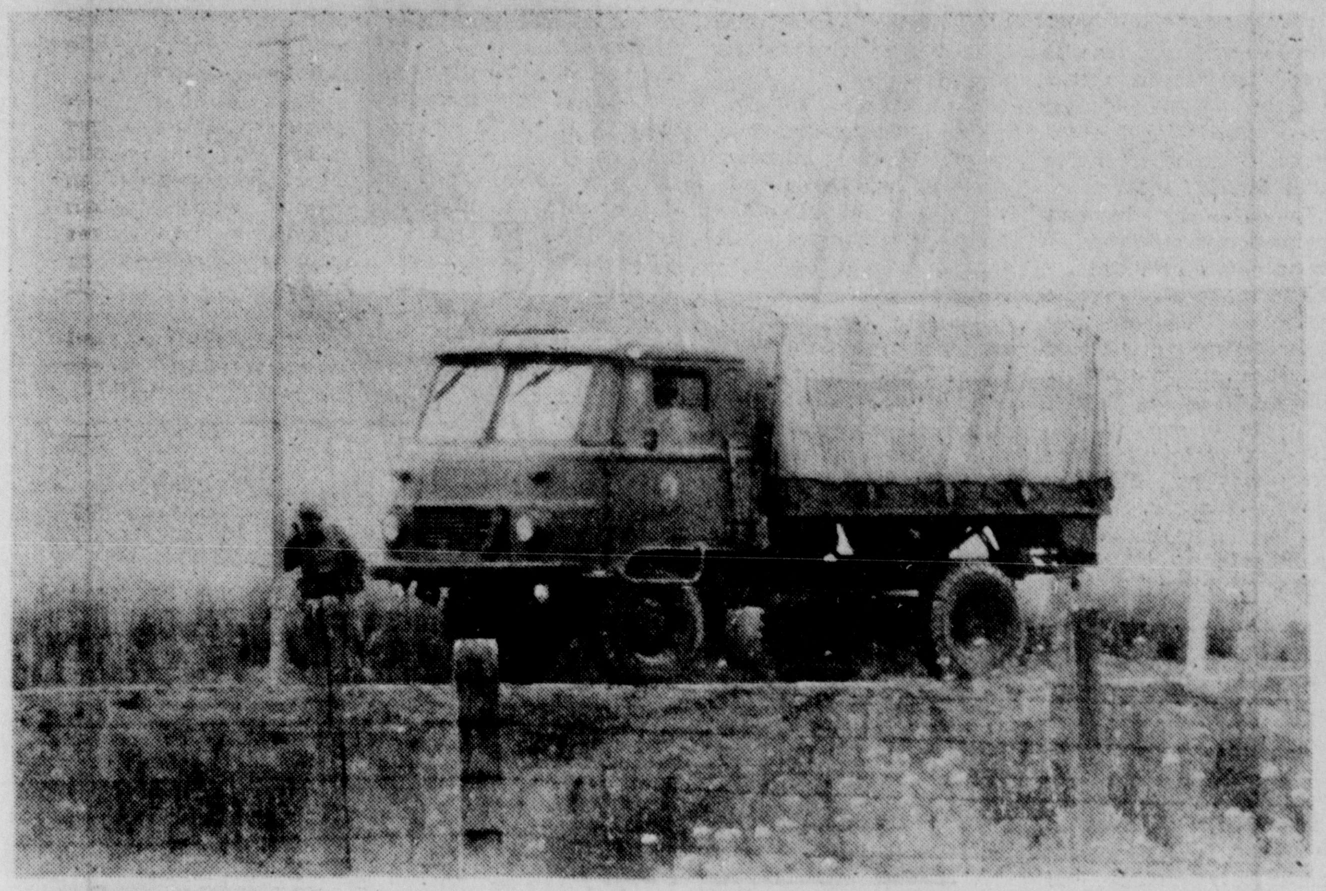
Germany: a world split by steel-mesh fence



DIVIDING LINE — An East German border guard uses a telephone attached to the pole beside which his patrol's vehicle is parked on the East German side of the border near Hof, West Germany. In the foreground is part of the border fence, which the East Germans are reinforcing. New fencing now extends several hundred miles along the border.

Fortifications restrain citizens, not enemies

EDITOR'S NOTE: The steel-mesh fence that separates East and West Germany has changed considerably in recent years. This is a view of what the border is like today.

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

ALONG THE EAST GERMAN BORDER (AP) — U.S. helicopter pilots skimming low along the line of white pegs that mark the border between East and West Germany used to sing a little song over their head-sets:

'Where have all the flowers gone . . .'

"Where have all the flowers gone ... ?"

In the past year, they've come up with a parody: "Where have all the people gone?"

Whole towns have vanished. Some deserted. Some torn down and moved back from the border.

"You first used to notice that there were no flowers in the window boxes in those towns over there," said our pilot, Don Nauman of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "Now the towns have gone; some of them anyway."

In hazy afternoon sunshine, we were flying with a helicopter patrol along the fortified, fenced-off border that separates the Communist German Democratic Republic from the Federal Republic of Germany.

"The fence isn't the border anymore," Neuman cautioned. "Those little white pegs are. The fence has been moved back a couple of hundred yards to provide reaction room for the dudes with the machine guns up in the guard towers." At treetop level, what Neuman called "border cruising altitude: low enough to smell the sauerkraut," the chopper followed the winding line of white sticks up over a hill and along a parched river bed.

"The town of Liebau has been moved away from the border," said Capt. Wolfgang Bauer, peering down from the door gunner's seat with a map spread across his knees. "Torn down and taken away." Bauer, from Worcester, Mass., is border control officer for the U.S. 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment, which patrols 400 miles of Communist border from due east of Coburg to where Czechoslovakia meets Austria.

"Capt. Bauer," said his commanding office, Col. Harold Page, "knows more about the border than the guard with the AK-47 on the opposite side of the fence, who only gets assigned there for a month at a time. Wolfgang has had seven years of border duty. Besides, he was born in Hamburg during the bombings."

At Hirschberg, along the Zollen River, there were some signs of life: a girl in a yellow raincoat cycling along the street with school books in a basket; a tractor, watched by a man on a motorcycle, moving across the brown fields of the collective farm. But no smoke issued from the tall stacks of a factory on the river bank.

"That's a leather factory," observed Capt. Bauer. "It was working up until a few weeks ago. Something happened. probably they got a recession too over there."

The pilot indicated the church steeple with his gloved hand. "Never heard those bells ring. At night, you seldom see anyone moving about. There don't seem to be many bars or gasthauses (guest houses)."

The chopper sat down in a field next to a "honey wagon," a horse-drawn fertilizer tank, directly across from the East German town of Moedlareuth. The West Germans call the place "Little Berlin," because the fence is being replaced by a 20-foot-high wall, like the Berlin Wall. On weekends, Western tourists by the busload come out to have their pictures taken against the backdrop of the latest Communist walled city. Several cars of sightseers pulled up while we were there; some even stopped to have a family picnic in view of the concrete

News for elderly

Editor: 'It's a shame we have to exist . . .'

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The founder of a newspaper put out by and for elderly persons wishes there was no need for it.

"It's a shame we have to exist," said VISTA volunteer Greg Huth, who recently stepped down as editor of The Elder. "We are doing the work of the big newspapers and television stations."

Huth says the major media carry many advertisements directed at the elderly but no serious news about them.

"There is no news about older persons except "cute stuff," such as when somebody turns 104 years old in a nursing home," says Huth.

To try to fill that gap, Huth recruited college students and senior citizens as volunteer reporters in 1975. A board of directors of mostly elderly persons was set up to advise the staff on business matters and provide article ideas.

Huth began The Elder with a $300 grant from Yale University. Its annual operating budget has grown to $21,000.

"My ideal was to start a newspaper run by, and accountable to, senior citizens," said Huth.

After 15 issues, he said, "The Elder has been a meaningful experience for our older reporters. We need them, and they know they are helping their own people. It has given the people a chance to develop their writing skills."

The Elder's articles have dealt with topics such as transportation and drug discounts for senior citizens, nursing home regulations, retirement planning, social security and diets.

A six-page "Elder Insurance Guide" discussed details and costs of every major medical plan available for older persons in Connecticut.

Huth, who plans to develop a theater company for the elderly, had been the only paid staff member of The Elder. But revenues are great enough now to pay for three part-time employes — an editor, assistant editor and advertising director.

Huth says the paper has a circulation of 4,000 but estimated that up to 8,000 people see each monthly issue.

It is distributed free of charge. Mail subscriptions are available at $2 per year, but persons who can't afford it are mailed the paper for free.

"We want to make sure that the poorest people can afford the paper," Huth said.

Fatal crane crash probed

CARLSBAD (AP) — Work is underway by the state Division of Industrial Safety on dismantling the wreckage of a 190-foot crane which collapsed at San Diego Gas & Electric's Encina power plant Oct. 2

Six men were killed in the accident.

Investigators said it will take several days to take the crane apart. They have ordered SDG&E to keep the parts stored "under lock and key" until they are examined.

A spokesman declined Wednesday to predict how long it would take for scientific and engineering studies to shed light on the cause of the collapse.

Germany's Berlin wall

Growing wire barrier between one people

blockhouse and the bunker-slits protruding from the green hillock where a collective's cows were grazing.

The next stop was a broad meadow, leaping with deer, where the steel mesh fence, 10 years old, was pulled way back from the white border markers almost to the tree line of a deep green forest. In the five years since this reporter had flown the East German border with a U.S. patrol, the fence had changed considerably.

Besides being relocated further back so that it ran straighter and did not follow every bend and twist in the border, it was no longer electrified with a murderous 2,000-volt charge. The minefields that killed so many animals, and an occasional human escapee, had been mostly removed.

"It's much more sophisticated now and even more lethal," said Capt. Bauer, pointing to the curious devices, like monkey wreches, hung along the fence every few yards. These were SM-70 anti-personnel mines, mini-Claymores that send out hundreds of squareshaped shrapnel pellets at the split second the fence is touched. A West German had stolen one of the new "shotgun" mines recently, for the border patrol to study, then had been killed trying to bring back another one.

Looking almost pastoral in the late afternoon shadows, the new style fence had diamond shaped meshing that tore apart the hands of any climbers who survived the mine devices. The whole strip could be illuminated at night by remote control searchlights. Behind were the concrete towers — all the wooden ones have been replaced — and hillside bunkers manned around the clock by guards with automatic weapons. Guard dogs on long wire leads help sniff out trouble. Between the fence and the border markers are a row of tank traps, a deep vehicle ditch, and a bulldozed "killer strip," like a clay tennis court, to record footprints and tire-marks and provide a shooting gallery several hundred yards wide for the marksmen in the tower.

"Notice that all the tank and vehicle traps face in the wrong direction," said Captain Bauer, peering through field glasses. "They're there to catch escapers not invaders. The East Germans have decided to seal off their borders completely from the West, and where the towns are too close, they build a wall instead of a fence, to prevent even visible contact."

West German intelligence sources figure the new Communist fence, now several hundred miles long, cost a minimum of 4 million East German marks a mile (about $2.5 million) to build, not counting the acreage lost to agriculture.

Further along the border, at Regnitzlesau, the chopper landed again near the fence to make contact with a patrol from German customs, which helps U.S. forces patrol the border. So does the Bundesgrenschutz — the federal border protection agency — and the Bavarian Border Police.

> 'They have gone to soldiers, everyone . . .'

"Something is up," reported Frieder Fichtner, chief customs inspector at Hof. "Work on the fence has suddenly stopped. Last week there were 30 men working, and 30 guards with machine guns to watch them. Maybe they have run out of money." He pointed to a row of red metal markers, like tiny pennants, hanging on a strand of wire, beyond which the work party was not allowed to venture. "They blew up all the mines, tore down the old fence and then did not return. Very strange."

While we were making our way on foot along the edge of the abandoned work site, being careful not to step across the line marked by the white stumps, an armored vehicle came roaring out of the dusty distance. A man in a brown uniform with an AK-47 on one shoulder and a gas mask on the other climbed down from the cab and began shouting excitedly into a telephone attached to a pole. Through field glasses we watched the men in the tower watching us through field glasses.

"Our helicopter has broken up their chess game," said the customs man. A crop duster working a far away field on the collective farm drifted over for a closer look at us. Another armored car arrived and more men, probably officers, mounted to the watch tower.

"They look at us through 60 power telescopes and we stare them down with ours," said 2nd Lt. Patrick Dolan of Oklahoma City, whose mobile patrol had joined the staring match. GIs assigned to border duty call the drill "Face Out at the DDR (Democratic Deutch Republic) Corral."

From daily stake-outs and other intelligence sources, it is known that guards on the opposite side of the fence are mostly young, have little knowledge of the area, come from other parts of the country, never mix with the townspeople, usually spend 30 days on border duty, then are

'Black experience'

American history surveyed through art

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Two Centuries of Black American Art," an exhibit that opened recently at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art prior to a national tour, is a comprehensive survey of the black contribution to the arts of America.

It includes more than 200 works by 63 painters, sculptors and artisans, ranging from colonial days to the modern era.

The exhibition seeks to fill in a long-standing gap in the national consciousness of the black experience in America, according to its curator, David Driskell, chairman of the Art Department at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn.

While black composers, dancers, singers, poets and writers have experienced a steadily growing acceptance, Driskell points out, the work produced by black Americans in the fine, decorative and building arts has remained comparatively obscure and is considered apart from the mainstream of American creativity.

Carrying out its aim, the definitive survey assembled by Driskell combines a broad representation of works by artists who have achieved some degree of recognition, with a generous sampling of black art that has been relatively unknown or incompletely understood and appreciated until now.

One of the exhibition's prime rediscoveries, presented photographically, is the impact of the work of black artisans on the architecture and building crafts of the early American South.

Tracing black American craftsmanship from its 18th century origin in intricate African metalwork to its current state of sophistication and complexity, the exhibition "effectively counteracts the long prevailing notions that black art is confined to 'primitivism' or, more recently, 'social protest'," Driskell says.

"It demonstrates a wide diversity of artistic skills, rooted in African craftsmanship and creatively adapted to continental and American forms," he adds.

Works of all orientations — folk and classical, ethnic and universal, realistic and imaginative — are included in the exhibit. Such historically important movements as the "Negro Renaissance" of the 1920s and 1930s are amply represented; major works by virtually every leading American artist also are on view.

There is an excellent representation of the black woman as an artist, as seen through the works of Lois M. Jones, Selma Burke and Alma Thomas, all of whom have been interviewed by black filmmaker and historian Carlton Moss for a film documentary of the exhibition.

A number of objects are on public view for the first time. Highlights include a daguerreotype portrait by Jules Lion of the famous naturalist and illustrator John J. Audubon, and previously unseen works by David Butler and Clementine Hunter.

The exhibition has been made possible through grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and Philip Morris Inc. After closing in Los Angeles it is scheduled to appear in three other cities next year: Atlanta, Jan. 8 through Feb. 20; Dallas, March 30 through May 15; and Brooklyn, N.Y., June 25 through Aug. 21.

Germany's Berlin wall—

rotated elsewhere for 90 days.

Although the number of escapees along the fence has dropped from 1,000 a year in the mid-1960s to about 120 a year in the past decade (compared with a drop of 50,000 to 5,400 since the Berlin Wall went up), tension has been high along the border in recent months. There have been several killings, including that of an Italian truck driver, who turned out to be a Communist and set off an international incident that echoed strongly in the Communist countries.

After the East Germans won 40 gold medals at the Montreal Olympics, a Bavarian newspaper ran a picture of an unsuccessful defector, hanging dead on the fence, over the caption: "Welcome to the Greatest Sports Nation on Earth."

Most days, said Dolan, "are pretty dull, but there was some shooting a couple of nights ago. A deer might have touched off the alarm, you can never tell."

Occasionally the patrols come across a "push out." These are unwanted citizens, usually drunks, mentally retarded, chronic welfare cases or simply old people whom the East Germans "push out" through the fence to rid their society of non-producers.

The Fulda area, further north, boasted a legendary push-out called "Volley Ball Fritz," a town drunk whom the East Germans pushed out every Saturday night and the West Germans promptly tossed back over the fence until, after many a hard night at the schnapps, he never could remember which side of the border he really lived on.

And there are a number of tales of guard dogs getting loose from their leads and straying across the border to terrorize U.S. troops with hungry howling and delicate protocol problems.

"The question is," said Sgt. Ben Allison of Birmingham, Ala., "do you shoot 'em, report 'em or paint 'em?" One cavalry patrol, kept at bay by a baying runaway dog, finally tranquilized into defecting to the West with a happy hamburger laced with marijuana.

"You see a lot of things up here on the border," concluded Capt. Bauer, "but you don't see much of detente through those glasses. We see all the latest tanks and helicopters, and occasionally the floggers: the Mig 23s, and we know the Russians aren't very far back there behind the line. Living behind that fence may be a way of life by now over there."

Future bus perils probed: Better safeguards readied to protect tomorrow's youngsters

EDITOR'S NOTE: The first federal regulations governing school bus safety becomes effective next spring. Will the next generation of yellow school buses bring children safely through accidents?

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — On Oct. 2, 1967, four sleepy-eyed students boarded a school bus in Waterloo, Neb., for their last ride to class.

They died minutes later when a Union Pacific freight ripped the bus apart, twisting the sheet metal skin and exposing sharp, lethal edges. The nine other children aboard were injured, some of them on the exposed edges. Federal investigators later would label them child-lacerating "cookie cutters."

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) found the bus came apart too easily. Joints failed under too little pressure. Seats ripped from the floor. Children riding in the disintegrated portion were tossed about and "probably ... struck many hard and sharp surfaces."

It was the first time a federal agency found fault with the way most of the nation's 250,000 school buses are made, although independent testing laboratories previously had reported problems.

Yet, it would be another five years before the government would propose the first regulation to improve school bus construction. And it will be April 1, 1977, when the three federal regulations finally agreed upon go into effect.

Why the delay? Because the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration felt there weren't many fatal school bus accidents.

"We found it (school bus transportation) was the safest mode of transportation we had, bar none," says Bob Boaz, the NHTSA's public information officer. "We had a limited amount of funds and we're dealing with the whole spectrum of highway accidents. So when we looked at priorities, there was no way to say 100 fatalities here should be a high priority when we had so many more being killed in passenger cars. But then Congress got involved and said the heck with cost benefits, issue some standards, so we did."

The NHTSA's three regulations will have the force of law, unless overturned by Congress.

How effective will these regulations be? One of them, designed to eliminate "cookie cutter" edges, has a loophole that allows manufacturers to make a school bus's metal skin even thinner and less safe than it is today. The builders say they won't use the loophole.

Another regulation, aimed at keeping the roof from collapsing when a bus overturns, relies on a test that even the NHTSA once said wouldn't determine if the roof were really safe.

And the third, requiring padded bus seats and seats designed to hold children in place during an accident, is not as strong as originally proposed. The original regulation specified seat backs eight or nine inches higher than they now are. But school administrators said this might create a discipline problem because drivers wouldn't be able to see children. So the NHTSA compromised with a regulation that adds four or five inches to present seatbacks.

Until now, there have been no federal regulations governing school buses. And no state has set safety regulations as strong as the NHTSA rules effective next spring.

Despite their shortcomings, the NHTSA and the six principal manufacturers of school buses believe the regulations will produce safer buses, once the buses now in use are replaced. That will take a decade or more.

Meanwhile, more than 20 million children ride those traditional yellow school buses each school day. Fifteen to 20 are killed and 5,000 are injured in an average year, the government reports.

That's not an alarming accident rate. The buses avoid accidents by travelling slowly, other drivers watch out for them, and school bus drivers are good drivers, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., told a 1973 congressional hearing. But he added: "School buses are probably the unsafest vehicles on the road because when they are involved in an accident, the results are often catastrophic. Today's school bus is shoddily constructed ..."

Dr. Stanley J. Behrman, representing the American Society of Oral Surgeons, told the National Safety Council in 1972 nearly 10 per cent of the 16,000 children treated by society members in one year were

The last thing you need is another lecture on how much good the 55 mph speed limit can do.

What you really need to know are the facts.

Fact. If everybody slowed down to 55, we'd save as much as eight and a half million gallons of gasoline a day.

Fact. In 1975, 9400 fewer people were killed on our highways than in 1973, when speed limits were above 55.

The point is, the 55 mph speed limit isn't simply something we can take or leave. It's a law. With tickets and fines and all the rest —just like any other law.

And it's my job to make sure it gets the chance to work.

Not just because it's a good idea. But because it's the law.

New postmaster picked

Lawrence finds challenge in service, mail 'growing with fury'

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

A 52-year-old Pomona man on the job at the same Claremont location for the past 31 years has accepted a new challenge.

Harry F. Lawrence, who worked his way up the U. S. Post Office ladder from substitute clerk-carrier in September 1945 to Claremont postmaster Nov. 27, 1970 has been appointed postmaster of the spacious Upland post office.

The appointment came with a certain suddenness for Lawrence who was one of three finalists who flew to San Francisco to appear before a regional management selection board at San Bruno.

Lawrence received a telephone call last Thursday afternoon that he was to be at the Upland post office the following morning to be sworn in as new postmaster.

"The call took me by surprise," Lawrence said, "but I was elated to receive the appointment."

After Lawrence was sworn in Friday, he rushed back to the Claremont post office where he turned over the postmaster duties to David Mueller of Chino who became officer-in-charge until a new postmaster is appointed.

Mueller was a foreman in the mail processing plant at the Alhambra office.

Lawrence became a sad postmaster in May this year when postal authorities moved all of his Claremont carriers to the new 35,000-square-foot Upland post office, and left him with only a finance office and a handful of clerks.

Today Lawrence finds himself in charge of 55 carriers and a total of 125 employes in two cities "growing with fury," he said.

Lawrence considers his new post a challenge. He's taken over the job just before the Christmas rush.

Considering that the Upland building was "overbuilt," and adequate for 20 years before the Claremont carriers were transferred there, Lawrence said he is happy to have so much space.

He recalls that the Claremont post office built in 1935 had 4,594 square feet and the community quickly learned that the building was not large enough to handle all the correspondence that Claremont and its colleges generate.

Although the post office became cramped quarters for carriers and the public alike, it was not until 1962 that the federal government budgeted money for an annex to handle the carrier position.

As postmaster, Lawrence weathered a storm that brewed when city officials and residents argued with post office officials over the location of a new post office for Claremont.

Postal officials finally decided not to build a post office in Claremont, after all.

At Upland Lawrence succeeds Charles Welsh as postmaster. Two officers-in-charge had filled in during the period since Welsh went on the sick leave after an operation in 1975.

Lawrence feels that dog bites are still the number one injury problem confronting carriers.

He said that he received reports of two dog bites his first day on the job at Upland. One carrier was treated at a local hospital because of the seriousness of the injury.

"If a dog interferes with mail delivery, we threaten to cut off delivery sometimes to an entire block until the trouble is taken care of," Lawrence explained. "We contact the owner, and sometimes we go through the humane society to get the matter settled."

Lawrence said that carriers are equipped with a small aerosol can of 'Halt," containing cayenne pepper and olive oil, which forces a dog to back away from his victim.

Lawrence feels that he will have to spend half his time behind a desk to do paperwork, but "I like to get out on the work floor to see what is going on. I have my finger into the operation. I feel as happy as a lark."

POMONA CHILDREN MEET LION CUB

'Fantasies' theme set in Yule parade

Pomona's 24th annual Christmas parade will be held Dec. 4, starting at 6 p.m. on Holt Avenue.

"Fantasies of Christmas, '76" is the theme.

Parade chairman Wayne Smith of the Pomona Jaycees said 100 units are anticipated to participate in the 90-minute holiday event which traditionally launches the Christmas shopping season.

The parade annually is coordinated by the Jaycees and financed by the City of Pomona.

The line of march, Smith said, will be east along Holt Avenue from Hamilton Boulevard to Palomares Street.

Jaycee vice president Doug Hamilton is supervising the parade activity. Jerry Hewett is director in charge. Joe Covarrubias is serving as parade co-chairman with Smith.

Dick Woody is adviser and route coordinator. Publicity is being directed by Gerry Benedict.

Categories of entries in the parade are special units, supervised by Keith Johnson; floats, Scott Ambrose; bands, Ed Hildebrand; cars and communications, Jim Walker.

Nook Gatto is responsible for the Jaycee's trational Santa Claus float this year. Erik Holm will coordinate equestrian units. Political and show business celebrities will be the responsibility of Russ Archambault.

Steve Holmes is the Jaycee float mechanic. Jo King is handling preparade arrangements.

Smith said four cash prizes will be awarded top winners in the float category, along with trophies.

Parade applications in all categories are being received now by the Jaycees. Entries, to be received through Nov. 15, may be sent to Pomona Chamber of Commerce, 100 Pomona Mall West, Pomona 91766.

Those entering the parade are asked to give the name of their organization, a description of the entry, which category they wish to enter, their address and their telephone number.

Santa aides to be picked

Pomona Jaycees will select two valley children to ride in the Pomona Christmas parade Dec. 4, in their Santa Claus float.

To pick those to receive the honor of riding with Santa, the Jaycees are conducting a valley-wide essay contest.

All boys and girls 5 through 8 years of age may enter.

They are asked to write 30 to 50 words on "Why I Would Like to Ride with Santa Claus."

Entries should be mailed to the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, 100 Pomona Mall West, Pomona 91766, in care of the Jaycees.

Parade chairman Wayne Smith is directing the essay contest. He said no entries will be accepted after Nov. 15. Judges will read all the letters received and select the two winners.

Names of the children who win the contest and ride in the Santa Claus float in the Christmas parade will be announced on Nov. 30, Smith said.

Old is gold as buffs find treasures in time gone by

Nostalgia helps revive lonesome relics of yesterday

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

In a society where products are customarily heralded as NEW, or BRAND NEW or NEW AND IMPROVED, the term "old" has seemingly become an expletive Madison Avenue seeks to delete.

It's as if anything older than your calendar is obsolete, or so we are told.

That's not true of course, and there is a whole family of businesses that prove it everyday.

In Pomona alone, there are no less than 30 shops where the patron can pick up treasures made last year, last decade or last century.

They range from dealers in secondhand furniture selling for a few dollars to merchants offering genuine antiques for a whole lot of dollars.

Whether your taste is the Revolutionary War, Civil War or Cold War it can be satisfied.

For most the thought of the "used" merchandise store brings to mind charity-operated shops, turning discarded clothes and household items into productive work and nominal income for the handicapped, poor or other needy group.

Pomona has its share of those, such as thrift shops supporting Casa Colina Hospital, Le Roy Boys' Home, Lutheran High School in La Verne, Disabled American Veterans and the Salvation Army.

But there is also a rash of shops operated for profit.

What kind of people keep so many shops in business?

"We get all kinds. Some of the wealthiest people in the city shop here, and some of the poorest," said Alice McConnell, manager of the Salvation Army Store.

Other owners agree:

"Rich and poor alike. Young people, old people. It's hard to keep enough items in stock," said Audrey Crampes of The Attic.

"Business is very good right now. All types and kinds of people shop for antiques and there are more young people than ever before," said Jean M. Warden, whose shop bears her name.

The range of people who shop the secondhand and antique stores is surpassed only by the tremendous variety of merchandise to be found in the stores.

Secondhand dealers offer furniture that is less than glamorous, but is functional at a fraction of the cost of new.

"We get a lot of college students buying furniture for their apartment," explained Mrs. McConnell.

Antique stores, on the other hand, offer furniture that is sometimes more glamorous than functional, and the cost can be quite high in some cases.

"A lot of people think the cost is prohibitive, but it's not. You can furnish a home with good antiques as economically as you can buy new. And it's a better investment," said Ed Skoniecki of Gemini Antiques.

That covers the subject of furniture, but it hardly touches the myriad of knickknacks and decorative items to be found by the curious browser.

One almost needs a guide to explain what he is looking at.

"We call all those things 'collectables.' Almost anything old can qualify," said Skoniecki.

An example would be Depression glass. Manufactured during the Great Depression of the 1930's, the glassware was originally given away as an enticement to shoppers. Put bluntly, it was junk then, but not now since it has become a fad to collect.

One of the lures of collecting Depression glass is its tie to a specific historical period.

Dealers say part of the upsurge in their businesses in recent years has been the rekindling of the public's fascination with the country's past.

"That's what makes antiques so much fun," said Mrs. Warden.

The term "antique" is generally accepted to mean something at least 100 years old.

In some cases, such as Mrs. Warden's, that definition is further narrowed by the stipulation that items must have been handmade.

Many stores bearing the "antique" label carry a variety of merchandise from periods as late as the 1940's, however.

They acquire items in a variety of ways. Many attend auctions or estate sales. Others scour garage and yard sales, swap meets and just about any place used things can be found.

All of which takes time. But the business is not one for people in a hurry.

Mrs. Warden has had some items sit in her shop for years before they are sold.

Except for the charity or nonprofit operations, which rely mainly on a bank of volunteers, most of the businesses tend to be on the small side, operated generally by the owner himself and perhaps one other person.

The key to success, and many do not succeed, seems to be experience in recognizing what is what, and how much it is worth.

Often it takes the help of an expert.

In the case of a wooden clothes closet at Gemini Antiques, some help was needed to determine the age of the piece, said Skoniecki. An examination of the wood and the nails and other iron work placed the age at probably around 230 years.

Of all the city's antique stores, one of the most interesting would have to be Cullum's Auction Gallery on the Pomona Mall. On two or three Sundays a month as many as 250 to 300 people gather to bid on the hundreds of items to be auctioned that day.

"Items sometimes sell for $3 and others sell for several thousand," said Dean Cullum, son of the owner, Keith Cullum.

As a matter of fact, an auction will be held today beginning at 11 a.m. The auction will feature a whole load of furniture and other items that just arrived from Chillicothe, Mo.

Computer ripoffs are hurting you

The really clever crook doesn't physically break into an office or bank these days. He does it electronically.

The growing problem of computer break-ins has drawn record attendance at recent computer industry conferences, where stories like the following are told:

In New York City, a Neighborhood Youth Corps employe with access to the agency's computerized check-writing system had more than 900 unauthorized payroll checks printed for his friends, at a cost of $2.7 million to the taxpayers.

In Washington, D.C., a swindler substituted his own magentically marked checking account deposit slips for the blank ones a local bank kept on the counter. His account accumulated $250,000 in four days from other people's deposits. He then made a hefty withdrawal and hasn't been seen since.

In California, a young graduate student stole about $1 million worth of inventory from a utility company with the assistance of the company's own computer. He simply had the computer order equipment to various warehouses, where he picked it up in a disguised truck. He then sold the equipment through a dummy company.

Elsewhere, private computer files have been invaded by people adding huge amounts of money, in the form of personal credit, to charge accounts.

To protect computer-stored files, many companies have devised systems as tight as Fort Knox, and a whole new industry has grown up in the field of computer security. For example, a company called Sycor, Inc., of Ann Arbor, Mich., has come up with magnetic badges, key locks and even passwords to ensure that only legitimate personnel have access to specific file banks.

Despite all the safeguards, an estimated $200 million will be stolen from business this year by means of computer manipulation — an electronic rip-off that will inevitably be passed on to honest consumers in the form of higher prices.

A right distorted becomes a wrong

One of the most important decisions the U.S. Supreme Court will hand down in its 1976-77 session involves a challenge to its controversial 1966 Miranda ruling concerning the admissibility of evidence against criminal suspects.

A better case for overturning or severely curtailing Miranda could not have been presented to the high court than an appeal by the state of Iowa of a lower court's reversal of a conviction of the 1968 sex murder of a 10-year-old girl.

It seems that the suspect, one Robert A. Williams, had turned himself into Davenport police and was advised by two lawyers not to make any statements until he was returned to Des Moines. Police agreed not to question him.

On the way to Des Moines, however, an officer persuaded Williams to lead him to the girl's body before it was hidden by snow. Her parents, he said, "should be entitled to a Christian burial for the little girl who was snatched away from them on Christmas Eve and murdered."

This, the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals found, constituted "trickery" and the violation of the suspect's right to remain silent. It reversed his subsequent conviction.

In opening-day arguments before the Supreme Court, Williams' attorney, University of Iowa law professor Robert Bartles, charged that the officer's remark "was designed to play on the defendant's known religious background" to obtain information police were forbidden to seek, either by their agreement with Williams' lawyers or under the Miranda rule.

He did not pretend to claim that his client did not kill a little girl, but rather that to uphold the police action "would make it impossible for counsel to represent their clients in a sensible and effective manner in criminal cases."

What a distortion of the concept of a defendant's rights under the law. What an insult to the rights of all decent, law-abiding people.

If the Supreme Court abolishes Miranda, it will have been because of the outrageous behavior of the legal profession — of judges, who have freed accused murders not because the evidence against them was not conclusive but because in obtaining it the police had not conformed with every jot and tittle of the law, as the judges interpreted it. Of lawyers, who have forgotten that their essential duty is to see that their clients receive a fair trial, not to get them off by any means possible.

If the Supreme Court abolishes Miranda, it will have been because a scandalized and abused society is demanding that the legal system begin serving again the true end of justice, which is the identification and punishment of those who break society's laws.

It may be true that Miranda came about because of past abuses by the police. No one wants to return to third-degree methods of interrogation.

But Miranda has gone too far. Or more accurately, judges and lawyers have permitted it to go too far.

Protests new pet policy

Dear Editor:

I was distressed at reading that the Pomona City Council, at the request of Bruce Richards, director of the Pomona Valley Humane Society, has reduced the minimum holding time of animals from 72 to 42 hours before they may be adopted or destroyed, Mr. Richards' reason being that there was a 29 per cent increase in the number of cats and dogs collected the last year and the shelter filled to capacity.

The humane society was founded in 1950 when the population of Pomona was 35,000. Obviously, a shelter founded in 1950 could not be expected to handle and house the same number of animals 25 years later when the population had more than doubled, with the resulting increase in the number of pets owned.

License fees are charged pet owners so that a service will be provided in the event their pet is lost, that it will be taken to the shelter and held a reasonable amount of time to be redeemed. I hardly doubt that 72 hours is adequate, certainly not 42 hours. It is tragic that a humane society would adopt a policy that works against the very animals that they are supposed to protect. Instead of reducing the hours in which the pets can be held, the facilities should be expanded to accommodate the extra pets and allow for the increase in population. More pets adopted and redeemed mean more money to the humane society, a better public image, and less of a cost to the taxpayer in having to destroy and dispose of so many pets. Many people work and cannot take time off from their jobs and no doubt some would hope their pets could find their way home in 48 hours, particularly cat owners.

We are fortunate in Los Angeles that we have seven days to redeem our pets and I urge that pet owners request their city council to review this new order as not being in the best interest of pets and their owners.

Bureaucracy keeps growing

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter began his presidential campaign with a promise to cut the federal government down to size. Gerald Ford has agreed that the bureaucracy must be reduced to manageable proportions.

Whoever occupies the White House for the next four years, indeed, will try to fulfill this promise. He will barge around his oval sanctuary with an air of great authority. He will scribble terse commands on staff papers. He will bark orders into the ozones, pushing buttons to direct his voice to the right assistant. He will issue stern directives to all the faceless bureaucrats from sea to shining sea.

But the bureaucracy, propelled by a force stronger than gravity, will go on expanding. It is contrary to the nature of government to contract.

The process is much the same in government offices everywhere. An official complains that the work load is too heavy for him to carry alone. Since he has no intention of dividing the work with a rival who might replace him, he starts accumulating subordinates.

His subordinates, in time, gather up more subordinates for themselves. After a decent pause, these last subordinates will also claim the right to be moved up the totem pole and be replaced at the bottom. The result is what is known in the bureaucracy as a "staff buildup."

All this might be reasonable if the amount of useful work increased by the same ratio. It seldom does. The process of expanding a staff means extra paperwork to administer the extra employes; in addition, a great deal of work is now duplicated.

When the 12th man takes a document from the in-basket, he will read it and pass it on to the 11th official for his consideration. And so on until it finally reaches the director who rewrites the whole thing and sends it back down the ladder for further revisions.

In the old days, before the director acquired underlings, he would have handled the document himself. But now he is head of a section, adequately cushioned by a staff against shocks from higher up.

Each new President resolves to eliminate the fat, streamline the bureaucracy and get more efficiency out of the federal government. Richard Nixon's plan was to distribute the power of the central government to the 50 states. However, before he retreated to San Clemente, he had created 53 new executive agencies and commissions — a bureaucratic expansion greater than during any previous five-year period.

Gerald Ford proudly announced in a memorandum to the heads of all executive agencies that he had cut by 12.5 per cent the number of government forms that businessmen had to fill out. But the President was obliged to admit that the number of hours required to finish the forms had increased from 134.9 million to 138.5 million per year.

The federal machinery is also hopelessly clogged with superfluous committees and commissions, which operate like wheels within wheels. Nobody knows for sure exactly how many committees and commissions there are. Last year, Ford proposed still another federal commission to study the work of the existing commissions. This proposed commission has yet to be heard from.

Both Ford and Carter, echoing one another, have complained about the time-wasting, paper-consuming government committees. The candidates simply don't understand. The real objective of these committees is not to reach decisions but to avoid them.

Veteran bureaucrats are skilled at evading issues, shifting responsibility and diverting the work to someone else. The more committees and subcommittees there are to share the burden of decision, the less chance there is that any single bureaucrat will be blamed.

All too often, the true veteran in government service is the one who has proved his ability to maneuver problems safely "through channels" without making any decisions of his own. One senior official advises newcomers: "Look important. Act busy. Call conferences, lots of them. But don't make any decisions. If you are forced to do so, make sure they are in someone else's name."

A highly placed Interior Dept. official has admitted he has a special reason for always calling in others for consultations on policy matters. If, he figures, his ultimate decisions stir up unfavorable criticism, he can disclaim responsibility by saying he acted on the advice of others.

Paul Harvey

It pays to be poor

Young Paul is getting married this month.

Parents at such a time are likely to reflect on the similarities and the differences "back when we started housekeeping."

The sparkle in the eyes is the same, generation after generation, but the economic facts of life keep changing.

I know what diligence it is going to require for my son and his bride to make their house payments and car payments and otherwise to upkeep themselves — and it hurts me.

The young folks are too happy right now to care, but it hurts me to realize that they are both going to have to work to make ends meet. And that, both working, their take-home pay will be less then what a poor family in Chicago receives for doing nothing!

It pays to be poor.

Some politicians are making political hay of a Census Bureau report that "the number of poor people in the United States is increasing." The report identifies the "poverty level" as less than $5,500 per year. But that report, focusing on "cash income," is deceiving.

An average family with no cash income at all is hardly "poor" anymore.

For example. Take a typical family in the much publicized Cabrini-Green apartments in Chicago. This is "government housing."

Taxpayers subsidize the families housed therein at an annual cost of $6,500 per unit. (And that cost escalates every year.)

Average welfare for each family in that housing, project amounts, in round figures, to $3,500.

Now the poor family has an equivalent net income of $10,000 a year.

But that's not all.

Additionally, the average family in that housing project will receive food stamps, medical amd dental care, totaling another thousand dollars a year. This makes the cost to you, the taxpayer, of upkeeping a typical family in Cabrini-Green $11,000.

And that's not all.

Average cost for public housing construction in the United States is $30,000 per apartment.

Now we add the cost of constructing the housing plus the interest cost (to the taxpayer) and the several other welfare benefits which occupants can claim — and the poor family, for doing nothing, is being upkept by you at a cost of $13,000 per year.

It is difficult to construe any such family as "poor." Rather it is the medium-income taxpaying wage earner, who is poor.

For, because these welfare families pay no taxes, you'd have to earn more than $15,000 a year to end up with as much as they get for doing nothing.

Up to here, I'm documented with specific dollars and cents. But from here on, I have found nobody who can compute the less obvious costs of maintaining that poor family for these costs involve additional county and city aid which varies:

— Costs of building and staffing medical centers and day-care centers.

— The astronomical bureaucracy — federal, regional and local.

— The physical buildings and personnel in the several departments involved in the administration of unemployment and welfare including food stamps, housing, medical and educational aid.

A conservative guesstimate of these additional costs which taxpayers pay to support so-called "poor people" brings the total bill to approximately $20,000 per family per year.

Now you see why it was cheaper to care for the poor when we allowed volunteer charities to do it!

Politicians demand more for "poor people," it's time we remind them that the only poor people left in our country are those who work for a living!

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

The American way of life can sometimes be very confusing.

Our school authorities scream to high heaven because the taxpayers won't underwrite a sufficient number of school bonds to make it unnecessary to delete certain courses and cut down on classroom facilities — And yet, in Santa Rosa, the school board members are able to authorize a payment of $4 an hour to nude models working in adult art classes.

In Los Angeles County, our politicians are forever moaning about our lack of suitable public transportation — And yet, largely due to their efforts, we have a $2 million commuter train that isn't running, and $3.8 million dollars worth of unused Diamond Lanes on our Freeways.

In today's America, despite our much vaunted Medicare program, it is costing old folks more to pay for their first day in the hospital before Medicare takes over than their grandfathers had to put out for an entire hospital stay.

And even though in America the customer is always supposed to be right, maybe he would be better off if he weren't — so right handy at least. The first thing one of California's gas and electric companies decided to do when one of its power plant programs went kerpoot was to ask the State Public Utilities Commission to allow it to recover from customers the $5.5 million it had spent on the defunct project.

But confusing as it all may seem, the American way of life does have its compensating factors. Look at it this way through the eyes of a once quite disturbed female.

"Life has really taken on a new meaning," she gushed. "You see, I now have this fantastic new psychiatrist."

U.C.'s shady transactions

By EARL G. WATERS

Prop. 4 on the November ballot is a simple measure. It merely requires the University of California to adhere to the competitive bidding laws on purchases, contracts and real estate transactions which apply to all other state agencies. University President David Saxon and the regents argue that it is unnecessary because U.C. "now uses competitive bidding as a regular practice" and that the measure would "cut off U.C.'s use of efficient cost saving contracting and purchasing techniques".

To quote Saxon's own words, "Don't be misled!" The story behind Prop. 4 should convince voters of just how inefficient are U.C.'s "cost saving techniques" and how necessary the measure is. It dates back to 1967 when Senator John Stull, Prop. 4's author, first discovered some strange real estate dealings by the U.C. regents. It involved the purchase of 130 acres of La Jolla property on the pretext it was "essential to the development" of the U.C. San Diego campus.

Just how strange was the deal was subsequently disclosed in a report of the Auditor General who found the property had not been part of the master plan of UC San Diego; that the purchase price exceeded the appraised value; that the land had not been appraised by an independent agent; and that it could have been acquired, if it was needed, through the exercise of eminent domain for at least $500,000 less than the $2.8 million purportedly paid.

Actually, the Auditor General reported, the total cost to UC for the property would be $3,597,000 since it was being bought on time at 6 percent interest. It further found the price would be even more because the regents had agreed to pay the federal income taxes on the interest. The total cost then for property, which might have been bought for $2 million or less, came out at $5.2 million.

Stull's contention that the property was not needed was shared by adjacent property owners who retained San Diego attorney Robert Thorn. In a lengthy document Thorn reported: "We approached this study without any preconceived position on the matter. If any existed it was in favor of the University on the prevalent belief tha persons charged with the management of the Universit are, and should be, most honorable men. The conclusion hereafter set forth clearly demonstrate our naivete in thi regard."

Thorn's conclusions verified Stull's suspicions. The were that "the property was never part of the Universit master plan; no plan was developed for the property prio to acquisition nor since; an excessive price was paid; U officials suppressed facts of the sale; a conspiracy existed between the University officials and the sellers t deprive other LaJolla property owners of their vali rights."

It now seems quite apparent that the regents indulge in this multi-million dollar transaction merely to acquir the 8,000 square foot residence of the former owners as home for the chancellor. He now resides there rent fre For, as Stull says, "After much prodding they now hav sold 20 of the 34 lots." What ires Stull, however, is that t lots were sold without advertising for competitive bid And one of those favored in the secret sale was a U provost!

Stull further states "I believe the entire 130 acres, n just the subdivided lots, should be publicly advertised f sale and they should accept the highest bids."

It is because of the shady dealings at La Jolla that Stu a retired Navy commander, has provided the voters wi Prop. 4 to make certain that future real estate transactions by UC, as well as purchases and contracts, are op and above board in accordance with the sound polici which have been adopted by the Legislature for all oth state agencies. He urges a "yes" vote to insure UC co formance to the law.

Dog likes to hunt golf balls

DEAR DR. MILLER: Since we moved next to this golf course, Sally's favorite game has been to search out golf balls. I'm wondering if they're hard on a dog's teeth? — M.M.

DEAR M.M.: If she found one in mid-air, it certainly would be — and if she didn't catch it, it could be hard on some other part of her anatomy. At rest, a golf ball wouldn't be nearly as hard on her teeth as, say, a rock. Golf balls would, however, be hazardous to her health if she were big enough to swallow them, and did.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I was told it's dangerous to feed birds peanut butter in hot weather? — D.G.

DEAR D.G.: Some small birds may have trouble eating peanut butter any time of year. Some could handle peanuts as tiny broken pieces better than when they are mashed into butter. There may be less need for this type of high calorie food in warm weather and it could, perhaps, become rancid should it sit around a while. A Fall feeding station, whatever it's offering, can be bad if it induces migratory birds to linger longer than they otherwise should. Fall feeders are a definite hazard if the caretaker discontinues operations when storms and cold weather make management more work.

DEAR DR. MILLER: One of the reasons we moved so far out of the city was so we'd have a place to let our cats roam and play. My neighbors just warned me not to let them out, because she's lost two cats, seen one of them actually snatched from the yard by a coyote. What's to do? Wild animals like that shouldn't be killed, I realize, but what about my cats? Can they trap wild coyotes and move them off to new homes somewhere? — A.B.

DEAR A.M.: Coyotes are smart enough to survive, to thrive even in suburbs. It not only takes considerable skill to trap a crafty coyote but luck and lots of money to relocate one successfully. When Los Angeles wildlife officers moved coyotes 35 miles to a new home, it proved unacceptable to many. The coyotes simply trotted back to their old haunts. Satisfactory relocation centers "out there" are hard to find, so often it's euthanasia for these wild ones who try to compete with Man and his domesticated pets.

What people say

"You're talking to somebody who doesn't comprehend the values most people operate under. Greed and lust I can understand but I can't understand the values of definition and confinement. Definition destroys. Besides, there's nothing definite in this world."

—Singer Bob Dylan, in a recent interview.

"The patriotic obligation of all Chileans is to contribute to the end of the dictatorship. We do it as members of a nation and as inheritors of a tradition of freedom to which the Pinochets do not belong."

—From a New York Times article written by Orlando Letelier, former Chilean foreign minister, before he was killed by an exploding bomb recently in Washington.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're popular today, but a word of caution: You're apt to spend more than you can afford!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Keep your nose to the grindstone today. Idleness may lead you to butt into another's business — with unpleasant results.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might as well take the day off. Something depressing will take your mind off your work, causing you to do a poor job.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your real enjoyment comes from the family today. Friends will only be a disruptive influence and cost you money, besides.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Put your good ideas to work early today. Later, outside influences could dull your productivity.

VIRGO (Aug. 22-Sept. 23) There's money to be made today and you know how to make it. Being boastful, however, could change your luck.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) While you are very self-confident today, do avoid persons who have a glib tongue. They'll use flattery to get into your wallet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can realize some secret ambition today, but do it on your own. A partner would only frustrate your desires.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's likely you'll be in touch with someone distant today. Take care that daydreaming of the past doesn't interfere with your work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Ideas you have for changes at work are excellent today, but keep it strictly business in dealing with others. It's not a day to socialize.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The family won't be sympathetic to a joint venture you're contemplating. Choose another time to tell them about it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Roll up your sleeves today, as much can be accomplished. Avoid gabby friends if at all possible.

Your Birthday
Oct. 18, 1976

Some unusual opportunities will occur suddenly this year that could increase your income. You'll be willing to work hard.

Chintzy guests amaze her

Dear Ann Landers: This is not a run-of-the-mill inquiry. It concerns a very unique relationship.

My wife, a wonderful and remarkable person, died of cancer seven years ago. We had no children of our own but she left in my charge a 19-year-old daughter by a former marriage.

As the years passed, a deep friendship slowly blossomed into love. Recently we moved to a state which recognizes marriage between a man and his deceased wife's daughter. The question facing us now is whether or not to tell new friends that we were once stepfather and stepdaughter. I feel it is better for them to hear it from us than from another source. Yet I hesitate because I fear they might not understand that ours was a beautiful seven-year friendship that became a marriage. It was not a tawdry relationship preceded by premarital sex.

My wife and I are very happy. Because of the many years together as close friends, I know our marriage will last. My only concern now is whether to reveal to our friends that the woman who is my wife was once my stepdaughter. — Hesitant

Dear Hesitant: Beat the gossips to it. Better that your friends hear it from you than from another source. And you can bet your life they WILL hear it sooner or later. People just love "unusual" background information.

Dear Ann Landers: I've read many letters in your column from malcontents who want to sound off. They always say it makes them feel better. Now it's MY turn.

My husband and I gave our daughter a beautiful wedding. We invited 250 people and 277 showed up. But that's another story. What I'm writing about is the cheapness of some guests. We had an open bar from 8:00 p.m. till 1:00 a.m. and served a gourmet sit-down dinner.

How can a couple who own their own business put a $5 bill in an envelope and call it a wedding gift? And what about a check for $20 from a family of six? And an $18 gift from FOUR couples?

What a shocking experience! As long as I live I will never get over the chintziness of certain people. Can you tell me please what makes them that way? — Buffalo Reader

Dear Buff: I have no explanation. You must simply assume that they don't know any better, or perhaps they cannot afford to give more.

Dear Ann Landers: Can't help but comment on the letter from the clod who told you "not to rack your brain for an answer."

It seems he bowled a "few more frames than he'd planned," and his wife was not sexually responsive when he got home — two hours late.

Why couldn't the moron figure out that if he bowled less, MAYBE his wife would be friendlier and every aspect of their marriage might improve?

I was told by a so-called intelligent counselor that at my age (45) I should be glad my hockey, golf, squash, football, pool (you name it) husband comes home to eat and sleep!

Outside influences can affect grown-ups as well as children. Husbands who prefer to entertain themselves solo had better not wait for a better response from the little woman who was left at home. I'm signing myself — Known Better Days

Dear Better: You said a mouthful, honey. That so-called intelligent counselor sounds like a male chauvinist you-know-what.

Think YOU have problems!

I don't know what vistors to a hospital did before television. It must have been dreary for them to come into a room and talk to a sick person.

One cannot imagine how vital this hospital accessory has become until you check into a hospital. Recently, during my confinement as a patient, a friend of mine called and said, "I'll drop in on you this afternoon. Do you have color?"

"I'm a little pale," I apologized, "but . . . "

"Not you, you ninny. I mean is the TV set in color?"

"Sure, but I don't know what . . . "

That afternoon, she dropped in and for the next two hours cried in her knotted handkerchief through "The Young and the Restless," "All My Children," "Ryan's Hope" and the "$20,000 Pyramid."

During the credits, she turned to me, shook her head in disgust and said, "You think YOU have problems!" and left.

My children were even less subtle. One crashed through the door, snatched the remote control out of my hands and said, "What are you doing watching the Boston Pops when Starsky and Hutch are on?"

On his heels was my other son who grappled the controls out of his brother's hand and flipped to a movie, "The Bionic Nostril."

"I was sick today," I ventured.

"Tell us during the commercial."

"Wanta play with my bed? If you push the right button my back breaks in half."

"Shhh."

When their father walked in, he kissed my call button (his eyes never leaving the set) and said, "Boys, your mother doesn't want to watch this drivel," and flipped it to a ballgame.

"I met Robert Redford in X-ray today," I said.

"There's a lot of it going around," one of them mumbled.

"Oh hello, Doctor," I said as my physician entered the room.

"Could you keep it down?" said my husband. "There are men trying to play ball here."

"Maybe it isn't important," I whispered to my doctor, "but I have this invisible feeling that I'm here and no one can see me. Do you know what I mean, Doctor? Doctor? DOCTOR!"

They'll all be sorry when I get my own series.

Low thyroid and weight gain

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 37-year-old woman and right now I am 60 pounds overweight. My problem is an underactive thyroid.

One year ago I got to a point where I felt no life in my body. I was gaining weight rapidly, my skin color was a yellowish-gray and I had very bad pains and aches all over my body.

My doctor put me in the hospital and took tests. They showed I had an underactive thyroid. He put me on Proloid and Diuril and told me I had to take these medicines the rest of my life.

Doctor, please let me know what caused this as I was pretty healthy and very active. Could it be hereditary? Could it cause bladder or kidney problems? Will it get worse as I get older? Will this medication control it?

DEAR READER — Significantly low thyroid function can cause a gain in weight, along with changes in the skin, sometimes with some puffiness. Muscle aches are common in the presence of low thyroid function.

I must add one word of caution — most cases of being overweight are not caused by a low thyroid function but from eating too much of the wrong foods and not getting enough exercise. If a person with a normal thyroid takes thyroid for simple obesity it is not helpful at all. The normal thyroid just quits putting out the exact amount of hormone the person takes so the result is that the person actually has the same amount of thyroid hormone with treatment as he did without treatment.

In your case where tests have established that you do indeed have a low thyroid function, taking thyroid hormone brings the level of thyroid hormone back to normal. It literally compensates for the abnormal decrease in thyroid function.

Proloid is thyroid hormone obtained from hog thyroids. You should think of it as a replacement for your normal thyroid function. How much you need will depend upon your response and your tests. If your thyroid gland's function decreases still more you may need more hormone until you reach the point that the amount you take is equivalent to the amount that a normal thyroid gland produces.

What caused your problem? We know that a large number of cases with loss of thyroid function are caused by the body literally becoming allergic to itself. In this case the body develops antibodies that counteract the normal function of the thyroid gland and may cause it to degenerate. This is not inherited nor is it an infection by some virus or germ. Doctors call it Hashimoto's thyroiditis.

The Diuril is to help you eliminate fluid. It has no important relationship to your low thyroid function.

You will need to take thyroid hormone the rest of your life. Adequate amounts of medicine should control your problem. Do not change your dosage, however, without the recommendation of your doctor.

The condition will not cause bladder or kidney problems. If you are having difficulty in that area it is from something else.

To help you with your weight control I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

You need not be bogged down

A positive-thinking French woman who lived on the Bayou in Louisiana had to listen to her negative thinking neighbor ladies as they grumbled and complained about living "way out here on the lonely, desolate back country."

One day the positive thinker had heard enough. She reminded her disagreeable and disgruntled neighbors, "You live on the Bayou. The Bayou flows to the stream. The stream flows to the river. The river flows into the gulf. The gulf flows into the ocean. And the ocean touches the shores of the countries of the world. You can go anywhere from where you are."

You need not be bogged down. Wherever you are, whatever your situation, you can go anywhere. God can save you from your desolate and lonely island of living. With Him as your Guide, take a positive look at your future.

1887 water hole still producing

When the Santa Fe railroad men were building their tracks through Kansas in 1887, they needed water. So at Greensburg, they dug and dug and dug a well. It took two years. Turned out to be 110 feet deep and 35 feet across, the largest hand-dug hole in the world. Mr. Chet Switell, who told me about it, says Greensburg still has all the water it needs.

Can you name all 50 states and all U.S. presidents? Okay, now can you do it in 20 seconds? Tom Adams of Austin, Texas, says he can. That's wonderful! No doubt he's the world's fastest talker. I can say Mississippi and Martin Van Buren in 20 seconds with enough time left over to squeeze in Maine and Polk.

Statistically, a widower of 40 is likely to find a wife as a bachelor of 30, surprisingly.

OLD SMOKY

Q. "When we sing "On Top of Old Smoky," where are we singing about?"

A. That would be Clingman's Dome, the highest spot in the Great Smoky Mountains.

Among the nation's Jews, how many experts are there who can slaughter livestock in accordance with the shochtim ritual to produce kosher meats. So inquires a client. Only about 100. But they manage to so butcher approximately four million sheep, goats and calves a year.

Among the first-time investors in the stock market lately, the women outnumber the men considerably.

The Las Vegas airport collects far more from its slot machines than it does from its landing fees.

FIRST SAFETY STRIPE

World's first thoroughfare with a safety stripe down the center was a stone-paved road built under the supervision of the Spaniards between Cuernavaca and Mexico City more than 400 years ago. Actually, the stripe was just a line of light-colored stones. Scholars theorize it was supposed to separate the wagon haulers from the burro riders. Or maybe both from the pedestrians.

That expression "no love was lost between them" now is taken to mean that the two parties concerned didn't like each other at all. But that's not how the expression started out. Originally, it meant said two parties gave each other so much love that none was left over to lose.

Was just 99 years ago that the one-finger piano piece called "Chopsticks" was composed in Glasgow, Scotland. Lot of those single-digit parlor-trick tunes were written in the last century. But "Chopsticks" is the only survivor, I'm told.

Glad you asked

Q: Does Tiny Tim in his biography of the same name just published by Playboy Press talk about whether he was ever in our armed forces? Also what names did he "work" under before he made Tiny Tim famous? — Ms. Amy Fisher, Forest Hills, N.Y.

A: Though the contents of this "unauthorized biography" are credited to writer Harry Stein, the subject himself constantly chimes in to reveal his thoughts and recollections.

At the start of the Korean War (known then as a "police action"), Tiny reveals, he made fruitless efforts to enlist in any branch of the service. "I thought," he writes, "that there might be a place for me in the Air Force. Of course, there was no space program back then, but I was sure that sooner or later they'd be sending someone to the moon. And I thought I would make a perfect human guinea pig. I still think it would have been better to send someone like me to the moon instead of an astronaut, because I'd had no special training.

"Anyway I didn't get into the Air Force because I couldn't pass the mental test . . . A little while afterwards the Army called me. Everyone else was trying to get out, but I really wanted to get in — to get closer to the moon. I passed the physical . . . but then they took me to see the psychiatrist. He asked me if I went out with girls. I said, "No, of course not.' Then he asked me if I liked boys. I said, 'I like playing ball with them, naturally.'

"Next he asked why I wanted to get into the Army. I said, "It's because I want to go to the moon.' After that a lot of other doctors came over and talked with the psychiatrist who came over and told me my classification — I think it was 4-G. I said, 'What does this mean?' He told me, 'It means we'll call you if they attack New York!' "

Having run out of services in which to enlist, Tiny decided to tuck his ukelele into a brown grocery bag and started to audition to play and sing (while doubling as a change maker) at Playland Park in Rye, N.Y.

Still itching to get a job entertaining, he finally landed a spot at Hubert's Flea Museum — a 42nd Street honky tonk. He worked here for several years as Larry Love, the Singing Canary. "They were paying me fifty dollars a week, and for singing!" Tiny bragged to Stein.

"In 1960," he explained, "I changed my name to Darry Dover; I figured the '50s were past, and Larry Love should be left behind with them. Even today, I occasionally tell people my name is Sir Stafford Kripps. I also use the name of Amos Radcliffe. I wrote a letter recently to a girl and signed it Donald Vanderleigh. I love name changes."

The book jacket sums up this gentle soul as succinctly and honestly as he himself might. Asked what he'd like to see chieseled onto his own tombstone, he came up with: "Whether he was a misunderstood innocent, an infantile egotist, or an entertainment genius — Tiny Tim was never dull."

Neither is his "unauthorized biography."

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11746, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Marily and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can in their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

BEER AND POLITICS — Kansas State University students watch the first presidential debate on the large screen at Mother's Worry, a popular student hangout in Manhattan, Kan. The set is usually tuned to football.

Student apathy: Political activism directed into state, local elections

EDITOR'S NOTE: President Ford and Jimmy Carter haven't aroused much enthusiasm among college students, but state and local election contests are drawing some students into political activism.

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

With less than a month to go until the presidential election, many of the nation's college students apparently plan to mark their ballots: "Not Interested."

Two reasons for this year's apathy are lack of identifiable "youth issues" and failure of either President Ford or Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter to inspire students.

Political activity on campuses seems geared more toward local campaigns and issues, with the national election almost an afterthought, an informal survey shows.

At Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., Kathryn Ma said she organized an election "issues" meeting in her coed dormitory with modest success. But Miss Ma says there's little talk of politics at the dinner table.

"On the dorm level, it's mostly a social thing — like an election-night party with popcorn around the television set."

At Penn State in rural central Pennsylvania, walls are cluttered with posters for rival candidates in a hotly contested U.S. Senate race, but there isn't much activity for Ford or Carter.

Campus Republican leader William Reiber stands in a makeshift office where six students are conducting a political telephone poll.

"Unfortunately, the reason they're doing it is that they have been assigned to work here by a political science teacher," he said.

John Frazier, president of Penn State's Students for Carter, said: "Most students aren't interested in politics. They're interested in sports and beer."

At the urban University of Pittsburgh, campus Republicans and Democrats share the same small office, and both groups say they're lucky to get 75 volunteers on the 19,000-student campus.

"Today's student is less the crusader and more the standard American," says Tony Hillerman, assistant to the president at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. "Attitudes here toward the presidential campaign have reverted to early-1960s apathy."

Says H. Edwin Young, chancellor at the University of Wisconsin in Madison: "The excitement that other candidates produced in the past is just not there."

A national survey of voting habits released in early September showed about half the 150 million voting-age Americans (1) haven't registered and don't plan to, or (2) say their chances of voting in November are 50-50 or less, or (3) have voted in two or fewer past federal elections.

"The events of the last eight years have brought a good deal of student disillusionment with the political process," said Vic Petroff, student body president at Stanford. "I don't see widespread apathy, but I don't think we're going to break any voting records either."

Chris Pearson, student body president of the University of Washington in Seattle, said: "It's not so much apathy as being fed up with politicians in general."

Carolyn Booth, national youth director of the President Ford Committee, said there are "no identified youth issues this year," in contrast to 1968 and 1972.

In both previous years, she said, "There were special issues like the Vietnam War and ecology that the college voter was more concerned about than the rest of the country."

Eugene McCarthy attracted thousands of student volunteers with his antiwar stand during his unsuccessful bid for the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination. In 1972, many students supported George McGovern, the Democratic nominee who opposed the war and advocated domestic reforms.

Miss Booth said the Republicans have set up a network of volunteers on campus to attract uncommitted voters.

"Republican college students have a greater propensity to vote than others, but they're a minority — in some instances a very small minority," she said.

Janet Oliver, youth coordinator at Carter's campaign headquarters in Atlanta, said, "We don't have the overriding concerns on college campuses that we had 10 years ago."

To Clarissa Gilbert, president of the National Student Association, sees the problem as being that "no candidate has said anything about the main issues students are interested in.

"They want to hear about things like federal funding for higher education and jobs for after they graduate. Ford hasn't offered anything for students, and the best Carter has done is say a few things about amnesty and marijuana."

Among minor candidates, McCarthy, running as an independent, is "hitting the campuses very hard" to attract uncommitted voters, says his press secretary, James Yeager.

Pill has no effect on gender

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers say taking the pill has no apparent effect on which sex children will turn out to be, even though earlier reports said women who use oral contraceptives are more apt to have girls.

Harvard researchers say they found that of 6,109 children born to Boston area women who took the pill, the babies were divided almost evenly between boys and girls.

Their findings contradict a widely publicized report two years ago by a team of Hungarian doctors.

The Hungarians said that of 560 infants born to women who had taken the pill, 46 per cent were male. And of the 170 babies born to women who had been on the pill more than two years, only 34 per cent were boys.

The report was published in 1974 in the Lancet, a respected British medical journal. The Harvard rebuttal was scheduled to appear in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The latest study was directed by Dr. Kenneth J. Rothman at the Harvard School of Public Health.

"Their results don't conform with ours," Rothman said in an interview. "We had a much larger sampling."

Rothman said other scientists have speculated that the Hungarians' findings were simply a quirk that resulted because the women they studied were not representative of pill takers at large.

In their study, the Harvard group concluded: "It appears that oral contraceptives have no bearing on the sex of subsequent offspring."

Of the group they looked at, 3,064 of the new-born babies were boys and 3,045 were girls.

They said it did not make any difference how long the women had been taking the pill or whether they had stopped and then started again.

Although the Hungarian study received extensive publicity, Rothman said it did not appear to have had much impact on women's attitudes toward the pill.

"I don't think very many people believed it," he said.

Immunizacion contra flu

Un programa de inmunizacion contra la gripe para ancianos y adultos enfermos cronicos empezara el dia 25 de octubre en el Condado de Los Angeles.

Ocho clinicas empezaran dicho dia, llamado "Viernes del Flu", en el West End y dos clinicas estaran abiertas durante la semana de octubre 25 al 29 en el Valle de Pomona.

La primera clinica ofrecera una vacuna de doble proteccion contra dos clases de flu, el New Jersey ("swine") y el Victoria. Subsecuentes clinicas pudieran ofrecer solamente inmunizacion contra el flu "swine".

El programa de inoculacion en masa fur autorizado por el gobierno federal para precaver contra una epidemia gripal que causo miles de muertes durante 1918 en los Estado Unido.

Principalmente la vacunacion esta destinada a proteger las personas sobre 60 años de edad y aquellas que sufren del corazon, de los pulmones o de los rinones, pero ne es necesario prueba de elegibilidad para recibir la inoculacion gratis, de acuerdo con las autoridades sanitarias.

Mientras que la vacunacion esta planeada despues para el publico en general, hay problemas especiales que se deben aclarar antes que los programas para ninos sean puestos en practica.

El Sr. Abel Martinez del Centro Sanitario de Pomona dijo que los sintomas del flu "swine" son los mismos que los de las otras influenzas — fiebre, irritacion de la garganta y dolores generales y malestar. Sin embargo, dijo, que el ataque de este particular flu parece causar mas complicaciones.

"Son estas complicaciones las que pueden poner en peligro las vidas de los ancianos o de los enfermos cronicos," dijo el Sr. Martinez.

La clinicas que estaran abiertas en el Valle de Pomona el dia 25 de octubre desde las 10 de la manana hasta las 2 de la tarde son la clinica del Centro Municipal de San Dimas, en el 245 E. Bonita Ave., en San Dimas, y el Centro de la Comunidad en Washington Park, 865 E. Grand Ave., Pomona.

En octubre 27, dos clinicas funcionaran de 10 de la manana a las 2 de la tarde en el Taylor Hall, 1717 No. indian Hill Blv., Claremont, y en la First Christian Church, 1751 N. Park Ave., Pomona.

En octubre 29 se planean abrir clinicas en St. Joseph Catholic Church, 1150 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, y en la Bell Memorial United Methodist Church, 1747 S. Nogales St., Rowland Heights, tambien desde las 10 de la manana hasta las 2 de la tarde.

En adicion de las vacunas ofrecidas gratis por estos programas, se les han distribuido dosis gratis a los doctores privados, centros medicos, hospitales y casas de convalecientes. Los doctores privados pueden cargar algunos honorarios por administrar las vacunas en sus clinicas.

Mientras el Congreso apropio $135 millones para el programa de inoculacion este verano, el programa fue pospuesto durante tres meses por la oposicion de las companias de seguros a asegurar a los distribuidores de las vacunas contra posibles reclamaciones.

Sin embargo, las autoridades sanitarias aseguran que la vacuna contra el flu es tan segura como otra cualquiera. El riesgo individual de su reaccion no es mayor que el de otras inyecciones administradas para inmunizar contra otros virus gripales en el pasado.

Una linea telefonica especialmente dedicada a ofrecer informacion acerca de las clinicas vacunadoras ha sido establecida por el Departamento de Salud del Condado de San Bernardino.

Residentes del West End pueden obtener informacion llamando al 383-3956 entre las 9 a.m. y las 5 p.m. de lunes a viernes.

Las personas que vivan en el Condado de Los Angeles pueden obtener informacion llamando al Centro de Salud de Pomona, 623-6811.

Articulo estudiantil criticado

Un articulo polemico sobre control de la natalidad publicado en el periodico estudiantil de la Escuela Superior de Chino ha suscitado "olas de estupor" en el Directorio Escolar en su reunion del martes por la noche.

Delegados del Directorio Escolar han criticado severamente el articulo del numero del dia primero del "The Lariat" e indicaron que ellos pudieran reclamar alguna autoridad sobre futuras historias publicables en el periodico.

Varios administradores dijeron que el articulo era de "mal gusto".

La historia, titulada "Verdades acerca de la Pildora," contenia una interviu con una estudianta quien afirmo que la "poldora" era "casi el mejor metodo de control de la natalidad que conozco aparte de la vasectomia y el ligamento de los tubos."

El Delegado escolar Augustine Tapia se refirio especificamente a lo acotado y senalo que el articulo daba la impresion de que se debiera estimular a las estudiantas para que usaran la "pildora".

El Sr. Tapia llamo la atencion del Directorio Escolar para establecer una pauta a seguir en los articulos del periodico, "si los administradores no toman."

"¿Donde debemos fijar los limites a estos temas?", pregunto. "Hay implicaciones morales aqui¿Es que en el proximo numero van a tratar de "La verdad acerca de la marijuana?."

El Sr. Tapia agrego: "Nosotros estamos aqui por una razon — para educar a nuestros muchachos, no para sugerirles cosas".

El Sr. delegado Paul Peterson ataco el articulo como de "mal gusto". "Yo no critico a sus autores, sino la forma en que fue usado, para ser distribuido masibamente entre los estudiantes de las escuelas superiores."

El Sr. Peterson noto que el no habia ocultado temas escabrosos de sus propios muchachos, "pero hemos sido comedidos en la manera de presentarlos."

Kay Moore, anteriormente vice-directora de escuelas superiores, dijo al Directorio que los estudiantes estaban tratando de presentar "asuntos pertinentes para ellos".

Ella despues agrego: "Nosotros tenemos el problema de que estos problemas existen en nuestros medios escolares. Creo que tratar de dar la adecuada informacion a estos muchachos el vital. La sociedad ha cambiado y cuanta mas informacion adecuada dada a los estudiantes, mejor.

Rhead Lown, consejero del periodico, declaro que los maestros deseaban informar a los estudiantes de cietros hechos. "Ellos estan mal informados a consecuencia de algunos libros que leen acerca de determinados temas como enfermedades venereas, maternidad indeseada, suicidio y alcoholismo."

Liga Pro-vida explicara plan

Un plan de accion provida sera explicado en un mitin publico que se celebrara el dia 27 del presente mes de octubre a las 7:30 p.m. en la iglesia catolica Nuestra Senora de Lurdes en Montclair.

La reunion, que tiene el soporte de la Pomona Valley-West End Right to Life League, se celebra bajo los auspicios del Comite de Accion Congresional del Distrito 35 para proveer material educacional sobre los candidatos politicos.

El proposito del Comite es ayudar a los electores a interpretar como ellos deberian relacionar sus sentimientos, como grupo, a los legisladores. Se trataran de asuntos relacionados con la justicia social y las leyes laborales, pero principalmente se concentrara en ganar soporte popular para introducir una enmienda sobre la vida humana en la Constitucion de los Estados Unidos de America.

El Sr. Robert Reilly del Concilio Pro-vida de California hablara en la reunion, ademas de un abogado de Los Angeles que discutira los aspectos legales del aborto y de la enmienda sobre la vida humana.

Los miembros de la Liga dijeron que el comite tiene el soporte de las iglesias catolicas del Valle, pero que el comite no es sectario.

School buses made safer—

injured on school buses.

Why then do school districts buy the unsafe buses — those made by attaching a riveted, sheet metal bus body to a truck frame and motor purchased from an outside supplier? This type of construction, which is about half as expensive as building the bus as a unit, is used for 97 per cent of the school buses made today. The remaining three per cent are safer. They are mostly buses made as a unit, much like the commercial buses that carry passengers cross-country.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., noted during a 1973 congressional hearing that school administrators usually purchase buses from the lowest bidder. "So long as there are not adequate standards, then the bids come in for a school bus but not necessarily for a safe school bus," Percy said.

Between 30,000 and 35,000 school buses are made each year. Most cost $12,000 to $15,000. The new regulations are expected to add $1,200 to the price of each bus.

The NTSB reported in 1971 that many injuries in two Alabama school bus accidents were caused by "the laceration of child passengers by exposed edges of the bus interior sheet metal, including the ceiling . . ."

There are six major manufacturers of the body-on-frame type of school bus — Blue Bird Body Co. of Fort Valley, Ga.; Carpenter Body Works, Mitchell, Ind.; Superior Coach Division, Lima, Ohio; Thomas Built Buses, High Point, N.C.; Ward School Bus Co., Conway, Ark., and Wayne Corp., Richmond, Ind.

Most of them still use numerous sheets of metal to form the skin — a practice criticized by the NTSB in the 1971 report, which said the panels were poorly fastened. Spacing between rivets was so wide — four to 10 inches — that it resisted "wind and weather but the joint could contribute little to structural strength."

Wayne Corp. now uses sheet metal panels that run the length of the passenger compartment. This eliminates many joints and produces a safer cabin compartment.

Ward has been marketing since 1971 a safety bus containing more than twice as many rivets than in pre-1971 buses. Other manufacturers are using better fasteners and more rivets than they did nine years ago.

The principal concern about the adequacy of the new regulations concerns a loophole in the rule designed to keep the sheet metal skin panels from breaking loose in an accident.

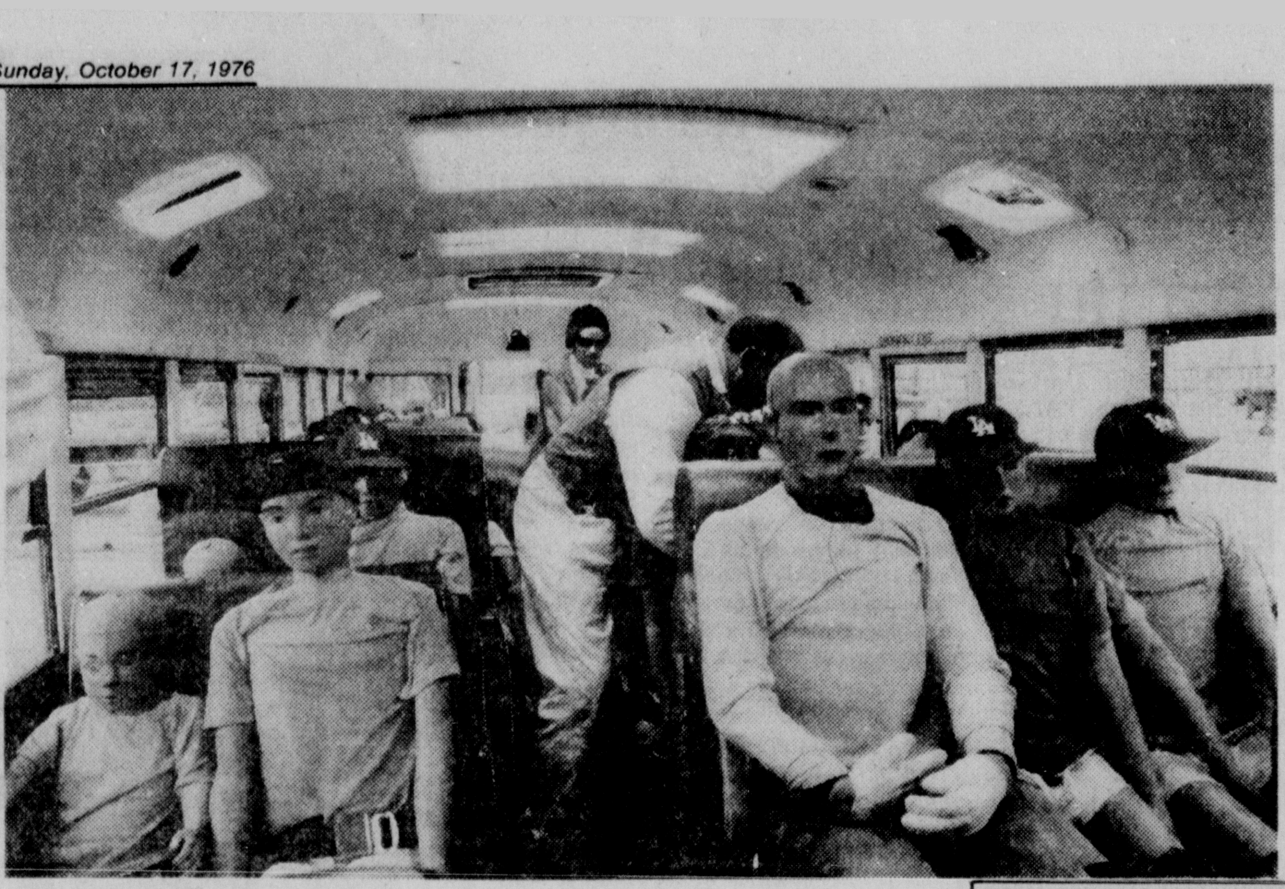
The regulation says the joints between panels must have 60 per cent of the strength of the panels. But it doesn't say how strong the panels themselves must be. So manufacturers can meet the standard by doubling the number of rivets at the joints — as NHTSA intends — or by reducing the strength of the panels. "You can make those panels out of tissue paper and meet the standard," said one expert.

Guy Hunter, an NHTSA specialist in school bus construction, said the agency was aware of the loophole when the regulation was issued, but left it in to give manufacturers leeway in future designs.

He also said the loophole can't be used because strong panels are needed to make the buses rigid enough to pass the rollover test.

The regulation designed to keep school bus roofs from collapsing when buses overturn requires each roof to be strong enough to hold 150 per cent of the bus's weight. That's 50 per cent stronger than most school bus roofs today. But these roofs usually collapse during a rollover accident not because weight is put directly on them, but because side pressures bend the roof columns, federal officials say.

The National Education Association and other school organizations have tried in the past to produce uniform bus safety standards. Some states have adopted some of the recommendations made — among them Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Connecticut, New York, Ohio and Wisconsin.



SAFETY SEATS — Dummies occupy school bus seats of various heights in preparation for a crash test in Los Angeles. Tests helped to lead to new requirements that school bus seats be padded and at least 24 inches in height. Drivers claim seat backs any higher, as safety experts would like to see them, would cause discipline problems.

Balloon mail

The French created the first postal system of modern times in 1450 and launched air mail a century ago. A balloon carrying 500 pounds of mail soared aloft from Paris on Sept. 23, 1870, during the Franco-Prussian War. Because the free-floating balloons landed in the Prussian camp, Parisians soon switched to pigeons. Before Paris capitulated, the birds delivered some 115,000 messages to the surrounded city despite German efforts to intercept the mail with hunting falcons.

Pacific 'greets' errant suspect

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police chasing a robbery suspect in Los Angeles couldn't have been too worried they'd get their man because when you're in California you can only drive so far West before you run into the sea.

And that's almost what happened to James Nelson. Police said the man tried to elude them, but he made the decision to head west toward the Pacific Ocean.

Fifteen miles later his car smashed through an iron guard rail and got caught in the sand just a few feet from the water.

He was apprehended without further incident and booked for investigation of armed robbery.

Life story continues

Hellman fascinating

By SAMUEL I. BELLMAN

SCOUNDREL TIME. By Lillian Hellman. Introduction by Garry Wills. Little, Brown. $7.95.

Lillian Hellman, the enormously successful American playwright presents here another installment of her autobiography. Earlier installments — "An Unfinished Woman," which won the National Book Award, and "Pentimento: A Book of Portraits" — revealed an extremely articulate woman who has spent most of her life among the literary greats and well-knowns, getting involved, and going where the action is. (These cliches are intentional; they suit the subject.)

Samuel I. Bellman is Professor of English at Cal Poly, Pomona.

Married long ago, to the Hollywood and New Yorker writer Arthur Kober, Miss Hellman devoted 30 years or more to being the consort of one of the two deans of American detective fiction, Dashiell Hammett. There were interruptions in their relationship, but Hammett was the big person in her life, as her personal accounts make clear.

There was a political side to her nature (certainly, there was a political side to Hammett's nature), which she discusses in "Scoundrel Time," attempting to show it in the best light. But the very accusatory picture of her and her literary politics, drawn by Meyer Levin in his 1973 autobiography, "The Obsession," must also be taken into account.

"Scoundrel Time," a short (155 pages plus 12 pages of photos) but deeply fascinating book, is concerned with a very bad time in Miss Hellman's life: The early 1950s and the Communist witch hunts of Senator Joe McCarthy and the House Unamerican Activities Committee.

It was bad for her to a great extent because Hammett suffered for his political affiliations — he was jailed for contempt in 1951, because he refused to name contributors to a Civil Rights Congress bail fund: Miss Hellman pleads ignorance as to whether he had actually been a Communist

It was bad for her also because of her political naivete and her "free associations" — which played right into the hands of people like Senators McCarthy and McCarran, and Representatives Nixon, Walter, and Wood, "men who invented when necessary, maligned even when it wasn't necessary."

These men were, in her opinion, political opportunists who believed little or nothing of what they said. But "the time was ripe for a new wave in America."

Disconnected, much of the story is, and selective in the extreme. One of the most fascinating parts of this narrative of Miss Hellman's harrassment by Communist-hunters in the government concerns her doing a script for Alexander Korda in England, in this period of the early 1950s.

There is a CIA cloak-and-dagger episode: Miss Hellman being tracked and snagged by mysterious strangers, fair-seeming "friends" and spurious offstage personages (particularly in Rome where she lived temporarily). The matter involved a possible Congressional subpoena (her political associations did make her vulnerable), her fears and insecurities about what might happen to her, and the success of the Korda venture.

Oddly enough, only the last turned out badly: He went bankrupt and defaulted on his obligations to her; as for the CIA bringing her to book, through its network of "agents" no such bad luck.

Not much, really, is said about Hammett's life with her during this period; his income was cut off by the Internal Revenue Department, and he suffered mightily in other ways, but there is no indication about what chemistry brought them together in the first place, or what chemistry kept them together, more or less, for over 30 years.

One of the high points of this really interesting book, which I was unable to put down until I'd gone through every word, is the long, very sophisticated (politically and biographically) introduction by Garry Wills.

Research about 'Frankenstein' mostly 'rehash'

By R. E. MORSBERGER

IN SEARCH OF FRANKENSTEIN, by Radu Florescu. Warner Books, $1.95.

"Frankenstein," written in 1816 by Mary Shelley, in the heart of the Romantic movement, is not only the first science fiction novel but the progenitor of a spawn of adaptions, imitations, and variations in print, on stage, and on the screen.

(Robert E. Morsberger is professor of English at Cal Poly, Pomona.)

Now Radu Florescu, co-author of "In Search of Dracula," goes searching again, for the origins, ancestry, and progeny of Frankenstein. His book succeeds both better and less well than its predecessor.

"In Search of Dracula" was a sprawling study with less intrinsic interest but it did uncover a mass of unfamiliar material and revealed Count Dracula as Vlad the Impaler in the 16th Century.

The Frankenstein story, however, is already well known and has been worked over in numerous critical studies. Thus Florescu simply rehashes for a popular audience the life of Mary Shelley, the careers of her literary parents, William Godwin and Mary Wollstonecraft, and the more gossipy aspects of Mary's relationship with Shelley, Byron, and Polidori, whose contest inspired by a dark and stormy evening on Lake Geneva in the summer of 1816 resulted in Mary's novel, written when she was barely 19. Florescu retells all this in a somewhat florid manner, making the most of every nightmare and Gothic detail.

The only original material in his search is a description of the actual Castle Frankenstein near Darmstadt on the Rhine, an account of the more notable members of the family over its thousand-year history, and the story of Konrad Dippel (1673-1734), an alchemist who was born at Castle Frankenstein and consequently called himself Frankensteiner, and who, according to legend, dabbled in black arts, was a body-snatcher, tried to discover the secret of immortality, and to create life through chemical means. The research for this section was done by Matei Cazacu, a Romanian scholar who had assisted Florescu in his study of Dracula.

Florescu cannot prove that Mary Shelley visited Castle Frankenstein (though she was in the vicinity in 1814) or knew of the Dippel history, but here and elsewhere he offers conjecture instead of proof and then proceeds to use it as if it were unquestionable.

Too many of his conclusions are based upon unproven assumptions. He concedes that the main justification for yet another book on Mary Shelley and Frankenstein is a "hunch," but even if the hunch is correct, the career of Konrad Dippel in no way accounts for Mary's literary treatment of Frankenstein nor for the much richer intellectual background of the novel.

"In Search of Frankenstein," though well documented, offers little to literary scholarship, but fans of the novel will find it a useful and intriguing work. It is lavishly illustrated with portraits of the Shelley circle, old prints and paintings of locations of the novel and of places associated with it, and illustrations from various editions of the novel and from stage and film adaptations.

There are chapters on the stage and screen career of Frankenstein and a detailed filmography. Friends of Frankenstein will be glad to add the book to their collection.

Hemingway: a personal view

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Book Critic

PAPA: A PERSONAL MEMOIR. By Gregory H. Hemingway. Houghton Mifflin. $7.95.

So much has been written about Ernest Hemingway, that the appearance of yet another book dealing with the celebrated writer tends to frighten even the most enthusastic Hemingway admirer away. Don't let that happen with "Papa: A Personal Memoir."

Gregory H. Hemingway has written a most interesting little book here and it should be read by Hemingway fans as well as those interested in the touching story of a boy and his father.

Gregory is the son of Pauline, the second of Hemingway's four wives. He was their second son and last child. His story considers the times he actually spent with his father and treats the elder Hemingway as "father" and not as "literary artist." Young Hemingway knew, of course, that his father was a writer but the things that he remembers best are being taught how to shoot by his father, being saved from a shark by him, the pleasant days and pleasant nights in such places as Key West, Bimini, Sun Valley and Havana.

Gregory's earliest remembrances are rather vague, as they should be, since he was quite young then, but memory grows stronger as the boy grows older and the sections dealing with Gregory in his teens are the best, often touching, often funny, always memorable.

Of especial interest are Gregory's thoughts on his father's death and the events that led up to it. The ambivalent feelings he has he resolves honestly and courageously with, "My father was never feeble in any way in his youth, either intellectually or physically, and when he became so he refused to accept it. I think he showed courage in accepting the only option left."

This is really a most affecting memoir.

Poly knocks off NAU

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

FLAGSTAFF — Arizona football teams should know better than to underestimate California opponents.

Cal Poly enjoyed its first win of the season here Saturday afternoon to ruin Northern Arizona's unbeaten record before a standing-room homecoming crowd of 12,800, the largest home attendance in NAU history.

And the big hero for Poly is a hometown freshman.

Jim Middleton of Pomona blocked a 28-yard field goal attempt by Tom Jurich with 38 seconds left on the clock to perserve a hard-fought 9-7 victory for the Broncos.

Poly had called two consecutive time outs to make the Lumberjacks a little more nervous and the strategy worked as the hike from center was high with Middleton doing the rest.

The freshman cornerback jumped over the Poly defensive line and stopped the kick with his chest.

"I had talked with our nose man and guard about going over the top," Middleton said. "It hit me on my chest but I don't mind. I knew it was all over then."

Despite the close call, Poly did a fine job in attacking the Lumberjacks' strongest weapon. NAU entered the game as the nation's second-best team in rushing defense in allowing only 59 yards per game.

But the Broncos attacked on the ground right away and ended up with 198 yards on the ground with Mark Sanders gaining 91 on 21 carries and Ron Jones adding 72 on seven.

Quarterback Leo Costa also had a banner day, in completing nine of 11 passes for 87 yards. Poly also played a turnover free game with no interceptions nor fumbles lost.

Kick-blocking was also a big factor. Besides Middleton's heroics at the end of the contest, the margin of victory came on a blocked punt in the first quarter when Max Weischedel blocked Bob Martin's punt out of the end zone for a safety.

"Our kicking game won it for us," said a beaming Andy Vinci, the Poly coach. "This was a big win for us, and we are looking for four more big wins the rest of the season."

Poly struck right at the Lumberjacks on its first offensive series by marching 88 yards on 12 plays, with Costa scoring on a six-yard run. All of the yardage came on the ground except for a key 14-yard pass from Costa to tight end Brad Carter on a third down and seven situation on the NAU 30.

Three minutes later, Weischedel blocked the punt for a safety to make it 9-0.

It was up to the Poly defense to hold off the Arizonans the rest of the way

Northern Arizona scored its only touchdown with 10:37 left in the half when quarterback Herb Daniel, the former Citrus College signal caller, scored from the one two plays after completing a 42-yard pass to Tyrone Peterson.

The Lumberjacks threatened twice in the second half only to have turnovers stop their drives.

Freshman Beno Lee intercepted a Daniel pass on the Poly three-yard line after the Axers had marched 45 yards.

NAU got close again early in the fourth quarter but Weischedel recovered a Carl Golden fumble on the Bronco 23.

NAU's last drive started with 5:03 left in the game on its own 20, after Armando Herrera's 55-yard field goal attempt fell short.

Poly had the Lumberjacks in deep trouble on a third-and-eleven situation and Daniel trapped around his five-yard line. His incomplete pass might have been called intentional grounding, but instead Poly was cited for defensive holding to give the host team new life.

Daniel took advantage of the situation in completing three consecutive passes with Golden breaking loose for a 17-yard run to set up the final field goal attempt.

Poly enjoyed a 285-276 total offensive advantage with NAU gaining 158 on the ground and 118 through the air.

The Broncos, now 1-4-1 for the season, will return home to host USIU next Saturday at Kellogg Field after three straight weeks on the road out of state.

NAU, which was dreaming of national rankings, dropped to 4-1, still needing two victories for its first winning season in seven years.

Reds win but lose Gullett

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds successfully opened defense of their World Series crown with a 5-1 triumph over the New York Yankees Saturday, but they lost their top pitcher in the process.

Left-hander Don Gullett suffered a dislocated tendon in his right ankle while facing New York's Mickey Rivers in the eighth inning.

He "felt something pop" in his right ankle, but continued to pitch. "It popped again when I pitched to Roy White," Gullett added, but when White, the next batter, singled for New York's fifth and last hit, Gullett was removed from the game.

Reliever Pedro Borbon finished up.

The young pitcher then was taken to a hospital, where X rays of the injury disclosed a dislocated peroneus longus tendon in the ankle. It was placed in a cast and will remain there for six to seven weeks, a team spokesman said.

Gullett's injury placed a damper on the opening-game triumph, one started by Joe Morgan's home run off Doyle Alexander in the first inning.

"They're a fine club," the Reds second baseman said after the game. "We're an exceptional club. That's the difference."

Morgan got the "exceptional" Reds off and running in Saturday's contest, triggering a blitz of extra-base hits which carried Cincinnati to the easy victory.

The Reds also had two doubles and two triples. The five extra-base hits were the most a Cincinnati team ever has accumulated in a World Series game. Now you know why they call this club the Big Red Machine.

Morgan's homer came on a fastball from Alexander, who doesn't throw many of those.

"Alexander lets you hit the ball," said Pete Rose, the Reds' leadoff man. "And we did, all over the place."

Morgan said he knew his ball was a homer right away. "I'm a little guy," said the 5-foot-7 second baseman. "To hit a homer, I've got to get all of it. When I do, I know."

There is a certain psychological edge in putting the other team behind early, said Morgan.

"It's always important to be first to score in a World Series or playoff or All-Star game," he said.

"When you do, it means they already have their job cut out for them. They've got to get somebody on base. They've got to get something going. And if you're going to score early, I can't think of any better way to do it than a home run."

The game went Cincinnati's way, and so did the only controversy.

That arose when baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn withdrew permission for the Yankees to use walkie-talkie communications between a scout in the upper deck and a coach in the dugout. The Yankees wanted to use such a system to help position defensive players. The commissioner's office withdrew permission after learning that the scout was operating from the press box area instead of a regular seat in the upper deck.

No defensive positioning could have helped the Yankees or Morgan, unless they placed their right fielder in the stands, where his home run landed.

Trailing early was nothing new for New York. The Yankees had fallen behind in each of the last four American League playoff games against Kansas City. Each time, they wiped out those Royals' leads, and they quickly wiped out the Reds' edge this time.

Lou Piniella, New York's designated hitter, opened the second inning with a double to right field. He moved to third as pennant hero Chris Chambliss grounded out, then scored on a long fly ball to center field by Graig Nettles.

Cesar Geronimo, reputed to have baseball's best outfield arm, grabbed the ball on the running track in front of the wall, but he would have needed a rifle to cut down Piniella at the plate.

Mounties rally for big win

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Grossmont College was struck down by a ghost Saturday night at Memorial Stadium in Walnut.

Mt San Antonio, apparently given up for dead by the visitors from El Cajon when the Griffins forged ahead 24-12 late in the final quarter, came from nowhere to score two long touchdowns in the final six minutes to defeat Grossmont 25-24 and take command of the South Coast Conference standings.

The Mounties incredible win, combined with Orange Coast's 19-14 upset of San Diego Mesa, leaves MSAC atop the SCC pack by themselves with a perfect 2-0 record. The Mounties, off to their best start in years, are now 5-0-1 on the year and in the thick of the running for the Junior Rose Bowl bid.

Mal Eaton's team had nearly as many heroes as there were maroon and white jerseys on the field Saturday night.

In the final result, these names stood out above the rest of the Mountie squad: Quarterback Steve Taylor, entering the game late in place of an exhausted Brian Bethke, cranked up and hit flanker Chauncey Abney with a 73-yard pass and run play which netted MSAC a key touchdown and cut the deficit to 24-18 with six minutes remaining. Mike Hill, another Pomona High product, electrifying the Memorial Stadium crowd with a brilliant 53-yard punt return moments later, knotting the score at 24-24.

Art Aragon, atoning for two earlier blocked PATs, booting home the game-winner in the face of an all-out charge by the Griffin defense. And, in the final minute, defensive back Nap Sparks picking off a last-ditch pass at the Mountie goal line to seal the dramatic comeback victory.

"It was a hell of a game and a hell of a win," an elated coach Eaton said afterward in the bedlam of the Mountie dressing room. "It took a total team effort tonight and everyone of our guys came through. We never gave up, we believed we could beat them even when we fell behind in the fourth quarter. We really earned this one."

The brilliant win for MSAC had to make believers out of Grossmont and the rest of the SCC. The Mounties, picked to finish dead last in the conference prior to the start of the year, are now in the drivers' seat.

In a see-saw ball game, it was the Mountie depth and determination that paid off in the end.

QB Taylor, who had thrown only five passes all year prior to Saturday's game, was put into the pressure cooker late in the clash when starting signal caller Bethke, who finished the night with 157 yards in total offense, simply ran out of gas.

Taylor fired up an interception the first time he threw the pigskin, but given a second chance when the Mountie defense held Grossmont, he more than made up for it.

With the hosts camped on their own 27 and time running thin, Taylor put the ball up and hit a flying Abney at the Griffin 30 and the reserve MSAC receiver took it in the final 30 "stripes" to get the Mounties right back in the game.

That MSAC defense, tough in the clutch all year, held again following the Taylor-to-Abney bomb and forced another punt. Kicker Dan Melville got off a line-drive boot which Hall, a freshman defensive back, fielded on the run at the MSAC 47 and behind a wall of blockers streaked down the right sideline 53 yards for the tieing TD as the home crowd went wild. That put the pressure on Aragon, but he responded with a perfect kick through the uprights to give MSAC the lead for the first time all night with 4:59 remaining on the clock.

Griffin QB Freitas, who finished the night with 16 completions in 29 tosses for 246 yards, came right back to march his team from their own 22 to the MSAC 17. However, a key holding call on the visitors pushed it back to the 32, from where Grossmont, disdaining the field goal, threw three straight passes. All three were incomplete thanks to a heavy Mountie pass rush, and on the third throw Sparks leaped in front of the intended receiver and came down with the ball in the end zone.

Taylor promptly ran the remaining time out on three QB keepers and the Mounties had one of the biggest wins in their grid history.

Dana Hutchinson, with two short runs, had given MSAC its first two scores in the first half. Grossmont countered with two TD passes by a run by Leroy McGee and Paul La Rocca's 40-yard field goal to take that 24-12 advantage in the final stanza.

The Griffins had the slight edge in total offense, with 389 yards to the Mounties' 369. Both teams had 21 first downs in the offensive-minded contest.

Taylor and Bethke combined to complete six of 10 passes for 146 yards. Led by Bethke's 84 yards and Hutchinson's 49, MSAC had 221 yards on the ground in the game. Top ball-carrier for the Griffs was McGee with 99 yards on 22 totes.

Cold expected

CINCINNATI (AP) — Near-freezing temperatures are forecast today for the second game of the World Series between the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Yankees.

Frost warnings were issued by the National Weather Service for Saturday and tonight, with a high in the upper 40's this afternoon.

Bobby Unser runs away from crowd

RIVERSIDE, Calif (AP) — Bobby Unser, who easily won the pole position, motored away from the struggling crowd behind him and won Saturday's 76-mile International Race of Champions event, second in the four-race $200,000 series.

The third race follows today, after which the field of 12 will be pared to the top nine for the finale at Daytona Beach Fla in February

Unser, who led much of the first race last month at Michigan before spinning out, finished 3.6 seconds ahead of David Pearson, who had started in the other front row spot. Unser led all the way, with Pearson always second But the positions the rest of the way down changed frequently

Unser averaged 97.754 miles per hour.

Unser predicted that today's race would not be a good one for him, since the starting order will be inverted according to Saturday's finish.

"I know if I start up front I have a tremendous advantage I used it today as much as I possibly could," he said "But starting in back is going to be awful rough I'll have to have an awfully fast car to win from there

"Passing anyone is going to be hard, there are no rinky dinks here

"I had a good day today but I know tomorrow's going to be a bad one."

Richard Petty finished third, followed by Al Holbert, Johnny Rutherford and Buddy Baker One lap down were Al Unser, A.J Foyt and Cale Yarborough Gordon Johncock was two laps down. Jody Scheckter crashed on the 22nd of 30 laps. James Hunt withdrew.

Baker, who was embarassingly slow the whole race, improved steadily in the standings as other drivers knocked themselves out of contention. Baker, who won the series opener at Michigan, leads Rutherford in overall points now, 29-27 Unser is third at 23, followed by Petty with 22 Defending champion Foyt is sixth with 19.

Scheckter and Johncock spun in separate incidents during the first half of the race One caution period was ordered to clean up the debris they left in turn six Al Unser spun on the restart when three cars tried to run side-by-side in the cramped ninth turn Foyt and Yarborough lost time to have flat tires changed.

Foyt said he pitted because Al Unser told him one of his tires was going down. He was less than happy to learn he had been penalized a lap for stopping during the caution period.

Johncock and Yarborough are the ones in most danger of missing the cut, with nine and eight points each. Hunt is already out of it.

Al Unser paces qualifications

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Al Unser set fast time Saturday in qualifying for today's Formula 5000 road race, edging series leader Brian Redman by two-tenths of a second

Unser's average speed around the 2.547-mile Riverside International Raceway road course was 125.718 miles per hour Redman was clocked at 125.398.

Next were Alan Jones at 125.267 and Jackie Oliver at 125.051 Jones and Oliver are the only ones with a chance to overtake Redman for the title. Redman needs only to finish sixth or better in the season finale to clinch his third straight championship.

Today's race will be preceded by the third race in the International Race of Champions series.

Extra points lift Wolfpack

By MARK GRIP
PB Correspondent

Having a good placekicker paid off for Claremont High, Saturday night at Citrus College in Azusa.

The host Wolfpack made two Jerry Van Zee conversion kicks stand up as the difference in a 14-12 squeaker over winless Pomona in San Antonio League action.

Claremont scored all the points it needed in the first half and fought off a vain Red Devil comeback.

Pomona came back with 12 points in the third quarter, but failed on both of its conversion attempts.

The visitors made a last run at the Pack with 5:44 left in the game following a punt. Minus 26 yards in penalties hampered the drive which ended when safety Steve Tipping intercepted quarterback Kevin Johnson's pass at midfield with 2:32 left to play.

That was all she wrote for Pomona as Claremont successfully held onto the ball to run out the clock for its second league win against one defeat and a 2-3 overall record.

Pomona dropped its third consecutive SAL contest and is winless in five starts on the year. The Devils have lost all three league games by two points each time out.

Halfback Kevin Britton was the man who put the bulk of the points on the board, scoring both Claremont touchdowns.

The 6-foot-2, 170-pound sophomore speedster rushed for 79 yards on 13 carries.

Britton first hit paydirt with 2:35 left in the first period. The speedy back broke off-tackle and scampered 25 yards untouched for the score. The senior kicking specialist, Van Zee, booted his first point after for a 7-0 lead.

Britton again found the end zone on another off-tackle run, this time a 36-yard gallup at 8:42 of the second stanza. Van Zee added the PAT.

The Devils came out of the locker room at halftime fired up and scored at 8:53 of the third quarter.

Pomona took the opening kick on its on 40 following a 30-yard return by William Warren, and drove six plays to score on an off-tackle play of its own.

John Bullock, from a flanker position, busted through for a 31-yard scoring romp. Brian Donahue's extra point kick missed.

The Devils came within two points with just over a minute left in the third period, as fullback Rick Fairman bulled his way over from two yards out for the TD. Trying to make up the difference with a two-point conversion, Johnson threw incomplete to finish the game's scoring.

Fairman led all rushers, coming alive for 62 yards in the second half and finishing with 82 yards on 17 carries.

Britton was second, followed by teammate Grant Warhurst.

Bruins waltz past Cougars

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — For Washington State, it was strictly a case of "Nolo Contendere."

The Cougars left their game and their emotion in Seattle's Kingdome where they had battled USC so fiercely one week earlier.

In something that couldn't be called a game or contest and was even more one-sided than the score would indicate, UCLA's fourth-ranked Bruins overwhelmed WSU, 62-3, Saturday night in the Coliseum before 35,508.

It was so one-sided that even the UCLA fans were bored and began streaming out after three quarters and the Uclans ahead, 49-3.

As for being any kind of a test, the Bruins would have gotten more out of a scrimmage. They scored almost at will even with second and third stringers.

On defense, it was the same. Even with third stringers in the game, WSU could not score a touchdown. UCLA coach Terry Donohue began using his second-line players in the second quarter after the Bruins had jumped off to a 28-0 lead in the first quarter.

"It was a great win," said UCLA coach Terry Donahue. "I'm just sorry the score had to get out of hand. We weren't pouring it on, we played everybody we had."

WSU coach Jackie Sherrill termed it, "just one of those things. It started wrong when the opening kickoff went only 33 yards."

Asked to compare UCLA to USC, Sherrill said, "I'd have to pick Southern Cal. If they played right now, I'd have to pick USC."

Washington State tried only 26 running plays and netted just 23 yards total. Meanwhile, powerful UCLA rushed for 396 yards in 72 running plays.

Quarterback Jeff Dankworth was the individual hero even though he was in for only one series, the opening one for the Bruins, in the second half.

Dankworth ran for two touchdowns and passed for two more. He engineered scoring drives of 67 yards (11 plays), 35 yards (three plays), 46 yards (eight plays), and 52 yards in five plays.

The 6-0, 200-pound senior finished with 59 yards running on 11 plays. He completed four of seven passes for 77 yards.

Wendell Tyler was the rushing leader with 106 yards on 11 carries. Theotis Brown carried only four times for 37 yards.

UCLA (5-0-1 overall and 2-0 in the Pac 8) is at Cal next.

Leos lose to Lutheran

THOUSAND OAKS — La Verne College's record dropped to 2-2 in nonleague action Saturday afternoon as Cal Lutheran downed La Verne, 24-14 on its home turf.

La Verne took a brief 7-0 lead in the first stanza of play on a three yard run by Brad Frick. Cal Lutheran bounced back with a second quarter touchdown but failed to take the lead as it missed the extra point. Cal Lutheran took the lead for good with a last second field goal in the second quarter.

La Verne cut Cal Lutheran's lead to 15-14 in the fourth quarter on a nine yard run by Ben Morrow. Frick had set up the touchdown run with an 84 yard run. But Cal Lutheran bounced back with a touchdown to extend its lead to 24-14.

La Verne begins conference play Saturday against Whittier. The contest to be held at La Verne College is an afternoon tilt.

Pomona-Pitzer, behind an offense of 541 total yards, demolished a smaller Cal Tech team, 56-0, Saturday night on its own field.

The Sagehens, 2-2 on the season, rolled up a 49-point lead at halftime on the Cal Tech squad. Cal Tech could not stop the running attack of Pomona-Pitzer.

Running back Brent Dunford scored two touchdowns and rushed for 161 yards. Teammate Dick Richardson collected 111 yards on eight carries.

Pomona-Pitzer returns to action Saturday when the Sagehens traveled to Claremont Men's College to tackle Claremont-Mudd.

Oregon State shocks Cal

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Tailback James Fields plunged over a pile of players from a yard out with 3:23 left in the final quarter and freshman Kieron Walford added the conversion as Oregon State shocked California 10-9 Saturday in a Pacific-8 Conference football encounter.

Fields, a 5-foot-10, 205-pound sophomore from Detroit, Mich., led the previously winless Beavers in a 65-yard drive for the game's only touchdown

Oregon State advanced on a series of quarterback options, with freshman Steve Richardson pitching to Fields in a play that worked repeatedly.

Trailing 3-0 at halftime, California took the lead with a pair of 41-yard field goals by Jim Breech in the third period. Breech, a 5-7 150-pound junior from Sacramento, added a 23-yard field goal in the final quarter to make in 9-3.

Fumbles and penalties plagued both teams in the scoreless first quarter.

Haden gets call against Bears

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rhodes scholar Pat Haden once again leads the Los Angeles Rams as the once-beaten National Football League club attempts to rebound against the Chicago Bears today.

Haden, a star at the University of Southern California in his college days, drew the nomination of Coach Chuck Knox to replace James Harris who injured a shoulder when sacked 10 times last week as the San Francisco 49ers upset the Rams 16-0.

Harris had been hurt before, a broken thumb on Aug. 28 against Buffalo, and his backup Ron Jaworski took over in the league opener at Atlanta. Jaworski suffered a fractured shoulder while scoring a touchdown in the 30-14 victory and it was the rookie Haden who took over to finish that game.

Haden, who threw the touchdown pass and two-point conversion that beat Ohio State in the 1975 Rose Bowl game 18-17 in the closing minutes, played in the World Football League in 1975 before going to Oxford in England for studies.

He has one year remaining on his Rhodes Scholar studies, but will take them up again after the conclusion of the NFL season.

Despite not being expected to see much service, he went all the way on Sept. 19 at Bloomington, Minn., when the Rams tied the Vikings 10-10 in an overtime session. Then Harris came back, and Haden hasn't played since.

Knox announced he had decided on the rookie for the Chicago game because Jaworski, who resumed throwing last week, had been out a month "and he doesn't yet have his timing down."

However, Jaworski, from Youngstown State and in his third professional year, will be available for duty, Knox said.

The Rams opened as a 10-point favorite before Harris was hurt but now the Rams are favored by less than a touchdown for the 1 p.m. kickoff in Memorial Coliseum.

The Rams go into the battle 3-1-1. The Bears are 3-2 following a 20-19 loss to the Vikings last Sunday.

Bob Avellini, who had his first shot at quarterback when the Bears played in Los Angeles last year, has won the starting job this season. He's expected to open although he's been suffering from tendinitis in his right wrist.

The Rams' defensive unit must not only stop the Avellini passes but face the No. 1 rusher in Walter Payton who has gained 549 yards in 113 carries.

Los Angeles also possesses a potent rushing attack with Lawrence McCutcheon the No. 2 man in the NFC with 461 yards in 112 attempts.

Harris suffered an injured shoulder when sacked 10 times by the 49ers on Monday night and in comparison, San Francisco didn't register a sack in losing to the Bears 19-12 on Sept. 19. Chicago defenders had thrown opposing quarterbacks 25 times with only four sacks against them.

Chicago leads the series against the Rams 28-18-3, but the Bears haven't won since 1968 and since then Los Angeles has won four times and tied once.

Owls dump SDCC

SAN DIEGO — Citrus College improved its record to 3-1 Saturday afternoon at San Diego City College as the Owls downed San Diego City, 20-5.

The Owls jumped off to a 20-0 lead before SDCC put any points on the scoreboard. Citrus had numerous chances to add to its margin of 20 points but failed to do so. At times Citrus was its own worst enemy.

Citrus failed to put points on the board in the second half as the Owls fumbled the ball six times. Each time Citrus failed to recover the ball.

The Owls also missed two opportunities from within the San Diego City 40 yard line as backup quarterback Steve Smith was intercepted twice near the SDCC goal line.

Quarterback Dale Bunn was the main cog in the Owl offense as he racked up 117 yards through the air before leaving the game due to an injury late in the second quarter. Bunn was carried off the field after sustaining a concusion.

Smith came in to direct the Citrus offense and added 77 aerial yards to Bunn's totals.

Bunn and Smith racked up 184 combined total yards as two Citrus touchdowns came via the air.

SDCC's ground attack was competely shut off by the Owl defense as SDCC could only grind out 37 yards on the ground. SDCC's Mike Kennedy after taking to the air because of the failure of the running game collected 158 aerial yards. But he paid the price by being intercepted five times.

SDCC's first score was a safety. The SDCC defense trapped Ray Butler in the Owl end zone for the TD after Charlie Brown had stopped a San Deigo drive with an interception on the two yard line.

Citrus returns to action Saturday against San Bernardino City College in San Bernardino.

USSR, Lake Placid report Olympic progress

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — The mighty Soviet state planning machine and the tiny village community of Lake Placid, N.Y., population 3,000, reported Saturday on plans for the 1980 Olympic Games—and both said everything was going fine.

Deputy Prime Minister Ignaty Novikov of the Soviet Union led a delegation before the Executive Board of the International Olympic Committee and told of plans to run the Summer Games in Moscow at a cost of $350 million, with a working staff of 32,000.

Ron McKenzie, retired postmaster and a justice of the peace, told the IOC leaders that Lake Placid will make do on $75 million for the Winter Games and will have a staff of 2,500.

"We are absolutely sure our budget of $75 millions will be enough," McKenzie told a news conference after talking to the Olympic leaders in private.

"We have a built-in contingency for an annual 10 per cent rate of inflation, and we shall not need any more money. Remember, most of our facilities are already in existence and are in regular use, and need merely to be upgraded."

Lord Killanin, IOC president, was given a new assurance by the Russians that athletes from all countries recognized by the IOC would be given free entry for the Moscow Games.

The IOC is worried about a repetition of the crisis in Montreal this summer, when the Canadian government refused entry to the athletes of Taiwan and the whole Olympic Games were threatened.

Novikov said, "This was the second time the president of the IOC has read a declaration from the presidium of the USSR.

"It said the Soviet Union will guarantee all the conditions stated in the Olympic charter. I think there is no need to comment on this further."

Novikov said he believed security measures at Montreal were too strict.

"We think there will be no security problems—not only for the athletes, but for visitors, spectators and press," he added.

McKenzie also was asked about security at Lake Placid, and said it was in the hands of New York State police.

"Hopefully there will be deep snow at Lake Placid, so no one will be patrolling around the athletes' village trying to do harm to anyone," said McKenzie, a former Olympic bobsledder.

Novikov spoke of the importance of the 1980 Olympics to the Soviet Union and said they would contribute to peace, friendship and understanding between peoples.

Sports briefs

PARIS (AP) — Arnold Palmer, the 47-year-old aging American master, and Severiano Ballesteros, Spain's 19-year-old prodigy, each put on closing rushes Saturday and shared the third-round lead in the Lancome Trophy golf tournament at 214, two under par.

Ballesteros birdied three of the last four holes over the 6,875-yard St. Nom la Breteche course for a four-under-par 68. Palmer dropped birdies at two of the last three holes for a 69 in the sunny but cool fall weather.

David Graham of Australia took a 70 for a 215 total and third place. Gary Player of South Africa, who had shared the second-round lead with Palmer, Graham and Jean Garaialde of France, needed birdies at the last two holes for a 70 that left him in fourth place at 216.

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Junior Welterweight champion Wilfredo Benitez stopped Tony Petronelli from Boston at 53 seconds of the third round during the second defense of the title he won last March from Antonio Cervantes of Colombia.

Benitez, unbeaten in 26 profesional fights, had no trouble with Petronelli who had lost only one match in his pro career.

OSLO (AP) — Ilie Nastase of Romania won the $40,000 first prize in an international tennis tournament Saturday, beating Sweden's Bjorn Borg 2-6, 7-5, 6-0, 6-4 in a one hour and 45-minute match.

The match was played on a winner-take-all basis.

Nastase now faces a challenge from U.S. Open champion Jimmy Connors for a $500,000 match, reportedly to be played later in the winter at Las Vegas, Nev.

Connors' challenge was disclosed by Borg's Swedish manager, Jan Steinmann, at a news conference Friday night.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Rodgers, the San Francisco Giants' pitching coach this year, will not return next season, the National League team announced Saturday.

Coaches Jim Davenport and Bobby Winkles will return, however, and the other 1976 coach, Frank Funk, is being considered as a candidate for pitching coach under new Manager Joe Altobelli, the Giants announced.

Field goal beats CC

OCEANSIDE — Chaffey College fell a field goal short Saturday as the Panthers lost a tough defensive struggle to Palomar, 6-3.

Chaffey, after falling behind 6-3 at the half, had two golden opportunities go up in smoke in pulling out the contest. The Panthers late in the fourth quarter recovered two Palomar fumbles inside the Palomar 20-yard line.

However, Chaffey couldn't capitalize on the two Palomar mistakes. The Panthers missed field goals of 27 and 32 yards in the fourth stanza.

It was mainly a defensive struggle as Chaffey only managed 70 ground yards against a stubborn Palomar defense. Both squads fared better in the air. Chaffey gained 106 aerial yards to Palomar's 122.

Chaffey, 3-2 on the season and 1-1 in Mission Conference action, will tackle San Diego City College on the Panthers' home turf next week.

Reds lose ace in opening win

In the third inning, the Riverfront Stadium crowd of 54,826 got its chance to yell as Cincinnati took the lead for good.

With one out, Dave Concepcion, the ninth hitter in the Reds' lineup, sent a shot up the alley in left-center field and turned it into a triple.

A moment later, Concepcion trotted home as Pete Rose sent a sacrifice fly to Yankees centerfielder Mickey Rivers. Rose's fly ball was considerably shorter than Nettles' sacrifice fly had been, but Rivers doesn't have nearly the arm that Geronimo does, either.

Gullett wiped out nine straight Yankees batters following Piniella's double in the second. Chambliss opened the fifth with a single, but Nettles banged into a double play.

The double play saved a run because Elliott Maddox followed with a triple into the leftfield corner that bounced away from George Foster. Willie Randolph tagged a long drive to center, but again Geronimo backed to the wall and pulled the ball down, stranding Maddox at third.

The Yankees had their best shot at Gullett in the sixth.

Fred Stanley led off with a walk but was forced at second on Rivers' attempted sacrifice. Then Roy White reached second when Geronimo dropped his drive after a long run in left-center field. Geronimo was charged with a two-base error on the play.

Rivers might have scored on the error, but he had been cut down trying to steal a moment earlier.

Thurman Munson ripped the next pitch for a single to right, but the Yankees weren't about to test Griffey's arm, and White stopped at third.

That brought up Piniella, and he narrowly missed an extra-base hit with a drive that fell foul in the right-field corner. Then he hit a soft liner to Morgan at second base, ending the rally.

In the bottom half of the sixth, the Reds widened their lead to 3-1.

Rose opened with a walk on a 3-2 pitch and was forced at second by Griffey, whose speed beat the relay to first. Griffey stole second and scooted home on Tony Perez' single to left, his third hit of the game.

In the seventh, Gullett hit Chambliss with a pitch leading off the inning. But Nettles rapped into another double play. That helped Gullett survive the inning, despite consecutive walks to Maddox and Randolph. Otto Velez batted for Stanley and struck out on a 1-2 pitch.

In the bottom of the seventh, the Reds put the game away.

Foster opened with his second single and dashed home when Johnny Bench ripped a triple off the right-field wall. That finished Alexander, with Sparky Lyle relieving. But Lyle bounced his second pitch past Munson, allowing Bench to score easily for a 5-1 lead.

Gullett retired Rivers, the first batter he faced in the eighth, but hurt his ankle on the last pitch to the Yankees centerfielder. When White followed with a single to left, the Reds' pitcher grimaced in pain.

Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson came to the mound for his starter, who left to a standing ovation from the crowd. Borbon was the reliever and mowed down the last five Yankees hitters, nailing down the victory.

Gullett's injury apparently was not serious. Anderson said his pitcher had merely stepped in a hole and would have no problem starting in the fifth game of the Series, if it is not over by then.

Anderson was nonchalant about the 10-hit attack that included five extra-base blows— Morgan's homer, triples by Bench and Concepcion, and doubles by Geronimo and Perez.

"I didn't think we were very aggressive today," Anderson said. "I hope we can be more aggressive tomorrow. We're a better ball club than that. They were good enough for the Yankees Saturday. That's the end."

DORSETT HEADS FOR TD — Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett sprints around Miami's cornerback John Turner (26) for a first quarter score Saturday in Pittsburgh as the Panthers downed Miami, 36-19. Dorsett rushed for 227 yards and scored three touchdowns.

Barber blasts PGA policy

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Miller Barber fought gusty winds and blustery, raw cold for a two-under-par 70 Saturday, then leveled an angry blast at the PGA Tour policy that stretched the second round of the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open Golf Tournament over two days.

"The ones who played yesterday had it at least three shots better," said Barber, whose 138 total was the best posted by the 95 golfers who had to finish their second rounds Saturday. He trailed seven players—all of whom finished their rounds before play was suspended by a series of showers and thunderstorms Friday.

"I'm definitely going to sit down and write a letter to our commissioner (Deane Beman) about it," Barber said. "It wasn't at all equitable. It just isn't right. I haven't heard a single player who had to play today say it was right."

At the completion of the second round, Don Iverson, South African Bobby Cole and rookie John Harris—all of whom finished in the driving rain that eventually halted play Friday—were at 136, eight under par.

The group at 137—all of whom also played in Friday's rain but were spared the more difficult wind and cold of Saturday's round—are George Cadle, Peter Oosterhuis of England, Steve Taylor, Mason Rudolph and Tom Jenkins.

Barber's effort—"considering the weather, just about as good as I can play," he said—lifted him into a group at 138, two back. The others at that figure all finished their rounds Friday.

The biggest casualty of Saturday's play was first-round leader Tom Shaw. He had an opening 66, had parred two holes when play was stopped Friday, then returned for 16 more Saturday. Of those 16 holes, he bogeyed seven, double-bogeyed another and finished with an 80. And he missed the cut for Sunday's double-round, 36-hole wind-up.

Ben Crenshaw, the gallery favorite who finished Friday, and defending champion Don January, who played Saturday, were at 142. January had a second straight 71.

Only 55 men in the 150-man field had completed their rounds when play was suspended Friday. Another 95 either were stranded on the course or still were awaiting their starting times. Those on the course marked their positions and returned to complete their rounds Saturday.

"The round should have been rained out," said Barber, a veteran of two decades on the tour and winner of more than $1 million. "Have everybody come back and play 18 today. If we're going to play 36 on Sunday, what difference does it make. It wasn't fair to the guys who had to play today."

Jack Tuthill, Tournament Director for the PGA tour and the one in charge of this tournament, said the new policy, which allows the completion of play the following day even though less than half the field has finished, was set by the Tour's Policy Board.

"We got in one round in two days instead of no rounds in two days."

Calvary Baptist ties Victor Valley, 24-24

VICTOR VALLEY — Calvary Baptist, trailing 18-8 entering the fourth quarter, rallied for 16 points but had to settle for a 24-24 tie with Victor Valley Saturday afternoon.

Victory Valley after falling behind 24-18 late in the fourth stanza bounced back to knott the score as the clock ran out. Victor Valley settled for the tie as they missed their try for the extra point.

Gary Meinburg and Chris Pruitt paced the Calvary Baptist attack. Mernburg carried the ball 22 times for a total of 120 yards while Pruitt added 80 yards on six carries.

Pruitt also had a big day defensively as he recorded nine unassisted tackles and participated on three assisted tackles.

Calvary Baptist, 1-4-1 on the season and 0-2-1 in league play, returns to action Friday against Liberty Christian. The contest is at Liberty Christian.

Tony Dorsett nears mark

By Associated Press

Second-ranked Pittsburgh, guided by a quarterback who didn't find out he'd be playing until 10 minutes before the game, whipped Miami of Florida 36-19 Saturday as Tony Dorsett moved to within 151 yards of the all-time collegiate rushing record.

Pitt's Dorsett carried the ball 35 times for 227 yards and caught a screen pass from third-string quarterback Tom Yewic for a 40-yard touchdown, boosting the Panthers' record to 6-0. Dorsett ran 53 yards for another TD.

The performance gave Dorsett 5,026 career rushing yards, and, with the way he has been chewing up yardage by the game, moved him, perhaps, a week away from the record of 5,177 by Ohio State's Archie Griffin.

Yewic, a senior who had been a ninth-stringer early in his collegiate career, replaced Matt Cavanaugh, who sustained an ankle fracture last week. Pitt's only veteran signalcaller, Robert Haygood, injured a knee earlier in the season.

"I didn't find out until five or 10 minutes before the game that I was going to start," said Yewic, nephew of Tom Yewic who played for the Boston Patriots in the American Football League. "I guess it took a lot of pressure off that way, and it turned out for the best."

In other games involving the Top 10, top-ranked Michigan drubbed Northwestern 38-7, No. 3 Nebraska crushed Kansas State 51-0, No. 5 Maryland nipped Wake Forest 17-15, No. 6 Oklahoma defeated 15th-ranked Kansas 28-10, Iowa State upset No. 7 Missouri 21-17 and No. 9 Ohio State knocked off Wisconsin 30-20.

In the second 10 Saturday, No. 11 Georgia rolled over Vanderbilt 45-0, 14th-ranked Notre Dame shut out Oregon 41-0, No. 19 Houston defeated Southern Methodist 29-6 and 20th-ranked Alabama got by Tennessee 2013.

Eighth-ranked Southern Cal, No. 10 Texas and No. 18 Arkansas had the weekend off.

Asked if his 35 carries had tired him, Dorsett laughed and said: "That's not high ... some guys have been known to carry the ball 51 times."

Dorsett was referring to Southern Cal's Ricky Bell, who last week carried 51 times for 347 yards.

"I don't know who did it," Dorsett joked, "some guy out on the West Coast."

Ron Lytle rushed for 172 yards and two touchdowns for powerhouse Michigan, 6-0, in their Big Ten victory over Northwestern. The Wildcats held Michigan to a field goal in the first quarter and controlled the ball for more than seven minutes in a scoreless third quarter.

"You get 31 points on the board," said Wolverines Coach Bo Schembechler, "and I suppose you let down. We've had so many games like this. I'd just love to get into a slugfest where a yard means a yard."

Nebraska quarterback Vince Ferragamo tied a school record with four touchdown passes as the Cornhuskers, 5-0-1, clobbered Big Eight rival Kansas State. Ferragamo connected twice with Bobby Thomas on his way to matching the record of David Humm, set in 1972 against Kansas.

Ken Roy's blocked punt set up a 27-yard field goal by Maryland's Mike Sochko with 2:56 remaining, and the Terrapins, 6-0, edged Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Maryland, a 17-point favorite, moved to a 17-7 lead in the fourth quarter on George Scott's one-yard TD run and Sochko's field goal, then held off the Demon Deacons.

Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott scored two touchdowns, and the Sooners, 5-0-1, capitalized on four Kansas turnovers and a serious injury to Jayhawks' quarterback Nolan Cromwell in the second half for their Big Eight victory. Cromwell sustained a serious knee injury midway in the third quarter and probably will be out for the season. Kansas dropped to 4-2, both losses coming in the conference.

In the only upset of the day, unranked Iowa State got first-half touchdown runs of 65 and two yards from tailback Dexter Green to beat Missouri, now 42, in another Big Eight tilt. Green gained 214 yards on 37 carries.

Quarterback Rod Gerald and fullback Pete Johnson each scored twice, lifting Ohio State, 4-1-1, past Wisconsin in their Big Ten game. Buckeyes running back Jeff Logan was the workhorse, carrying 19 times for 113 yards, while Johnson, a 247-pounder, boosted his conference TD record to 49.

Sophomore running back Willie McClendon scored twice as the Georgia Bulldogs, 5-1, whipped Vanderbilt in the Southeastern Conference. Kevin Mclee and Ray Goff scored three minutes apart in the first half to trigger the spree which saw Georgia gain 366 yards rushing.

Al Hunter scored three touchdowns as Notre Dame, 4-1, trounced Oregon in an intersectional game. It was the third shutout this season for the Fighting Irish defense, which has yielded just two field goals since a season-opening loss to Pitt, 31-10.

Quarterback Danny Davis directed a 99-yard scoring drive and passed for one touchdown as Houston thumped Southwest Conference rival Southern Methodist. The Cougars, 4-1, picked off four SMU passes, two by Anthony Francis who leads the nation in interceptions with seven.

Calvin Culliver scored from the seven with less than six minutes remaining to propell Alabama, 4-2, past Tennessee in a nationally televised Southeastern Conference game. Quarterback Jack O'Rear engineered the 43-yard, five-play drive.

Linebacker Jim Hughes ran 26 yards with an intercepted pass to boost Rutgers to a 28-21 victory over Lehigh, preserving the Scarlet Knights' 13-game win streak, longest in the nation.

Syria offers to pay for Ali-Foreman bout

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Syria will pay $15 million for a Muhammad Ali-George Foreman heavyweight title fight should Ali change his mind about retirement, promoter Don King said Saturday.

King said other governments have shown interest in an Ali-Foreman fight, but Syria has come up with the money.

But, if Ali does not fight again, King said he wants the World Boxing Association and the World Boxing Council to sanction as soon as possible a Foreman-Ken Norton fight for the heavyweight championship of the world.

King said he has put $1.1 million in escrow in the bank of Norton's manager, Bob Biron, and "that is just for starters."

Foreman, who stopped Dino Dennis in four rounds here Friday night, said he would like to fight Norton—whom he knocked out in two rounds when he was champion in 1974—in December.

Foreman also said that if Norton does not fight him, he would be willing to go through an elimination tournament if that is what the WBA and WBC decide.

"I am willing to go through any channel there is to become heavyweight champion of the world," said the man who lost the title to Ali in Africa in 1974.

Foreman also said he would be willing to fight Norton even if the title wasn't on the line, and Norton has said he would like another crack at Foreman before he quits boxing.

King also said he will promote a fight between Roberto Duran and Esteban de Jesus, the two lightweight champions, in the spring.

King has been promoting Duran's fights, including the Panamanian's one-round knockout of Alvaro Rojas in a WBA title defense Friday night.

'Hen kickers down Stags

Pomona Pitzer improved its SCIAC soccer record to 6-0 Saturday afternoon as the Sagehens downed Claremont-Mudd 2-1 in sudden death action on the Stags' homefield.

Ron Thomas scored the winning goal for the Sagehens on a penalty after the two squads had struggled to a 1-1 tie in regulation time. Claremont Mudd had scored first in the opening half before Pomona-Pitzer's Leon Thanopoulos knotted the score at 1-1.

P-P dominated play most of the afternoon but the score didn't indicate this as the Sagehens had 23 shots on goal to the Stags' 12.

NBA fans to get first look at former ABA stars

By Associated Press

Is Julius Erving, the legendary Dr. J, really the best basketball player around? Can the Big A, Artis Gilmore, hold his own against the likes of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Dave Cowens? And how about Denver's wunderkind, David Thompson — is he as spectacular as folks have been saying?

Basketball fans will finally begin to get the answers to those burning questions this winter, thanks to the efforts of National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien and a cast of thousands — mostly lawyers — who engineered the merger with the American Basketball Association.

That peace agreement, which finally brought the roundball sport out of the law courts and back onto the hard courts, resulted in a 22-team NBA which will open its 31st season Thursday night.

When the dust settles sometime in late May, nearly 1,000 regular season and playoff games will have been played and fans around the NBA will have gotten their first looks at the cream of the late, lamented ABA—assuming Erving settles the contract dispute with the New York Nets which has kept him away from preseason training camp.

Among the four ABA survivors, Denver is most likely to be a factor when playoff time finally rolls around. The Nuggets have youth, scoring punch, speed, board strength, depth— just about everything needed to make believers out of NBA diehards.

The New York Nets, the champions of the last-ever ABA season, find themselves in fast company in the NBA's Atlantic Division and will be hard-pressed to make the 12-team playoff field. The other ex-ABAers, San Antonio and Indiana, also will have to struggle to qualify for the postseason carnival.

There are more than enough intriguing questions among the 18 holdover NBA teams, too.

Can Boston repeat as champion, or will age finally catch up with the proud Celtics? Will Golden State regain the magic of that championship season, 1975? Is Phoenix as good as it looked in last year's playoffs? Can Dick Motta, following years of frustration in Chicago, take the star-studded Washington Bullets to the title?

Motta is one of nine men who will be starting their first full season in their present coaching positions. The others are Hubie Brown, Atlanta; Tates Locke, Buffalo; Ed Badger, Chicago; Herb Brown, Detroit; Tom Nissalke, Houston; Jerry West, Los Angeles; Jack Ramsay, Portland, and Doug Moe, San Antonio.

CBS will again televise a Game of the Week on Sunday, as well as the All-Star Game from Milwaukee Feb. 13 and chunks of the playoffs. But in an effort to boost its ratings, the network will go to four regional telecasts on many weekends instead of one national game.

Top rookies to watch this season include guards John Lucas of Houston, Quinn Buckner of Milwaukee and Ron Lee of Phoenix; forwards Richard Washington of Kansas City, Scott May of Chicago, Wally Walker of Portland and Adrian Dantley of Buffalo, and centers Robert Parish of Golden State, Leon Douglas of Detroit and Lonnie Shelton of the New York Knicks.

Here's a look at the 22 clubs in the NBA, by divisions:

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Atlantic Division

Depth is the big problem for defending champion Boston. The Celtics' incumbent forwards are John Havlicek, who is 36, and Paul Silas, 33. With only Steve Kuberski, Glenn McDonald and No. 1 draft pick Norman Cook in reserve, Celtics boss Red Auerbach knew a move had to be made—and he made it this week, purchasing perennial all-star Sidney Wicks from Portland.

Boston's other starters—center Dave Cowens and guards Jo Jo White and Charlie Scott—are younger, but again the bench is questionable. Center Jim Ard and guard Kevin Stacom have been spotty.

The Philadelphia 76ers have some of the most talented personnel in the league, topped by spectacular forward George McGinnis, who averaged 23 points and 12.6 rebounds per game to rank sixth in both categories.

In the backcourt, Fred Carter is explosive and Doug Collins is among the smoothest, most versatile players in the game. The signing of 6-foot-11 Caldwell Jones, a top shotblocker and rebounder in the ABA, should help, as would a healthy year from Billy Cunningham.

The Buffalo Braves have never had trouble scoring—their problem is keeping the other team from scoring just as fast. Center Bob McAdoo topped the NBA with a 31.1 average, and lightning quick Randy Smith was seventh at 21.8. New Coach Tates Locke is counting on a big season from explosive Ernie DiGregorio, the rookie of the year in 1974 but a bit player the past two seasons. Rookie Adrian Dantley should also help.

New York's two clubs will be hard-pressed to make the playoffs. The Nets have two spectacular talents in Julius Erving and Nate "Tiny" Archibald, the latter obtained for a king's ransom from Kansas City. The rest of the team, however, is exceedingly ordinary. As for the Knicks, the addition of rookie center Lonnie Shelton, forward Jim McMillian and ex-ABA guard Ticky Burden should help—but how much?

Central Division

Washington and Cleveland are again the class of the Central Division.

The Bullets' biggest off-season move was replacing Coach K.C. Jones with Dick Motta. "I'm hired to win games," says Motta, "and I'm in a situation where that can be accomplished."

To do it, he'll need big years from Elvin Hayes, Phil Chenier and Dave Bing, and a healthy year from Wes Unseld.

Cleveland won the division last year with a cast of no-names and with its two most explosive scorers—Austin Carr and Campy Russell—coming off the bench. But Jim Cleamons is a top-flight playmaker, Bingo Smith an excellent shooter and Jim Brewer a fine young power forward.

San Antonio is a run-and-gun club which could surprise NBAers who have never heard of Larry Kenon, George Gervin and James Silas, any of whom can pour in 40 points on a given night.

Houston traded for the No. 1 pick in the college draft and went for guard John Lucas— even though starters Calvin Murphy and Mike Newlin are coming off good years and the Rockets sorely need help up front.

New Orleans signed Gail Goodrich and Atlanta added Joe Meriwether, Geoff Petrie and Ken Charles, but neither looks like a playoff club.

Midwest Division

The demise of the ABA has done wonders for the Midwest Division, weakest in the NBA last year.

Denver, which won 65 and 60 games in the ABA the past two years, rates as the favorite. David Thompson is a great offensive forward and Bobby Jones is every bit as good defensively. Dan Issel is a steady center, 7-1 Marvin Webster still has a world of potential and Ralph Simpson, Chuck Williams and Ted McClain are three good guards.

The addition of towering center Artis Gilmore from the ABA and smooth rookie forward Scott May could be enough to carry Chicago from the bottom of the division to the top, but the Bulls also need a big comeback from guard Norm Van Lier.

Detroit will be tough if speedy Kevin Porter is fully recovered from the knee injury which cost him most of last season. The Pistons have added two top talents in ex-ABAer Marvin Barnes and rookie Leon Douglas, who join Bob Lanier and Curtis Rowe on a rugged front line.

Milwaukee won the division last year with a balanced young team led by guard Brian Winters. Coach Larry Costello is hoping Quinn Buckner of NCAA champ Indiana is the playmaker he's long sought.

Kansas City is counting heavily on UCLA's Richard Washington as a power forward and ABA all-stars Ron Boone and Brian Taylor at guard, but Nate Archibald will be sorely missed. Indiana has a flashy forward in Billy Knight, but not enough else to make the playoffs.

Pacific Division

Golden State has the same cast which won the title two years ago, but the emphasis there seemed to shift away from Rick Barry and towards Jamaal Wilkes and Phil Smith. Getting knocked off in the playoffs by Phoenix could provide enough incentive to put this team in motion again.

Phoenix stunned the experts by reaching the playoff finals, and the future looks sunny. Center Alvan Adams and guard Paul Westphal are genuine allstars, while forwards Gar Heard and Curtis Perry are workmanlike pros. Ricky Sobers will battle impressive rookie Ron Lee for the other guard spot.

Seattle tends to look better on the court than on paper. Slick Watts and Fred Brown are a brilliant backcourt, but a big year is needed from towering Tom Burleson is the Sonics will go anyplace.

Portland will have a new look, with Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks gone and Maurice Lucas and Moses Malone added from the ABA and Wally Walker from the college ranks. The key, however, is a healthy Bill Walton, something that hasn't happened often the past two seasons.

Los Angeles went shopping in the off-season, but couldn't find a power forward to help MVP center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar under the boards. Instead, the Lakers added a couple of guards from the ABA, Mack Calvin and Don Chaney, and rookie Earl Tatum of Marquette, a small forward.

Pals remember Jim Herzog with golf event

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

IN REMEMBRANCE of the late Jim Herzog, well known local restaurant manager and bartender, a golf tournament benefitting handicapped children at Casa Colina Hospital for Rehabilitative Medicine will be held today.

Friends and fellow restauranteers are sponsoring the event at the new El Prado Golf Course and Country Club.

"Jim was huge in body and spirit," one associate said. "He loved people, especially children, and was an avid golfer. A tournament to benefit a handicapped child seems an appropriate memorial." The tournament is expected to be an annual event.

Herzog, who was killed in an auto accident last May, worked for many years at St. Charles Grille, Pomona, and became manager of the Fireside Inn, Pomona, in 1972. He was employed by the Golden Spur Restaurant, Glendora, at the time of his death.

Herzog was born in Los Angeles and served three years overseas with the U.S. Air Force. His wife, Betty resides in Upland.

The committee in charge includes Bob Frascetti and Bob Tellier, co-chairmen; Lucia De Weese, ticket sales; Tobi Roberg, coordinator of volunteer assistance at the golf course; and John N. Nolan, prizes.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS for Diamond Bar Course has decided to do something about the increased rates at county golf courses ($5.25 weekdays, $6.25 weekends). Included in the October "Diamond Dust" is a letter to the L.A. County Board of Supervisors. Players at Diamond Bar are asked to consider it and sign it if they agree with its contents.

Here is the letter:

Sirs:

I, the undersigned, am a taxpayer, voter, and most important — a golfer.

I am unhappily aware of the arbitrary raise in county golf course green fees, and am not satisfied either with the fact of the raise, the way the raise was put into effect, or the so-called rationale to justify the raise.

I further feel that no study or series of proven facts were ever presented to guarantee a greater gross income with the higher cost and less pay.

It is my feeling that fees paid by the golfer should benefit the golfer. To do otherwise is rank discrimination.

Failure of your Board to properly account to the group which is being forced to carry the load should be brought to the attention of the golfer-voter.

I seek facts, and if the facts indicate justice on your side, I will be the first to cooperate. If on the other hand, facts do not justify a raise, then I in turn would like justice.

Eddie Merrins of Bel-Air is set to defend his title in the Southern California PGA stroke play championship at Mesa Verde CC in Costa Mesa Monday and Tuesday. Merrins has won the title two years in succession, last year with an even par 213 for the three rounds over the challenging layout.

Host pro Max Bayha promises a real challenge for the 1976 participants. As a sidelight, the event is also being used as qualifying for spots for the major events in the section headed by the PGA tour. The field will play 36 holes on Monday and the final round on Tuesday.

The revived Texas State Open offering $25,000 in prize money for a second straight year will be played at the Horseshoe Bay Country Club, Tuesday through Friday.

One of the nation's richest state championships, the 72-hole tournament is co-sponsored by the Lake Lyndon B. Johnson Improvement Corporation, developers of the magnificent resort 55 miles northwest of Austin, in conjunction with the Northern and Southern of the Texas PGA.

It has drawn a field of 150 of the finest professional and amateur golfers in the Lone Star State who will play pour rounds over the Robert Trent Jones — designed, 6,838 yard layout with a par of 36-36-72 in quest of the $5,000 first prize.

Dates of the fifth annual Spalding Invitational Pro-Am's $78,000 tournament that draws many of professional golf's biggest names, is set for Dec. 27-30.

The tournament, which boasts a purse increase from $65,000 to $78,000 and a first prize of $15,000, will be played over three Monterey Peninsula golf courses: the Laguna Seca Golf Ranch, Rancho Canada-East and the Fort Ord Bayonet Course.

Heading this year's field will be the likes of PGA champion Dave Stockton, Sahara winner George Archer, Funseth, and 1976 tour winners Mark Hayes, Bob Wynn, Roger Maltbie, and Larry Ziegler.

Steelers, Dolphins still struggling

By Associated Press

Two perennial playoff teams struggle against early elimination, two more put their undefeated records on the line, and the expansion clubs tangle to see if one of them can win a game as the National Football League season nears the halfway mark today.

The defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers, 1-4, try to snap a three-game losing streak at home against Cincinnati. And the Miami Dolphins, eliminated from the playoffs in the last game of the 1975 season, face an even earlier demise as they take a 2-3 record against Kansas City.

Pittsburgh, which lost 18-16 to Cleveland last Sunday, has not lost four straight since the 1970-71 season. And today they face the unenviable task of meeting the Bengals, tied for the American Conference Central lead, without starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who sustained neck and back injuries last weekend.

Kansas City won its first game of the season last weekend, a 33-30 triumph over the Washington Redskins, on a trick play in the closing seconds. The Dolphins, 2-3 after a 28-14 loss to Baltimore, will be watching for the "flea-flicker," but they probably will be doing so without injured linebackers Bob Matheson and Steve Towle.

"I don't think we're out of the race," says Miami Coach Don Shula. "By the same token, we realize we have to play much better football. We haven't played anything that resembles our defense of old."

Meanwhile, Dallas, 5-0, and Minnesota, 4-0-1, put their unbeaten strings on the line—the Cowboys at St. Louis and the Vikings at home against the winless New York Giants.

In other NFL games today, it's Detroit at Washington, Cleveland at Atlanta, Baltimore at Buffalo, Philadelphia at Green Bay, Oakland at Denver, Chicago at Los Angeles, Houston at San Diego and New Orleans at San Francisco. The New York Jets meet New England Monday night.

Dallas, which got into the Super Bowl via the wild card route last year, is off to its best start since 1969, when the Cowboys went 6-0. Cowboys' signalcaller Roger Staubach, who has completed 74 per cent of his passes this year for 1,198 yards and seven touchdowns, is still hobbled slightly with a knee injury but is expected to start.

By the grace of the New York Giants, Dallas extended it's winning streak last weekend. Now, Minnesota will try to capitalize on the style of ball that has plagued the Giants this season.

But Vikings Coach Bud Grant warns that New York is due. "Teams like this are coming up and beating good teams," he says. "We're scared to death they could beat us.

"They were actually ahead of the (Los Angeles) Rams in the fourth quarter, and they had their game against Washington won," Grant warns. "The Giants really haven't gotten any breaks in their season so far."

When the Seattle Seahawks and Tampa Bay Buccaneers meet in Florida, at least one of the teams will get out of the loss column—be it win or tie.

It's being billed as "Expansion Bowl I."

"Both can't lose," says Jack Patera of the Seahawks, who have come close to winning their past two games. They led Green Bay 20-7 in the third quarter last weekend and had the Cowboys down 13-0 at the half the week before. The Buccaneers have been shut out three times.

The Washington Redskins, 32, have lost two in a row, and once again Coach George Allen has indicated he will go with backup Joe Theismann at quarterback in lieu of Bill Kilmer, who has a shoulder injury. Last week, Detroit, under new Coach Tommy Hudspeth, won its second game of the season, generating a season-high 329 yards offensively.

General Manager Pat Peppler has taken over for Atlanta Coach Marion Campbell, who was fired on Monday after a 30-0 loss to New Orleans, but he will face Cleveland without starting quarterback Steve Bartkowski, who sustained a knee injury requiring surgery. Peppler will go with Kim McQuilken.

Last week, the New York Jets won their first game at Buffalo's expense. And this week, Baltimore, 4-1, will be trying to protect its American Conference East lead at the Bills' expense.

"We prepared like any other week," said Coach Lou Saban of the Bills, 2-3. "I know I wasn't looking past the Jets. We are not a good enough team to lookpast anyone."

Green Bay, 2-3, has won its last two games, beating Seattle on the passing of Lynn Dickey, statistically the worst passer in the NFL. Dickey completed 16 of 24 passes for 215 yards. Mike Boryla is back in the saddle for Philadelphia, 2-3, after leaving in last week's 33-14 loss to the Cards with a mild concussion.

Denver, 3-2, could move back into a tie for the AFC West lead with a win over Ken Stabler and the Oakland Raiders, 41. But Stabler won't be making it easy. Last week Oakland became the AFC's top offensive team with Stabler hitting 20 of 26 for 339 yards and a touchdown.

Both the Chicago Bears, 3-2, and Los Angeles Rams, 3-1-1, have quarterback problems.

Houston, tied with Cincinnati for the lead in the AFC Central, has the league's best defense— or had until last weekend. The Oilers lost safety C.L. Whittington (hamstring), defensive end Elvin Bethea (toe) and middle guard Curley Culp (hip) in their 17-3 victory over Denver. San Diego QB Dan Pastorini will test them.

San Francisco's Jim Plunkett, who threw two TD passes against the Rams Monday night, will go against a New Orleans secondary rated 11th in the National Conference. Saints running back Chuck Muncie, with a groin injury, likely will sit out his second straight game.

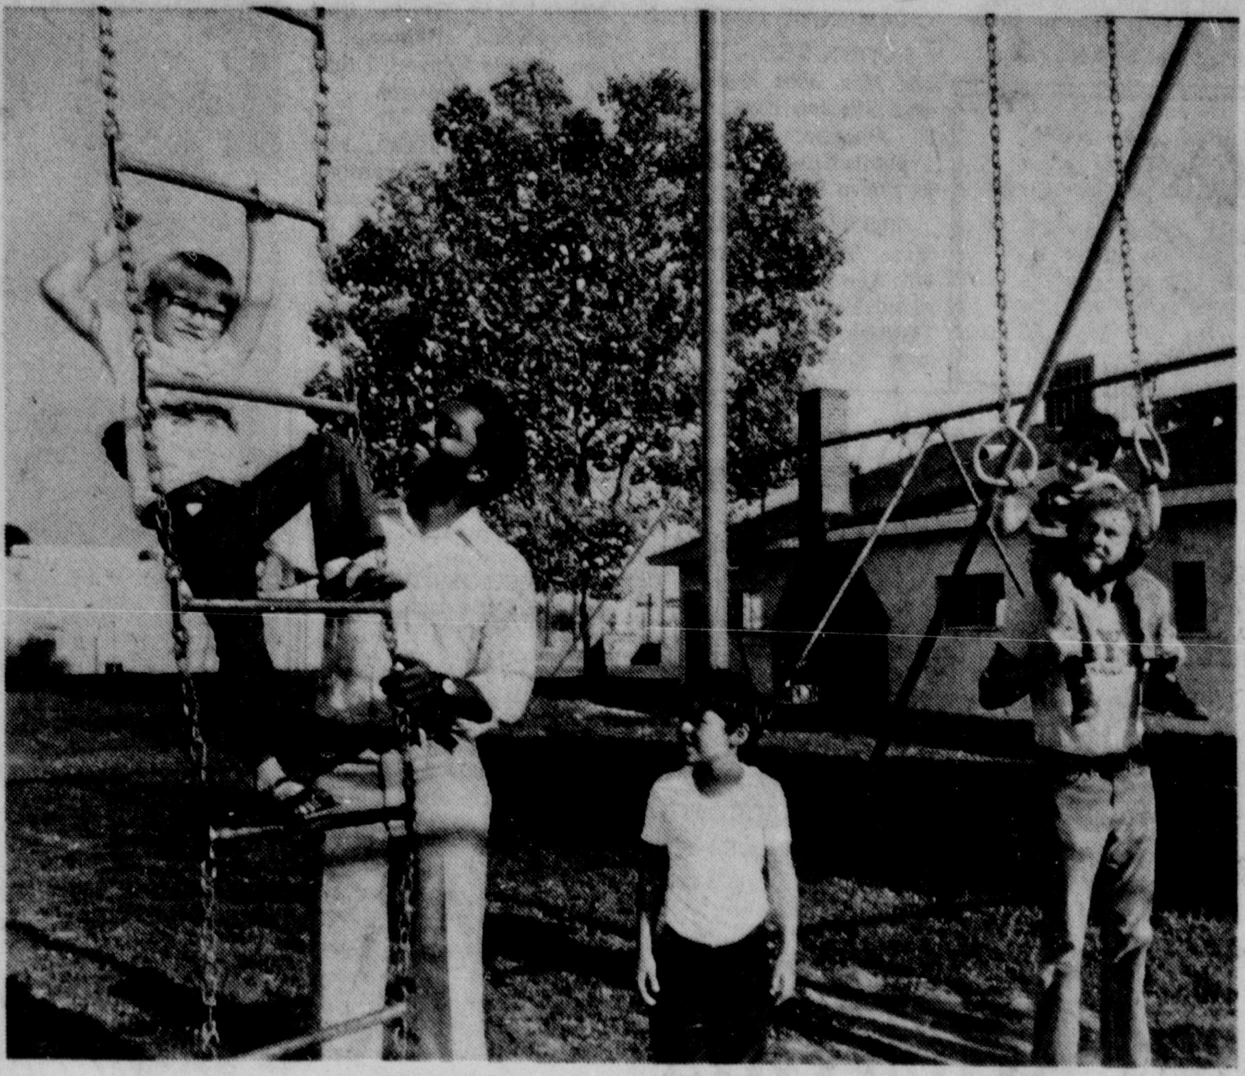
VOLUNTEERS AID GIRLS

Kim Crouse, 13, and Annette Crouse, 12, get pointers on hair style from Carol Bamber, left, Greater Pomona Valley YWCA youth director, and Charlotte Moore, a volunteer.



YOUNG MEN ARE Y-PALS

Pomona, California ■ Sunday, October 17, 1976

Volunteering pays great dividends in all directions

Volunteering is a way of life for some people, and those same people would like to interest others in spending some of their free time in helping children, teen-agers, elderly people and the disadvantaged.

"If only people understood the great benefits they reap from helping others," says one volunteer in Pomona Valley.

The benefits are not always tangible but the great satisfaction that comes from lending a hand where it is needed is so inwardly rewarding as well as helpful.

Throughout Pomona Valley there is a great need for assistance in every phase of volunteerism. Now that children and young people are back in school, the need for help there is critical, according to youth leaders.

In Pomona, according to Miss Michelle Weinhold, volunteer recruitment chairman for the local area within Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council, 500 parent-consent slips have been returned by young girls wanting to join Girl Scout troops.

"But we don't have enough support personnel, consultants to share a talent or skill with a troop, volunteers to offer transportation for troop trips, volunteers for troop record keeping, leaders and assistant leaders.

"Many girls are from the Mexican-American or Black communities and consultants are needed who can assist with these troops in aiding these girls in learning about their own heritage," she said.

Why not contact Spanish Trails Girl Scout Council office at 1550 N. Garey Ave., in Pomona right away?

Today's YMCA is a 'Y' that depends heavily upon the gift of time that many people give, according to Bruce Howard, program director at the Central YMCA.

Volunteers are needed in nearly every aspect of the YMCA program. Without them, programs like Y-Pals, adult men helping fatherless boys, summer camp and acquatics would be hard pressed to maintain a high level of excellence.

Drawn from all areas of the valley, volunteers come to the YMCA in many different ways.

"Many times it will be a member who is 'turned on' by the activities in which he is participating and he wants to become more than a mere participant," according to Howard.

Interested persons may contact the YMCA office on Garey avenue in Pomona for a list of areas for volunteers.

Camp Fire Girls is a youth-serving agency in which the program is provided by a wide spectrum of dedicated adult volunteers.

As it is primarily a character-building organization, and this is accomplished through fun and skill-building activities, the largest portion of these volunteers are parents of the members. In these days when most parents are busy doing for their children, it is so important that in Camp Fire they have a chance to do with their children.

The parents have an opportunity to participate with their children in a group experience where the girls learn progressively to do their own planning, make their own decisions, learn to live with the results of these plans and decisions, and to evaluate and then make new plans.

There is a great diversity of volunteer roles within the Camp Fire organization. All types of volunteers are needed. The major need for volunteers in Camp Fire is in working directly with youth, either as leaders or assistants in groups.

Other needs are for volunteers to work with and train other volunteers, and volunteers who agree to stand for election to a council's board of directors, local committee volunteers.

"Personal benefits to volunteers beyond the fun and satisfaction of working with young people and sharing their growth, include the personal growth that the adult experiences," says Miss Pat Bollin, Mt. San Antonio Council, Camp Fire Girls executive director.

Many a shy homemaker has emerged as a competent teacher, public speaker or business woman through her service in Camp Fire, she says.

So, young people need help from parents, non-parents, senior citizens, college student, men and women. Call the Camp Fire office at 951 W. Foothill Blvd., Claremont, to lend a hand.

"Youth as Full Partners", says Mrs. Gladys Naylor, executive director of the Greater Pomona Valley Young Women's Christian Association, "is the slogan emphasizing that today's youth want to be involved and counted as responsible members of their community." Volunteers are a part of the partnership.

The YWCA needs volunteer advisers for Y-Teen clubs in junior and senior high schools, volunteer resource persons in skills from tutoring to skill sewing, volunteers to involve them with youth of other communities, volunteers to be Big Sisters on the problem front and volunteers to help youth in making decisions.

The wheels of the YWCA turn on the interest, work and the support of the volunteer. Special events enable women of diverse backgrounds to work together for improvement in the community. Volunteers skilled in finance, publicity and poster making, personnel matters, class instruction, arts and crafts, foods, household management, sewing, job training, swimming, fun and fitness, bridge, group and individual sports are always welcome.

The Greater Pomona Valley YWCA is located at 1787 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

Old Baldy Council, Boy Scouts of America, has the same need for volunteers willing to work with boys as leaders, assistants and in various other capacities. They can be reached at 120 W. San Jose Ave., Claremont.

Every man or woman who wants to offer his services in the field of volunteerism in the valley can find his niche.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Irene Zuniga, 11, Martin Reyes, 13, Diana Deleon, 12, Celia Deleon, 16, assistant leader, and Melinda Baltazar, 10, get instructions from their Camp Fire leader, Cruz Deleon, before beginning a game of baseball. The group has boys and girls of all ages in it.

CRAFTS ARE IMPORTANT

Volunteers are all ages and have so much to offer. Here, Louis St. Martin, left, and Jan Weber of the Girl Scout office supervise tray decorations which the scouts are making for Carol Gordon, recreation director at Hillhaven Convalescent Hospital, right. The scouts are Jackie Castro, 11; Renita Woods, 7; and Sheryl Williams, 12.

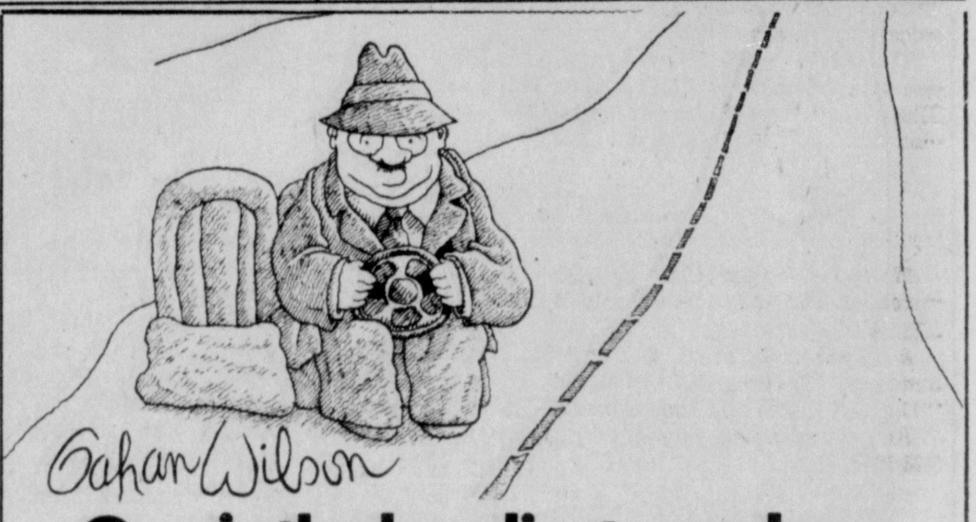
Bonsai is the Japanese art of cultivating dwarfed trees in flower pots.



One is the loneliest number.

It's also the most expensive and the most wasteful when that one is a single person in a car commuting to work everyday.

He spends twice as much money as two people riding together. And he uses twice as much gas, too.

Besides that, he's alone. Completely. Sure, he's got a radio. But a radio can't really talk to you. And it never, ever listens. Think about that.

Share the ride with a friend. Two are more fun than one.

Defense is topic for meet

The Pomona Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution began its 64th year in September with a study of the resolutions of the national society, which was presented by Mrs. Adeline Jaynes, former state resolutions chairman.

For the October meeting on Thursday, Senior M. Sgt. Russell W. Gormley, USAF (Ret.) of the Chino High School Air Force Junior ROTC will discuss "The Role of the Air Force in National Defense." He will be assisted by two members of the AFJROTC, Cadet Capt. Kerry Gwinn and Cadet Capt. Judy Long.

GOOD PORTRAITS TAKE TIME

One of the most popular and lasting gifts one can receive is a professional quality portrait of someone dear. These portraits are not of the type to be put away in some scrapbook; rather, they are given a place of honor in the home. Sometimes they are placed on a mantle, a TV, or hung on the wall. Wherever they are placed, it is a prime location of esteem in the home.

It's a great feeling for the giver too. For when you give a portrait, in a way, you are giving a little bit of yourself. Your loved one will have a remembrance to last a lifetime.

But it's best of all to receive the portrait. A color portrait says "I'm thinking of you." in the most gracious and personal way.

Anyone can take a picture, but a fine portrait worthy of a gift you would want to give requires the magic touch of the professional photographer. Only he knows the fine balance of light, pose and background. He is the artist of technique & composition. His art requires taste, texture and time.

Time is one of the key elements in professional portraiture.

All too often, we hear of the hurried parent who wants a portrait of the grandchild to give. It's one week before Christmas. All the photographer can say is "I'm sorry."

As Christmas approaches, the work load increases and along with it, the time factor does too.

It is highly recommended that Christmas portraits be done as early as possible. Four studios in the area which excel in this service are:

MARTINEZ ART — This oil painting of peasant women in Mexico is included in "The Works of Alfredo Ramos Martinez," opening at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Wignall Museum-Gallery at Chaffey College. The painting is from the collection of John Svenson.

Chaffey shows Martinez works

"The Works of Alfredo Ramos Martinez," an exhibition by the noted Mexican muralist, will open at the Wignall Museum Gallery at Chaffey College with a reception from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon. Martnez' widow and daughter, Maria, will be guests of honor.

The oils and pastels in the exhibit are from many museums and private collections throughout Southern California.

Martinez was a Mexican-born artist who studied in France from 1890 to 1907. He received recognition for his paintings and in 1906 was awarded a gold medal at the Salon. Returning to Mexico in 1912 to paint his land and the native people, Martinez was soon appointed director of the National Academy of Art.

Because of an illness in his family, Martinez, his wife and daughter moved to California in 1929. During the last years of his life Martinez was commissioned to paint several large murals in the Los Angeles area. In 1946 the 74-year-old artist died while working on two large murals, including one of California's most important art treasures, the 100-foot fresco in the Margaret Fowler Memorial Garden at Scripps College.

The reception, hosted by the Museum-Gallery Auxiliary, will be open to the public. The show will continue through Nov. 14. Gallery hours are noon to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday; noon to 3 p.m., Friday and 2 to 5 p.m. Sundays. Admission is free.

Biggest war movie of all

By DICK KLEINER

DEVENTER, Holland NEA) — When you make a big warmovie, you can find yourself in the airplane business.

That's what's happened to Joseph Levine, who is producing the biggest war movie of them all, "A Bridge Too Far." The film, based on the late Cornelius Ryan's best-seller, is a factual account of one of the great battles of World War II, an Allied defeat.

It's the story of an airborne attack on a key bridge. It was a heroic but futile affair. The producers couldn't use the actual bridge because today the surroundings have become too modern. So they were using another bridge and various locales in and around this ancient, picturesque city about 100 kilometers from Amsterdam.

One of the biggest casts in years has been assembled for this one — Dirk Bogarde, James Caan, Michael Caine, Sean Connery, Elliott Gould, Gene Hackman, Laurence Olivier, Ryan O'Neal, Robert Redford and on and on.

But there is no one main star. If there is a star, it is the equipment. The planes, the tanks, the parachutes. This is a film about a battle and in a battle it's the hardware that counts.

"Finding authentic aircraft,' says associate producer John Palmer, "is difficult. We've had to buy four Dakotas — two from Djibouti, two from Portugal. We had to buy them, then modify them to meet governmental standards so we could fly them today.

"The result is that there's a lot of interest from people who want to buy them back. We could make a good profit, because we've brought them up to a high standard."

Every penny helps, because "A Bridge Too Far" is a very expensive film —' in fact, Levine says, it is the most expensive film ever planned.

"At $25 million," he says, "it isn't the most expensive film ever made, but it is the most expensive ever planned. There have been a few that cost more, but they were budgeted at less."

When I was visiting, they were shooting at Deelen Air Base, near here, a base built by the Nazis during the war but now being used by the Dutch Air Force. I can't tell you exactly what was being shot, because they pledged me to secrecy, but I can give you a few small hints.

They waited until the heide — the Dutch equivalent of heather — was in bloom to film this sequence I can't tell you about. But it was a tough one, physically, especially on the star of the sequence, Ryan O'Neal.

"I'm very nervous about this thing," O'Neal said. "I don't like doing something where if you screw up you get killed.

"You know, pretending is getting harder all the time. It used to be that we'd do shots like this in process on the back lot. But look at me today."

Backing O'Neal up were regular soldiers of the Dutch Army. And several of Levine's fleet of Dakota planes. It took all day to do it, and do it right.

Also involved were men of the A.P.A. That's a very special outfit — Attenborough's Private Army. Richard Attenborough is the director. Sir Richard Attenborough is his official name, but everybody calls him Dickie.

I rode back from Deelen to Deventer with Dickie and he told me about the A.P.A. It's a unique idea for a war film.

"I wanted some actors to play some key roles as soldiers," he said, "because I wanted to show the effect of war on particular individuals over a period of a campaign.

"But the problem was that today's young actors — today's young men in general — have had no military training. So I got 50 young actors and put them in a barracks and gave them three weeks of training. We're using them throughout the film."

Attenborough says this film will represent about two years of his life. It was about a year in the preparatory stage, the shooting schedule is six months and there will be another six months of post-production.

"This is a film that couldn't have been done without adequate planning," he says. "Every detail was worked out before we began to shoot. The money from Levine was committed before the script was written.

"Levine is the last of the giants. He has given me everyone I wanted and everything I wanted."

Levine is gigantic, in everything but stature. He's a short, rotund man, but he thinks big.

"I financed this whole film myself," he says. "The picture should finish at $24 to $25 million. After I got this great cast, I could get anyone I wanted to take the distribution rights.

"But, until then, I was alone out there for a year — with guarantees of $19 million on the line. I got a little nervous for a while. I'm rich, but not that rich."

It's the kind of film — all outdoors, all location — where a few bad breaks in the weather could have been disastrous. But the Eastern European drought, wreaking havoc to farmers and citizens, has been a help to moviemakers. There has been very little problem with weather.

The result is that the film is on-schedule and on-budget. In fact, Michael Caine reported and told everyone, with a tone of wonder in his voice, "Four months ago, they said I should report on August 8 — and here it is AUGUST — AND I'm reporting. That's uncanny."

Still, the logistics of a picture of this sort are amazing. Levine surveyed the scene and said, "Just today, I have to feed 700 people — breakfast, mid-breakfast, lunch and tea, if you please. An hour after lunch and I have to give 700 guys a spot of tea."

But he believes he has a winner in "A Bridge Too Far."

"The picture should do well in the states," he says, "but I expect to do 65 per cent of its business abroad. England loves to celebrate its defeats and, in Japan even now they like to see white people kill each other."

MAKING WAR — Director Richard Attenborough gives some instructions to Ryan O'Neal, playing Gen. James Gavin in the war movie, "A Bridge Too Far," now filming in Deventer, Holland.

Gregory remembers father

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gregory Peck was reminiscing about an incident that happened at the 20th Century-Fox studio 28 years ago:

"I was in the barbershop getting a shine when a raggamuffin of a kid came rushing in, put a coin in the soft-drink machine, grabbed a bottle and rushed out. Who's that? I asked the shoeshine man, Henry.

"Some day you'll be working for that boy," Henry answered. "That's Mr. Zanuck's boy."

Business briefs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Peabody Coal Co. will be sold to a holding company headed by Newmont Mining Corp., Kennecott Copper Corp. announced Thursday.

Kennecott has owned Peabody since 1968, but in 1974 the Federal Trade Commission ordered Kennecott to sell Peabody, the Nation's largest coal mining firm.

Other firms in the holding company are the William Companies, Bechtal Corp., Fluor Corp. and the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

Kennecott said it would receive $600 million in cash and short-term notes, $200 million in 20-year guaranteed notes of the holding company with an interest rate to make them marketable at face value and $400 million in 30-year, 5 per cent subordinated income notes.

Market sags, dips to 9-month low

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sagged to a nine-month low this past week, faced with more signs of a sluggish pace in the economy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 15.38 to 937.00 for its third sizeable weekly decline in a row.

In the two previous weeks, the average gave up 56.93 points.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index retreated 1.68 to 100.88, and the New York Stock Exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .95 to 53.90.

The Dow had not closed below 940 since last Jan. 16, when it wound up the day at 929.63 in the midst of a powerful rally that carried it close to 1,000 by early February.

After falling 11 Dow points Monday and another 8 on Tuesday to extend its worst prolonged decline in more than a year, the market tried to right itself with a 16-point technical rally on Wednesday.

But it fell back 12 on Thursday, and was able to advance only a point in Friday's session.

Brokers said it was difficult for the market to attract much enthusiasm in the face of generally disappointing third quarter earnings reports.

A prominent example of that was provided by International Business Machines shares, which fell sharply when the company, in reporting a 17.5 per cent rise in third quarter profits, warned of a slowdown in its earnings growth through the rest of 1976.

Such corporate news seemed to intensify investors' doubts about prospects for a resumption of the strong uptrend in the economy earlier in the year.

On Friday economists for the Business Council, an organization of top business executives, issued an upbeat forecast of a continued recovery in the economy through next year and into 1978.

But the market remained listless. After the week's trading had concluded, the Federal Reserve reported that industrial production had flattened out in September after an uninterrupted rise since March of 1975.

Brokers also noted uneasiness and confusion among the numerous investors who follow market charts in making investment decisions.

The selloff that began late last month drove the Dow out of the 960-1,015 range in which it had been fluctuating for most of the year. And, from a technicians' point of view, that left it groping about without any clear indications of the new levels where it could expect to find either support or resistance.

CBS stock was another target of sellers during the week after the company ousted its president, Arthur R. Taylor. Analysts said Wall Street had seen Taylor favorably for his expertise in money matters and the company's recent earnings record.

The over-all tally of NYSE-listed issues showed 552 gainers and 1,278 losers among the 2,093 traded during the week.

New highs for the year totalled 98 against 139 new lows.

Big Board volume averaged 17.87 million shares a day, just surpassing the 17.85 million average of the previous week.

The American Stock Exchange market value index fell 1.75 to 98.21.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 4.3 at 303.8.

Business briefs

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A steel company's reaction to the tragic deaths of four employes has led to a college scholarship program for every employe's children.

"As far as we know, we're the only company in the country that pays up to $1,000 a year for every child of every employe to go to college," said F. Kenneth Iverson, president of Nucor Corp.

The Charlotte-based firm, which manufactures steel supports for buildings, employs about 2,500 persons across the nation.

The program began in 1972 after an accident at the Nucor steel mill in Darlington, S.C., killed four men and injured two others. The four men killed had a total of 12 or 13 children, Iverson said.

A scholarship plan for the victims' children was expanded to the children of all employes. This year 163 students have Nucor scholarships.

Business briefs

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Office of Fair Trading (OFT) Thursday announced a monopoly investigation of the ice cream industry. Units of the Unilever Group and J. Lyons and Co. now have over 80 per cent of the market.

OFT Director General Gordon Borrie said he was referring the ice cream industry to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission because he was satisfied that there is "substantial evidence of a monopoly or that there is public interest in an inquiry of the kind that only the monopolies commission can conduct into the activities of the companies concerned."

Mobile Homes revival

'Low-cost' come-back

A marriage of mobile-home technology and tract builder know-how may well bring back the under-$30,000 home in markets with reasonalbe land costs.

It's a revival in a new guise of the modular home concept which flopped in 1969-70.

But this time round the concept makes much more sense.

It promises to blur the lines between the mobile home and conventional home markets.

These are findings of Advance Mortgage Corp. current survey, "U.S. Housing Markets."

The new modular house is what the industry terms a "code-complying" mobile home. It conforms to the minimum property standards of a 1969 Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Structural Engineering Bulletin — and therefore it qualifies for a standard 30-year FHA or VA house loan (if placed on a permanent foundation on an approved lot).

Some Florida builders, Advance Mortgage vice president Robert J. Schlaff, are already marketing such homes for as low as $23,000, with mortgage payments of $185 a month. At these payments, two thirds of American families are eligible homebuyers.

These are 1,000-square foot homes on 6,000 square foot HUD-approved lots, complete with landscaping, choice of siding, first-line appliance package and carpeting. Larger homes are also offered and several elevations and floor plans. They're sold as standard houses, not as mobile homes.

The impact of such units is not confined to the low end of the market. In Southern California, individuals are buying 2,500 square foot code-complying mobile homes to put on their own $30,000-and-up lots. Their installed cost exclusive of lot is around $40,000 — a savings of as much as $20,000 over a comparable stick-built home.

In these packages, the homebuilder's role changes. He is not so much a builder as site developer and marketer.

Finished cost of the new modular housing (complete with site preparation and appearance package) varies somewhat with size, manufacturer and local market. Based on a limited sample, selling prices seem to range from $15 to $19 a square foot (exclusive of land) with a cost advantage of $4 to $8 a square foot under a stick-built (conventional) home in the same market.

The revival of the modular housing concept, Schlaff said, is an almost accidental development of the new HUD standards on

Chino development

Setting to attract buyers

Streets with planted islands, cul-de-sacs and views of rolling hills are factors drawing home seekers to Countryside West, a Lewis Homes development in Chino, said project sales manager John Boyer.

Chino's small-town flavor and its virtual next-door proximity to Los Angeles and Orange counties are also major appeals," Boyer said. "Orange County seems almost to have adopted Chino as its own suburban community, with numerous families whose breadwinners toil there taking advantage of the lower prices that still exist in San Bernardino County."

Countryside West offers single-story, two-story and split-level homes priced from $48,050. The homes have from 1,356 to 2,194 square feet of living area. The purchase price includes such features as shake roofs, window drapes and side and rear yard fencing.

The homes also have shag wall-to-wall carpeting in living rooms, family rooms, hallways and all bedrooms and their wardrobe closets.

Kitchens have continuous cleaning ovens, ranges, dishwashers, snack bars, and storage space cupboard cabinets and pantries.

Bedroom pullmans are topped with cultured marble tops. Master baths are designed with dressing areas.

Boyer said the newly opened fourth unit of Countryside West is ready for purchase. Some homes are still available in previously completed units. Immediate occupancy is available through December.

The development centers on East End Avenue in Chino, one mile east of the Corona Expressway's Chino Avenue exit.

Countryside West may be reached from the San Bernardino or Pomona Freeway by going south on the Corona Expressway to the Chino Avenue exit, then one mile to East End Avenue and south to the model homes.

Cheap rates needed still

The National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) has urged Congress to continue at least on a standby basis government programs that provide mortgage money at below market interest rates during periods when credit is tight and expensive.

In testimony before a Senate Banking Housing and Urban Affairs Committee oversight hearing, J.S. Norman Jr., of Houston, said that without the mortgage funds provided through the tandem and so-called Brooke-Cranston programs "many builders would have been unable to survive" the 1974-75 recession.

These government programs are "a needed adjunct to other government efforts designed to assure that every American family has the opportunity to obtain adequate housing at a cost it can afford," said Norman, the immediate past president of NAHB. "They are especially needed when other government actions tighten up the supply of mortgage funds and drive up interest rates."

Although the housing picture has brightened considerably in the past year, Norman warned that interest rates hover at about 9 per cent — far too high for the budgets of millions of moderate income families. Many of these families, however, would be able to afford a new home with 7½ per cent mortgage money provided under the Brooke-Cranston program, he said.

The Brooke-Cranston program is one of the government's most effective but least expensive housing programs. The Government National Mortgage Association agrees in advance to buy mortgages from lenders at 7½ per cent interest rates. The lender issues the 7½ per cent mortgage to a new homebuyer or apartment builder and then sells the mortgage to GNMA, which, in turn, either keeps the mortgage in its own portfolio or sells it on the open market. In effect, the government is subsidizing the difference between the 7½ per cent interest rate and the going rate for mortgages in the secondary market.

In 1974-75, $7.75 billion in Brooke-Cranston money was released for purchase of single family mortgages. Another $5 billion was released this year for purchase of FHA/VA apartment mortgages.

The recent upturn in multifamily starts, Norman said, can be attributed to the release of the 7½ per cent mortgage money.

Another possibility would be for Congress to enact a permanent trigger mechanism "whereby tandem funds would be available whenever housing starts to fall below a certain level, "Norman said. This would eliminate the uncertainty in the housing industry created by the government's "start again — stop again" policy in regards to whether the program would be renewed.

Norman also noted that GNMA has recaptured about $5 billion from its recent mortgage sales. He urged HUD to release this money for purchase of single family mortgages.

Modular concept

Mobile homes reduce costs

mobile home construction and safety, which became effective June 15. These significantly raised manufacturing standards for all mobile homes. From that point, it was a short further step to meeting the "minimum property standards" for a true modular home.

In 1969-70, the modular housing boom turned into a fiasco in which most of the participants were hurt.

Why then is Advance Mortgage so convinced that the current version will be a success that may in time transform both housing and mobile home markets?

The cite five factors which have changed in the intervening years:

— The code-complying units do not require a separate factory. They're built on existing mobile home assembly lines. When they don't have orders from builders, these plants turn out their regular single-wides and double-wides. Therefore, they can achieve the economies of mass production without building up inventory.

In 1969-70, modular manufacturers stacked up inventory like cordwood to keep their assembly lines running. Their interest costs were onerous and many units were weather-damaged before they could be shipped.

—There is now a uniform national market for modulars. The HUD standard override state and local codes. In 1969, most states and many localities had their own modular code.

—The cost differential between a manufactured home and a stick-built unit of comparable size has widened. The ratio (average mobile home to stick-built) was 64 per cent in 1969, 56 per cent in 1974 and is estimated under 55 per cent today, despite several increases in manufactured home standards.

The current mobile home advantage, at retail, is about $10 a square foot. (A code-complying unit, however, will cost more than the average mobile home.) (In this comparison, the manufactured home cost includes furniture, appliances and carpeting. The stick-built home does not. Land costs are excluded.)

—Transportation is no longer a significant cost factor. Today's modular home travels to the site on its own wheels like any other mobile home, and there is a manufacturing plant within a short distance of almost any major market.

—Manufacturers have learned much more about building quality into their units since 1969. Some have been building units for some time under the rather stringent regional codes, which are close to the minimum property standards.

Some 20 manufacturers now offer the code-complying units. One has re-opened an idle regional plant to produce this product exclusively.

The industry's trade association, the Manufactured Housing Institute, is already taking steps to build better acquaintance between conventional homebuilders and code-complying-unit manufacturers. At a Builders Home Center which it held in Mid-September in Memphis, a dozen manufacturers exhibited and 1,600 builders were pre-registered. (Final attendance figures will not be available for some weeks.)

Speculators' profit 'dreams' disappear

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans who speculate in undeveloped tracts of land in remote areas run a high risk that their dreams of profit will never come true, a corporate research group says.

The retail land industry "has indeed sold Americans dreams of residential home sites that in the future will not come true," said Joanna Underwood, director of INFORM, a nonprofit organization that studies the impact of corporations on society.

The group released on Thursday the first of three volumes that contain its research into the real estate business. The three-year, $80,000 study, sponsored by five foundations, dealt with subdivision projects in Arizona, California, Colorado, New York, Florida and New Mexico.

The common characteristic of the real estate companies studied is that they buy large tracts of remote land, whose distance from existing communities makes development difficult. INFORM said its study did not involve the development of traditional suburban areas around existing cities.

Big 'risks' forecast in undeveloped land

INFORM, which is supported by foundation grants, devoted much of its report to guidelines designed to avoid abuses in the land business. The group said it hopes to make the guidelines available to government regulators at all levels and plans to publish a guide for potential land buyers.

"It's very, very risky — that's the approach the consumer should take," said Leslie Allan, one of the report's authors. "You have to become an informed buyer. You have to get answers to your questions."

The 10 subdivision projects mentioned in the first volume of the study cover half a million acres in several Western and Southwestern states. About 350,000 people have bought plots at these sites.

The chief problems at these locations, according to INFORM, are large expenses the buyer is not aware of at the time of his purchase; lack of essential services such as sewers; poor investment potential of the land, although the investment potential is often a major lure; and disregard of the environment in the area of the development.

The study says many of the plots in the projects are bought by people who don't plan to develop them for years, expecting the value of the land to rise. Ironically, however, the land's value depends on its development.

"It's all speculating on future conditions," Miss Underwood said. "That kind of speculation has proved unjustified."

Most of the companies studied by INFORM had not seen the report and could not comment immediately. One that had a response was McCulloch Properties Inc., a subsidiary of McCulloch Oil Corp.

"When they talked about our projects they pointed out that these are viable communities and not desert land schemes," President Robert McCulloch said. "I think they are wellmeaning. But there are misinterpretations and misunderstandings. This is a very complicated and involved business."

High radiation risks alleged

Bid to ban, recall smoke detectors rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has rejected a petition urging the ban and recall of more than four million smoke detectors containing a radioactive material, Ralph Nader's Health Research Group said today.

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission disagreed with the consumer group's contention that ionization smoke detectors posed a radiation risk, and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development indicated it will continue accepting either ionization or photo-electric units in the VA and FHA-financed housing.

"The choice of whether a photo-electric or ionization detector should be used in homes should be left to judgment of the individual consumer after consideration of the relative merits of each type based on recommendations made by independent testing laboratories and fire protection authorities," wrote Kenneth R. Chapman, director of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's office of nuclear material safety and safeguards.

He said the Health Research Group's report issued a month ago contained no new information, was incomplete and reached unjustified conclusions.

"We are concerned," Chapman said, "that the creation of unjustified apprehension and confusion in the minds of the public on the matter of smoke detectors will result in risk to life and property through precipitous removal of the detectors."

The Health Research Group report alleged that the use of small amounts of the radioactive material americium in nearly 4.2 million ionization smoke detectors unnecessarily subjected homeowners and workers to radiation exposure in event of fire or a product defect.

Arguing that photo-electric smoke detectors work just as well without posing a radio active hazard, the consumer organization urged the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to ban ionization units and recall those already sold.

Chapman said, however, that the government's radiation safety analysis of ionization units found that "radiation exposures were very small and well within acceptable limits," even under conditions simulating accidents.

Chavez, union hit in $1.5 million suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A $1.5 million libel suit has been filed against the United Farm Workers and Cesar Chavez over Prop. 14, the initiative which would reenact, with some changes, the state's farm labor law.

The suit was filed in San Francisco this week by the Garin Co., a large farming corporation centered in Salinas. The company claimed it was libeled in a newspaper printed and distributed by the defendants and in a poster showing a child working in an onion field.

Among the defendants is the Yes on 14 Committee.

The suit claimed the newspaper, El Malcriado, and the poster, stated that the children shown were working in onion fields at the Garin Ranch in Mettler.

The Garin suit said the newspaper and the poster "are entirely false in that the plaintiff does not use child labor, does not farm at Mettler, Calif., did not farm onions on July 1, 1976, and had no relationship with the labor contractor named in the poster."

Will Kirkland, a spokesman for the "Yes on 14" group in Northern California, said, "We have photographs of those kids in those fields.

Mosquito hum key to sex

NEW YORK (AP) — If you've ever wondered how to tell the sex of a mosquito, just listen.

The hum or 'buzz" a mosquito makes as it flies is actually the sound of its wings beating. A female's wings make a higher tone than the male's, according to "World Book Encyclopedia." The higher hum helps males find mates.

No Bunker Hill

Revolution war of movement, sometimes back

EDITOR'S NOTE: After Harlem Heights, the American Revolution became for a while a war of movement, backwards if necessary, but not Bunker Hill.

By SID MOODY

AP Newsfeatures Writer

The idea of the Great Fox Hunt dawned gradually. But eventually it became clear to both commanders that one would have to retreat in the fall of 1776 and the other give chase. The fox — George Washington — ran because he had to. The hound — Gen. William Howe, the British commander — ran when he chose to. As often he walked. Or stood still.

The Battle of Harlem Heights in New York had bolstered American morale but improved little else. Militia enlistments, again, were soon to expire. Congress had created a standing army, but the states retained control over the regiments they raised and appointed their officers. Looting, a sure sign of rot, was commonplace.

Some soldiers drew up in formation and threatened to shoot a brigade major who had tried to stop them as they carried off four large mirrors and a bundle of women's clothes from a house.

The commander-in-chief said the next person "shall suffer death without mercy." Washington was as tentative in graver matters.

Justifiably fearful of a flanking move by General Howe, Washington held a council of war on Oct. 16. With but one dissenting vote the generals agreed to follow Gen. Charles Lee's insistent urgings and withdraw over the floating bridge at King's Bridge into Westchester But — a large but — a garrison of 2,000 men would be kept at Fort Washington in upper Manhattan even though they now would be in the rear of the enemy with no chance of help. "A worse military decision has not often been made," says historian Christopher Ward.

The army of 13,000 men began its retreat to White Plains on Oct. 18. Due to a wagon shortage, the teamsters had to make many round trips, dumping their loads and returning for more. The cannon were dragged by hand. What normally should have been completed in one day took four.

Howe, meanwhile, had started a flanking movement. At 3 a.m. Oct. 11 he began loading 5,000 men aboard transports and under cover of fog set off for a landing eventually at Pell's Point near present-day New Rochelle, northeast of the Bronx. What with skirmishes along the way he didn't arrive until Oct. 18.

It fell to John Glover, with his Marbleheaders and several other Massachusetts detachments, to try to prevent the British from establishing a beachhead.

Glover rallied 750 men and three cannon, and later wrote: "I would have given a thousand words to have had General Lee, or some other experienced officer, to direct or at least approve what I had done ..." What he had done was to follow Putnam's advice: "Shelter them, and they will fight forever."

Glover stationed his men behind three consecutive stone walls flanking Split Rock Road. "The enemy gave a shout and advanced; Colonel Read's (Joseph Read's regiment), laying under cover of a stone wall undiscovered till they came within 30 yards, then rose up and gave them the whole charge; the enemy broke and retreated ..."

The Americans then fell back to the rear leaving the next group in turn to fight. Col. Loammi Baldwin, an orchardist whose apples still bear his name, said his men were "calm ... as though expecting a shot at a flock of pigeons or ducks." In fact one souvenir hunter jumped over the wall to retrieve a hat and canteen from a dying British officer.

Glover's stubborn delaying action lasted all day, even in the face of seven British cannon. He lost three killed and 20 wounded. Howe reported three dead, but he did not normally include Hessians, among whom losses were heavy. Glover withdrew at nightfall "after fighting without victuals or drink" and his men alternately stood guard and slept, "the heavens over us and the earth under us." He had served Washington well, possibly saving him from a flank attack that would have scattered the vulnerable American army.

After securing his beachhead, Howe remained at New Rochelle for three days and Mamaroneck for four more not reaching White Plains until Oct. 28. He had advanced about 17 miles in 10 days. When Howe later defended his inaction in Parliament, he gave "political reasons" for his delay but did not elaborate. However, by now he evidently had realized that destruction of Washington's army was his proper end, although at minimal cost to his men.

Washington, too, was learning on the job. He believed Howe's movements were "to form a line in our rear (which) must never be allowed." That meant a war of movement, backwards if necessary, not Bunker Hill.

A line finally formed at White Plains.

There Washington, most likely with the help of Lee, had chosen his ground well. On his right, across a north-south gully cut by the Bronx River, stood Chatterton's Hill, a 180-foot knoll of farmland and stone walls. General William Heath held another hill on the left for the Americans.

The British, once again, formed ranks in a real-life Hollywood spectacular. Mounted dragoons, who charged to the accompaniment of kettle drummers and trumpets, pranced in line. Otto Hufeland, a rebel officer, was awestruck: "Its appearance was truly magnificent. A bright autumnal sun shed its lustre on the polished arms; and the rich array of dress and military equipage gave an imposing grandeur to the scene as they advanced in all the pomp and circumstance of war."

Lee, Heath and Washington were scouting terrain when a horseman "came up in full gallop, his horse almost out of breath."

"The British are on the camp, sir!"

Washington spurred his horse: "Gentlemen, we have now other business than reconnoitering ... you will repair to your respective posts and do the best you can." They did a little better this time.

Right time wrong 'til standard time zones

NEW YORK (AP) — Though nearly everybody in the United States observes official standard time, almost nobody today remembers Dr. Charles Ferdinand Dowd — or Nov. 18, 1883, the day time stood still in this country.

A hundred years ago most Americans did not own or carry watches — pocket watches, that is, as wristwatches did not even exist — and practically nobody had the "right time."

The problem was that there was no "official time," either nationally or internationally. Each city, town and village operated on its own time. Usually this was determined by a leading local jeweler who set his most accurate clock to 12 noon from time to time throughout the year, at that moment when he judged the sun was directly overhead, according to Bulova Watch Co. researchers.

This system created havoc with railroad schedules and each railroad line, as a result, operated on its own time.

At a main railroad station, typically, there was a series of "railroad clocks," each set to the times used by the different railroads using the same station.

Dr. Dowd, a Saratoga, N.Y. school principal, strongly disapproved of all this confusion and long campaigned to establish "standard time zones" in the United States. He thought such a system would improve railroad service for the public, and also make railroad crossings safer.

Finally, his proposal won acceptance, and on Nov. 18, 1883, time "stood still" throughout the United States as clocks were reset to conform to "standard time" as required by Congress.

In New York City, the clocks at City Hall and in classrooms were stopped for three minutes and 58 seconds — the amount local time had previously been officially ahead of new Eastern Standard Time. In Philadelphia the change amounted to only 36 seconds.

But in Chicago, in the new Central Time Zone, local pride resisted conforming to the new time standard, and Chicagoans persisted in keeping their clocks 17 minutes ahead of everybody else in the Central Time Zone.

The most serious resistance took place, however, in Bangor, Me., where the mayor vetoed ordinances for the adoption of Eastern Standard Time. The new time standard, he declared "violates the of the immutablelas of God and is a farce. Most citizens accepted it anyway, setting their watches and clocks at 9 a.m. on Nov. 18, while the mayor, with his assistants, stood guard over the town clocks which read 9:28.

For Dr. Dowd, the adoption of standard time zones was a great personal satisfaction. Ironically, he met sudden death when he was run down by a train at a railroad crossing nearly 30 years later, on Nov. 12, 1904. Apparently, the train involved was not on time.

The immediate popular success of standard time zones led to the convening of the Washington Meridian Conference by President Chester A. Arthur a year later, in 1884. At this conference, it was agreed to establish standard time zones around the world, so that a universal time standard would be recognized by all nations.

The treaty signed at the conference recognized Greenwich Mean Time as the standard time for the so-called "Prime Meridian," which runs through Greenwich, a small town near London, England.

Every 15 degrees geographically west or east of Greenwich calls for a one-hour change in standard time. (A degree is one 360th of the earth's circumference, or about 70 miles at the equator.)

There is, for example, a five-hour difference in standard time between Greenwich, England, and Cape Kennedy, which is nearly 81 degrees to the west. When it's noon GMT, it's only 7 a.m. standard time in Florida.

But not every country today recognizes the decisions of the Washington Meridian Conference. In Saudi Arabia, for example, the official time each day is determined by the rising of the sun. In other areas of the world, political and geographical considerations result in wide variations of the "15 degree rule." And in the mid-Pacific, Tonga, the only remaining Polynesian kingdom, has its own time zone, Tongan Standard Time, where each of the earth's calendar days officially begins, Bulova researchers report.

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — City officials are bringing all their chickens home to roost.

Ordinance No. 1 — originally adopted in 1897 — was amended by the City Council this week to include chickens in the list of animals prohibited from running loose in the city.

The amendment was by Councilman Davis A. Osborne who acted after learning of recent neighborhood squabbles over loose chickens.

DEAR POLLY — Instead of wasting liquid detergent by trying to pour it from the original container onto stains on shirt collars, etc., I pour it into an empty dishwashing detergent bottle with a squeeze top so I can easily squeeze out the proper amount. —SHERRY.

DEAR POLLY — Use an old nylon stocking to scrub the tile, tub and floor corners when cleaning the bathroom or shower. It removes the most stubborn dirt if a little dry cleanser is added. — JEAN.

Send your helpful hints to Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — With a family of eight it seems there's always a dried splotch of something on the kitchen floor. I put an ice cube on each spot, go about my morning chores and when the ice is partially melted and the spot is soft I wipe it up with a paper towel. — NORMA.

DEAR POLLY — Aluminum containers from TV dinners are ideal to use in the bottom of the roaster when cooking a turkey. No burning — and less clean-up! — MRS. S.K.

DEAR POLLY — To clean my steam iron I add one tablespoon of vinegar to the water in it and turn the heat on as high as it will go for about five minutes. Unplug the iron and hold it over the sink to let the steam out. The residue will drain out with the steam. —DORIS. (Polly's note-Be sure to protect the counter top or wherever you leave the iron to heat, as some black may spurt out. I use white vinegar for this and rinse the iron out with clear water.)

DEAR POLLY — An old cloth shoe bag put on a coat hanger in the closet is great for holding and storing gloves and mittens —RICK.

DEAR POLLY — Charitable organizations that run resale shops always welcome gifts of small appliances that they can repair and resell. To make such a gift even more valuable, hunt up the manual or instruction sheets for the appliance and tuck inside. They would certainly be welcomed by the next owner. — VICKI.

DEAR POLLY — After defrosting the freezer I spray with a nonstick vegetable coating. The next defrosting is a breeze. — SARA.

DEAR POLLY — I take an old pair of ladies' hose, put one inside the other, put dusting powder for insects in the bottom of the hose and then shake it over growing vegetables. This saves powder and does not burn the plants. — H.W.S.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

CHERIE' LEE OF SALEM, OR, ASKS:

"HOW DOES A KITE FLY ?"

A KITE IS LIGHT AND HAS A LARGE SURFACE FOR THE AIR TO HOLD UP. A STRING HOLDS THE KITE STEADY, WITH ITS FACE SLANTED TO THE WIND. THE PRESSURE OF THE WIND PUSHING ON THE TIPPED FACE FORCES THE KITE TO RISE. IF THE KITE WERE NOT HELD BY THE KITE STRING, IT WOULD BE WHIRLED AWAY AND WOULD FALL TO THE GROUND. OFTEN A CLOTH TAIL IS USED TO HELP BALANCE A KITE WHILE IT FLIES.

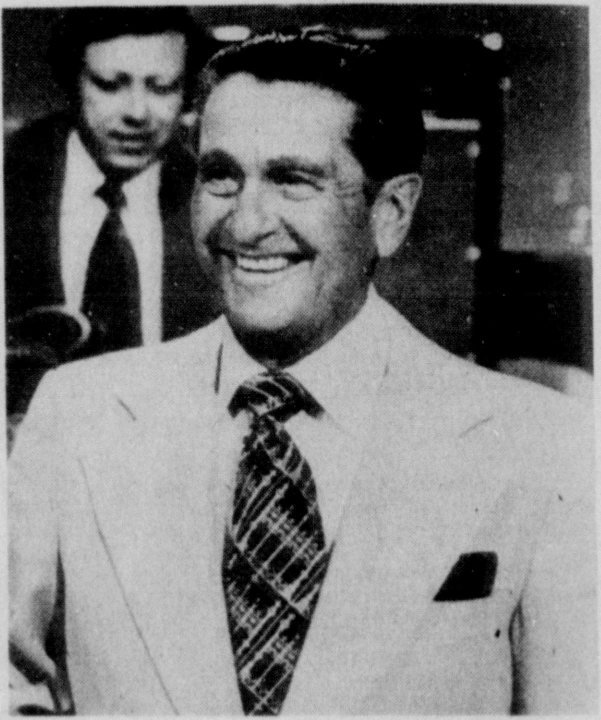
'WHAT IS A LAWRENCE WELK?'



It was his 21st birthday, March 11, 1924, the day he'd anticipated for years. The day when he would leave the farm and the protective, if stern, arms of his parents, to seek his fortune as a musician.

He was ill-qualified, with a fourth-grade education and no musical knowledge other than his innate love of music, and five years of accordion playing by ear at local weddings, church socials and Name Day celebrations. But, determinedly, he kissed his mother goodbye, shook the firm hand of his father, who thereupon predicted his certain failure and early return to the farm. That dire prediction proved a constant prod to the young man throughout his lifetime.

What is a Lawrence Welk? What kind of person is he? A complexity of machenations or naive honesty? A myth? An opportunist?Well, in the fifty-two years which followed that eventful birthday, Lawrence Welk has overcome every single obstacle that ever stood in his way, to achieve one of the most uniquely successful careers in the annals of America's free enterprise system.

His fans know the man they admire, love him and often correspond with him. The entertainmen world, in sheer wonderment, is astonished that "the square cornball from Strasburg, North Dakota," is now in his 22nd consecutive year on the national airwaves, despite the predictions of many back in June, 1955, who said he'd be cancelled within four weeks of his initial 13-week "summer replacement" television contract.

Lawrence Welk is simplicity itself—a trait reflecting his frugal early life—a man of simple needs, simple pleasures, and the joys of honest labor, family love and family discipline.

His homespun upbringing as a youngster is evident today in Welk, the man, whose unique success has made him—in the words of the late Walter Winchell—"an American tradition in his own lifetime." Underneath his genial smile, his bouncing enthusiasm, is to be found the credo he learned to live by in Strasburg; that Truth is basic and has no substitute, that reverence for God, parents and family, and good taste, dignity and honesty are all part of that Truth, and that every fellow man has good in him, if only we will search for that goodness.

HAVING BABIES

'Having Babies,' a dramatic story of four couples as they experience childbirth using the "natural" Lamaze method, airs as the ABC Sunday Night Movie from 9–11PM.

Linda Purl and Desi Arnaz Jr. are a young newly-married couple who decide, not only to study the Lamaze technique, but to have their baby at home. Greg Mullavey, a rising young attorney, and his champion tennis player wife, Karen Valentine, almost come to divorce when she insists she will return to the world of tennis. Jessica Walter is the second wife of Ronny Cox whose first wife died leaving him with three children. Unmarried Vicki Lawrence decides to go ahead and have her baby even though the father has disappeared. Abe Vigoda, a neighbor and a recent widower, becomes a sort of surrogate grandfather-to-be when he helps Vicki. Coaching the couples in the Lamaze method is Adrienne Barbeau. Richard Masur plays her understanding professor-husband.

FROM THE 60'S

Popular singer-composer Arlo Guthrie guest stars in "Chapter IV" of ABC's "Rich Man, Poor Man—Book II," Tuesday at 9PM. Guthrie, who plays himself, will perform his 1968 hit "Alice's Restaurant" on the program—which is set during that period. Peter Strauss stars as Rudy Jordache in the continuation of last season's smash mini-series. Also starring are James Carroll Jordan as Billy Abbott and Gregg Henry as Wesley Jordache.

CLOSE-UP

HE NEVER STANDS STILL

A friend was following Dick Van Dyke down the halls of the NBC studios in Burbank last week, and couldn't help laughing at the slim-hipped comedian. "Dick," he called, "if you lose any more weight you'll need thumb tacks to hold your pants up."

Dick, who is one of the most active men in Hollywood, has lost 10 pounds since he started taping Van Dyke and Company, his new series airing on NBC, Thursdays at 10PM.

One of the reasons he's so slim is that he never, never stands still. His average day is a man-killer, but he loves it. Dick, who lives alone in a rented house in Burbank on weekdays, gets up early and jogs to a local gym, where he works out with weights and stretching exercises for an hour before heading for the studio.

Is Dick Van Dyke some kind of a nut? No. It is just that he came close to losing his health twice in recent years.

Friends thought Dick and his wife Marjorie moved to Arizona five years ago because he was retiring from the business—but Dick says he moved because he actually thought he was getting too old, and was ready to move to Arizona and await his death. "I was drinking hard and heavy," he recalls, "and it was wrecking my health. I felt like an old man."

He checked himself into an alcoholic rehabilitation hospital in Phoenix, and life has been getting better ever since. "I feel better now, at 50, than I did at 25," says Dick.

The second "scare" came early this spring when, during a routine physical, his doctor spotted what appeared to be a tumor, and suggested quick surgery. The operation proved that the "tumor" was nothing but kidney stones.

"I jog, ride a bike, do Yoga exercises, avoid candy and sweets, stay away from white flour and white sugar in any form, and I'm working 12 to 14 hours a day—and I can honestly say I have never felt better in my life. Each day is a thrill and a kick to me now," says Dick.

"If I can just kick this dumb cigarette habit I'll be disgustingly perfect."

Dick Van Dyke and The L.A. Mime Company, regulars on his NBC-TV series, Thursdays at 10PM.

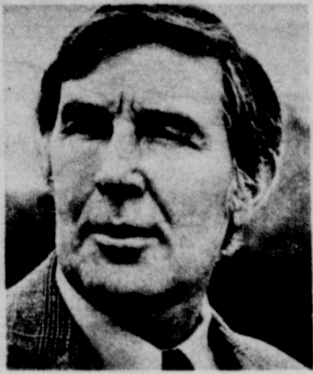
FOR REP. MORRIS K. UDALL (D.-Ariz.)

Until recently, you spent two years traveling around the country, running for the Presidency. Didn't you feel guilty accepting your salary and not spending more time representing the people who elected you? —J. Tyson Lee, Swans Island, Maine

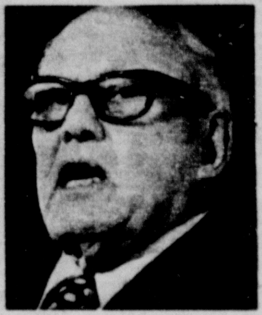
● No. The present tradition of allowing candidates for higher office to remain in their present office is better than the alternative, which would result in only the rich running for the Presidency. Many times, congressmen have served in party leadership positions without resigning their elected offices or waiving their salaries. I doubt that many governors, senators or congressmen would seek party and national leadership jobs if that meant giving up their present positions. Our tradition is a sound one. Without it, we would suffer a real loss of experienced and dedicated national leaders.



FOR GEORGE MEANY, president of the A.F.L.-C.I.O.

Have you ever considered running for a political office?—David Allen, Durham, N.C.

● No—for two reasons: First, the A.F.L.-C.I.O. does not believe that any private-interest group, including labor, should seek or hold political power. Second, the office which I hold is the highest one I have ever aspired to. Just doing this job to the best of my ability is the height of my ambition.



FOR JEAN PETERS

Why, after quitting your career 20 years ago to marry Howard Hughes, did you decide to return to acting?—Violet Pavelec, Waterloo, Iowa

● I'll be darned if I know. A moment of madness, I think. I ran into my old friend Ross Hunter, who was producing "The Moneychangers" for NBC-TV, and he asked me if I wanted to be in it. It seemed like fun. It's a nice part—not too big—and I greatly admire Christopher Plummer, whom I play opposite.

FOR MARY BROOKS, Director of the U.S. Mint

What part of your job gives you the biggest headache?—H.C., Lowell, Mass.

● Estimating the coin demand so we can keep Americans well-stocked with a big enough supply of coins—all of which have to be ordered in advance. You know, the Mint has one of the biggest industrial plants in Government, so that's why our biggest problems revolve around running the rolling mills . . . and melting and casting the strip.

FOR REAR ADM. WILLIAM M. LUKASH, physician to President Ford

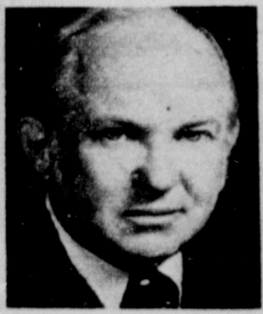
Is it an awesome task, being entrusted with the care of the President?—S.A., Tupelo, Miss.

● Awesome only in that I recognize my responsibility as his personal physician and am committed to care for his health to the best of my ability. When there's a need for it, I seek the most competent advice available. In order to respond to the demands of his job, the President must maintain good health—that's where I come in.

FOR JAMES KILPATRICK, syndicated political columnist

Do you consider the second Woodward-Bernstein book, "The Final Days," to be accurate?—M.A.M., Gloversville, N.Y.

● I suppose the book is generally accurate, but I find it tasteless, needless and cruel. It will be enormously profitable besides.



FOR FANNIE FLAGG

How many sweaters do you have, how often do you wear them, and what eventually happens to them?—Lois A. Oberg, Cheyenne, Wyo.

● I have about 60, all custom-made. I wear them about two or three times on TV before donating them to charity.

FOR SUSAN SARANDON, star of "Dragonfly"

If you could choose your next leading man, who would it be?—R.P., Waterbury, Conn.

● In my age group, Robert DeNiro, Dustin Hoffman, Al Pacino, Richard Dreyfuss or Sam Waterston. They're all incredibly bright and original. I like to work with people who surprise me and who are professional. Someone who makes me want to produce more than I think I'm capable of doing. Among "older" actors, either Cary Grant or Paul Newman.

FOR FRAN TARKENTON of the Minnesota Vikings

Do you believe the death of the reserve clause, allowing players freedom of movement between teams, will mean all the players will want to play for the so-called "glamour" teams, such as New York or Los Angeles?—John Wilson, Waco, Texas

● No, the end of the reserve clause won't be the ruination of the sport, if that's what you mean. Not everybody wants to play in New York City or Los Angeles. The best organized and best managed teams will win, not the richest. That's as it's always been.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I've always enjoyed Ed Asner on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show and am sorry the series is ending. I'd like to know more about him. What can you tell me?—S.S., Boise, Idaho

● Ed is also sorry that filming of the series is ending. But, at the same time, he's glad he's being forced out. ("After six years, there's the danger of getting into a rut.") You haven't seen the last of Ed, though. He says that a new show, structured around him, is in the works at CBS. If Ed wasn't an actor, he'd probably be a sportsman. He became an all-city tackle in high school, and during his service in the Army in France, he managed a basketball team, which was rated second-best in Europe. In 1958 Ed married the former Nancy Lou Sykes and, since 1961, they've lived on the West Coast. They have 13-year-old twins, Matthew and Liza, and Kate, 9. Also three dogs, three cats, two goldfish and one turtle. The entire Asner family are animal lovers.

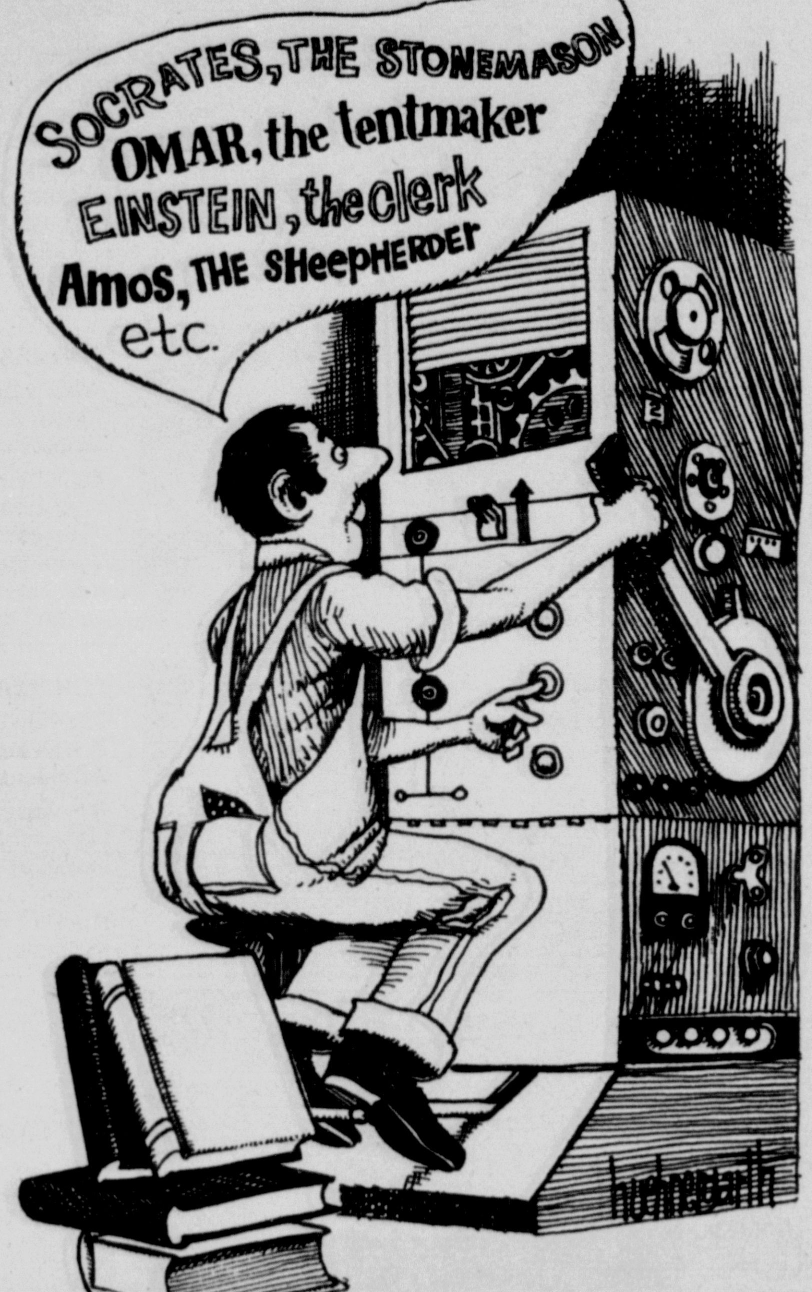
"I SAVOR THE JOY OF DULL WORK"

Excerpts from the new book by Eric Hoffer, who works with both his hands and his mind and who believes in the value of monotony and routine.



There is no evidence that great achievers live exciting lives. Einstein worked out his theory of relativity while still a clerk in a Swiss patent office.

By Eric Hoffer

There seems to be a general assumption that brilliant people cannot stand routine, that they need a varied, exciting life in order to do their best. It is also assumed that dull people are particularly suited for dull work. We are told that the reason the present-day young protest so loudly against the dullness of factory jobs is that they are better educated and brighter than the young of the past.

MUST WORK BE INTERESTING?

Actually, there is no evidence that people who achieve much crave for, let alone live, eventful lives. The opposite is nearer the truth. One thinks of Amos the sheepherder, Socrates the stonemason, Omar the tentmaker. Jesus may have had his first revelations while doing humdrum carpenter work. Einstein worked out his theory of relativity while serving as a clerk in a Swiss patent office. Machiavelli wrote The Prince and the Discourses while immersed in the dull life of a small country town where the only excitement he knew was playing cards with muleteers at the inn. Immanuel Kant's daily life was an unalterable routine. The housewives of Königsberg set their clocks when they saw him pass on his way to the university. He took the same walk each morning rain or shine. The greatest distance Kant ever traveled was 60 miles from Königsberg.

The outstanding characteristics of man's creativeness is the ability to transmute trivial impulses into momentous consequences. The greatness of man is in what he can do with petty grievances and joys and with common physiological pressures and hungers. "When I have a little vexation," wrote Keats, "it grows in five minutes into a theme for Sophocles." To a creative individual all experience is seminal—all events are equidistant from new ideas and insights—and his inordinate humanness shows itself in the ability to make the trivial and common reach an enormous way.

An eventful life exhausts rather than stimulates. Milton, who in 1640 was a poet of great promise, spent 20 sterile years in the eventful atmosphere of the Puritan Revolution. He fulfilled his great promise when the Revolution was dead and he in solitary disgrace. Cellini's exciting life kept him from becoming the great artist he could have been. It is legitimate to doubt whether Machiavelli would have written his great books had he been allowed to continue in the diplomatic service of Florence and go on interesting missions. It is usually the mediocre poet or writer who goes in search of stimulating events to release his creative flow.

But it may be true that work on the assembly line dulls the faculties and empties the mind. The cure would be fewer hours of work at higher pay. But during 50 years as a workingman, I have found dull routine compatible with an active mind. I can still savor the joy I used to derive from the fact that while doing dull, repetitive work on the waterfront, I could talk with my partners and compose sentences in the back of my mind, all at the same time. Life seemed glorious. Chances are that had my work been of absorbing interest I could not have done any thinking and composing on the company's time or even on my own time after returning from work.

People who find dull jobs unendurable are often dull people who do not know what to do with themselves when at leisure. Children and mature people thrive on dull routine, while the adolescent who has lost the child's capacity for concentration and who is without the inner resources of the mature, needs excitement and novelty to stave off boredom.

A JOB TO DO

You ask yourself: What are the essential attributes a country must have if it is to remain vigorous? The answer is simple: So long as a country has courage and a passion for excellence, it can face the future confidently no matter how fearsome its difficulties. Courage is not only a serviceable substitute for hope but also, as we know, it is a chief factor in the maintenance of personal security. As to the passion for excellence, it may sound highfalutin, but it actually concerns common, everyday affairs. I have spent 50 years doing backbreaking work in the fields, in lumber camps and on the waterfront. Many of the people I lived and worked with had courage and, whether they knew it or not, a passion for excellence.

The word "job" used to have a magical connotation in this country. It was something you had to do the best way you knew how. A job might be unpleasant, dangerous or trivial, but it still had to be done, and it had a claim on your skill and ingenuity. Even the simplest job had its mysteries, and once you fathomed them, time flew.

As one would expect, the formula, "There is a job to do," cropped up in situations that had nothing to do with work. The American's performance on the battlefield, for instance, had a matter-of-fact, job-doing quality. He did not fight for a motherland, fatherland or some ideal. There was a job to do, and he did it. Field Marshal Rommel was astonished by the prosaic, practical manner in which Americans mastered modern warfare.

I remember first reading Marx's description of the worker's attitude toward work in a capitalist society. The worker, he said, feels physically and morally debased by his work. He is like an exile in his place of work and feels at home only when away from his job. Marx never did a day's work in his life and never took the trouble to find out how a worker really feels when on the job. He naturally assumed that workers were a lesser breed of intellectuals.

By now, many workers have indeed become a lesser breed of intellectuals, and their attitude toward work fits Marx's description. They feel demeaned and dehumanized by the work they have to do and see a job as a trap. Workingmen who have never read a book talk glibly about frustration, alienation and relevance. Like intellectuals, they expect a job not only to give them the wherewithal of a living but to fill their lives with meaning.

The fact that the word "job" has lost its magic is affecting America's performance and style in every field. Will we need the tribal magic of charismatic leaders and medicine men to get things done in peacetime and in war?

No matter how high the wages and how generous the fringe benefits, the feeling persists that all a workingman can get out of his job is a living, and he is in it for life. The prospect before him is an endless daily grind, an endless deadening routine which so bruises body and mind that retirement at 65 means a mere fading out.

Revulsion from work can be counteracted by offering the workingman a tangible and relatively immediate goal. Assuming that a year has 240 working days of six hours each, then 20 years of work—4,800 days—should qualify a worker for a pension. A day in the mine or on the assembly line should count double and so should overtime work. Under such an arrangement, a youth who started working at 18 would have (counting overtime) a fair chance of retiring at 35 or so. If he becomes a miner or works on the assembly line, he could retire sooner. Moreover, a six-hour workday might make it possible for many to get an education while they are working. Two hours of book learning a day should give a workingman a college education by the time he retires.

COMPASSION

In the alchemy of man's soul almost all noble attributes—courage, honor, love, hope, faith, duty, loyalty—can be transmuted into ruthlessness. Compassion alone stands apart from the continuous traffic between good and evil proceeding within us. Compassion is the antitoxin of the soul: Where there is compassion even the most poisonous impulses remain relatively harmless. Thus the survival of the species may well depend on the ability to foster a boundless capacity for compassion.

Compassion seems to have its roots in the family. We think of those we love as easily bruised, and our love is shot through with imaginings of the hurts lying in wait for them. A loving wife cannot help imagining the wounds which a day's participation in the rat race may inflict on her husband, and he in turn senses the fears, born of unavoidable physical decline, which prey on his wife's mind. Their impulse is to protect, console and reassure each other. Parents overflow with compassion as they see their children go out into a strange, cold world.

It is conceivable that the present weakening of the family may allow compassion to leak into wider circles. So, too, the creation of family ties between strangers by esprit de corps should aid the spread of compassion. But the question is whether we can make people compassionate by education. It amazes me that well-educated people are not more compassionate than the uneducated. The reverse seems to be true. When Gandhi was asked what worried him most, he replied: "The hardness of heart of the educated." The enormities of the 20th century were committed by people who were better educated than the average and who felt competent to instruct and guide the ignorant. It was not farfetched of Churchill to speak of the members of the Soviet politburo as "the bloody-minded professors of the Kremlin." There was a high percentage of schoolteachers among the Nazi Gauleiters. Among the 20 members of the group in charge of the extermination of the Jews there were a university professor, eight lawyers, a dental surgeon, an architect, an art expert and an ex-pastor.

"IT'S NOT ALWAYS EASY BEING BEAUTIFUL"

The wife of the Six-Million-Dollar Man says she loves being a homemaker but resents having her looks exploited.

Pictorial Parade

Farrah with husband Lee Majors. She plays a detective in the TV series, "Charlie's Angels," and stars in the film, "Logan's Run."

By Farrah Fawcett-Majors

When I first heard from Lee Majors, I thought he was the rudest man I'd ever encountered.

It all started when his publicist saw my picture at a friend's office. He said, "She looks great—I know someone who would probably love to meet her!" So he took my photo to Lee, who agreed and called me up. He was working on location in "The Big Valley" TV series when he called. I was out, and when I came back, there was this rather brusque message from him: "Please tell her I'll be by at eight to pick her up."

Of course, I knew who he was, but I'd never met him, and I was surprised to find out he knew about me. All I could think was: How rude! How dare he just leave a message like that. When he called, I was all prepared to turn him down. But I changed my mind when he said, "I'm so sorry to have left that message. You know when you work on the set, you can't always get back to a phone, and I just didn't want you to make plans . . ." Well, he was so charming and sweet, I just melted and said, "Ohhhh, yes . . ." That was seven years ago. We've been together ever since.

We got married two years ago, and at this point in our lives, children are not an issue. In a year or two, though, I'd like to start a family.

Now that Lee and I are both becoming increasingly busy, I'm often asked how we manage our marriage. I'll admit it gets more difficult to work out our schedules. I do believe, though, that my career is secondary to Lee's, and if he said, "Tomorrow I have to leave for Europe for four months, and you have to come with me," then I'd go. If I were offered a picture and had to be away from him, I'd talk it over with him first. If he said no, then that's the way it would be. My marriage comes first. When I was doing a pilot for a series, I got a six-o'clock cutoff clause in the contract so I could get home before Lee and have dinner ready. He would never have insisted on that, but I wanted to do it.

For instance, there have been a couple of film offers. I thought I wanted to do them at first, but after we'd discussed them, I realized that I didn't want them after all. Had I not married Lee, I probably would have gone to New York more, modeled more. But I have no regrets.

FARRAH FAWCETT-MAJORS

Continued

Farrah: Her orders come from Majors.

I'm better prepared now, and without the commercials I've done I would be unrecognized today. Those commercials provided my training since I never took drama.

There's no competition between Lee and me as far as our careers are concerned. There is, however, when it comes to sports. He's such an athlete, such a competitor, and he'll sometimes yell at me on the tennis court if I don't return a volley the right way. I'm just not competitive—but he's always got to win. Even though I'm better at some things than he, I can't think of anything I can beat him in! I really play better tennis than Lee, but he beats me out of sheer determination.

Because he's so strong and capable, few people realize how sensitive Lee is. For instance, with the success of his show, "The Six Million Dollar Man," a lot of rumors sprung up about us—that we're divorced, we're separated, we're arguing, we're this, we're that. None of them was true. So when Lee took out a big page ad in the trade papers to publicize his directorial début in the series, he added a postscript to the effect that he wanted the world to know we were going to be together forever. I don't know of any actor who's ever taken out an ad in Variety or The Reporter who hasn't used his own picture, but here was Lee with his first directorial effort coming up, and he used a picture of me!

Lee's sensitivity shows in his work as an actor, too. He's not afraid to show his emotions before the camera—he'll even cry on screen.

One odd thing about me, I never thought about what I was going to be. I've asked my mother what I said on the subject when I was a child, and she said that when I was 4 or 5, I wanted to be a nun. And that's the last time I ever said anything about it.

I'm told my friends brag about my being a marvelous housekeeper. I can't stand dust or dirt, and I am constantly cleaning. Lee, on the other hand, is the opposite. His clothes are everywhere. He couldn't care less.

We do have a housekeeper, but that's because we have two dogs and need her mainly when we go out of town. She doesn't do the cooking. She just cleans the house.

I love to cook, too! People say, "You're great—you come home and make homemade breads and dinner. Does Lee really appreciate all this?" I think he does—I think he'll always appreciate me because I'm a great cook.

I seem to surprise people a lot. Most don't expect me to be able to do anything. Many think that because I've modeled and my looks have been exploited on commercials, I haven't any talent or mental capacity. I've heard producers say, "We really have to be truthful with you; we're glad you came in and read because we thought you were a dumb blonde—beautiful, but nothing going on upstairs!" It didn't upset me, because I made very good grades in high school and college. I got straight A's.

I know I'm no dummy, but it's a hindrance to be good-looking. You don't get the great roles because people will say, "It's just not believable that you would be pining away, waiting for your husband to get home from prison or the war—or that you'd be a waitress . . ." You know, there really aren't that many good roles for great-looking women! There used to be—but no more.

One problem in selecting parts is the nudity. I won't do that, and I've turned down a lot of roles because of my attitude. Not that I think there's anything wrong with it—I see films with nudity in them all the time. It's just that I'm too private a person to do that. Lee knows how I feel.

The only thing that's been an issue is my art work. I have a talent for sculpting and painting. I sculpt realistic heads and torsos, and paint abstracts. I've sold a couple of things to an art dealer in Texas, but Lee really doesn't want me to sell anything. He wants to keep it all. So my sculptures are all out in the entrance hall. But my paintings . . . well, there is only so much wall space. I'd have to say I'm half and half—half inside the hall closet, half out.

And that's okay with me. ■

Great Tuna Casserole—With a Tangy New Sauce!

PAYDAY

TUNA CASSEROLE WITH MUSTARD SAUCE

3 eggs
2 cans (6½- to 7-oz. size) tuna, drained and flaked
Grated peel and juice from ½ fresh lemon
1 can (10¾ ozs.) condensed cream of potato soup, undiluted
1½ cups soft bread crumbs (enriched white, rye or whole wheat)
½ cup finely chopped celery
⅓ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup milk
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
Lemon slices and parsley
Mustard Sauce (see recipe below)

Fragrant Tuna Casserole With Mustard Sauce owes its piquant flavor to the generous use of fresh lemon. It's sure to be a family favorite.

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Lightly oil a 1½-qt. casserole.
2. In large bowl, beat eggs well. Add tuna, lemon peel and juice, potato soup, bread crumbs, celery, onion, parsley, milk and pepper.
3. Turn mixture into prepared pan and bake for 50 to 60 minutes until mixture puffs up somewhat and surface is crusty. Garnish with lemon slices and parsley and serve with Mustard Sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings

Mustard Sauce

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 cup hot water
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
Grated peel and juice from ½ fresh lemon
½ cup mayonnaise

1. In saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Add flour, salt and pepper, stirring until blended.
2. Gradually add water and mustard, stirring until thickened (about 4 to 5 minutes). Add lemon peel and juice.
3. Remove from heat, blend in mayonnaise with wire whisk. Makes about 1⅓ cups

CARROT CABBAGE SLAW

½ cup shredded green pepper
2 cups shredded carrot
2 cups shredded cabbage
¼ cup finely chopped onion or green onion
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
⅓ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon cider vinegar

1. In large bowl, combine green pepper, carrot, cabbage, onion and parsley.
2. In measuring cup, combine salt, pepper, mayonnaise and vinegar. Beat with wire whisk until smooth. Pour over vegetables and toss.
3. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 6 servings

What's Smart: Use canned tuna—that reliable pantry staple—along with bread crumbs, soup and lemon to make a hearty casserole. The zesty sauce, too, gets some of its bite from fresh lemon. The cost of Tuna Casserole with Mustard Sauce: $1.83 or 31 cents per serving.

WINDOWS AND WALLS

What to Do About Them

Walls. There they are, four of them, in every room.

You can paint them; panel them; cover them with fabric or wallpaper. (Actually "wallpaper" is somewhat of a misnomer, because the majority of "papers" today are not paper, they're vinyl—and, consequently, they're more practical for current lifestyles.)

Vinyls are washable and strippable. You can't take them with you when you move, but you can cover your walls with a pretty pattern and strip it off when you move out, leaving walls as they were when you moved in.

Most people think wallcoverings are appropriate only for bedrooms, children's rooms, kitchens, baths, stairwells and dens. People use them infrequently in dining rooms and even less frequently in the living room—the most "public" room, which should have the most eye appeal.

It used to be that wallcoverings were everywhere. You, or your parents, probably grew up in a living room that had a pattern of cabbage roses climbing all four of its walls and in a bedroom that had a smaller floral motif. The natural reaction to "too much" was the "too little" of the bland, one-color wall—apple green in the 1950's, beige or white in the 60's. In the 70's, walls are still fairly neutral.

If this is where your decorating is "at," it's time to rethink, to consider the pleasure that

A fireplace wall is a good focal point around which to group furniture. If your living room hasn't got one, here's a perfect way to get the same decorating results: Create a grouping of your favorite objects on and above a console shelf. When you place your upholstered pieces, they naturally form a conversation area. The room was designed by Ann Heller. Vinyl wallcoverings and matching cotton fabric, by J. Josephson. Loveseats, by State Pavilion. Clock, by Howard Miller.

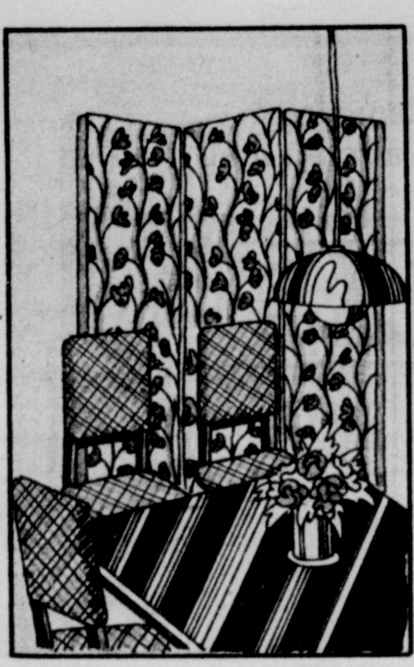
color and pattern can contribute to a room's scheme.

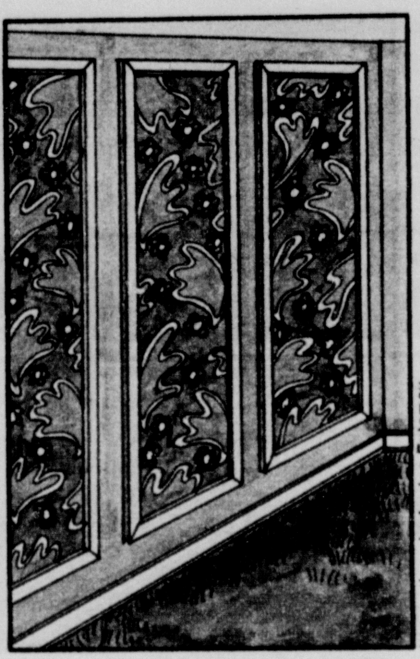
Another "if" to keep in mind: If you're fearful that you'll tire of a pattern after living with it for a while, consider that vinyl wallcoverings today are relatively inexpensive and that you can replace them as easily as you can slipcover a sofa.

There are lots of things that wallcoverings can do—and that you can do with them. Some are obvious, others creative. Examples of the obvious are alternate uses of stripes to heighten or lengthen a room. (You hang stripes vertically to add height, "railroad" them—that is, hang them horizontally—to add length.)

What if you want to add height without stripes? Perhaps you want to use a floral pattern, instead. One way is to paper within a foot of the ceiling, install a molding and watch the remaining 12 inches give the illusion of a taller ceiling.



Use a screen to separate a dining "L" from the living room. Cover it in color coordinates of plaid on one side and a floral on the other.



A clever idea for giving a long, solid-colored wall a decorator touch: add panels of wallpaper, then frame with ready-to-buy molding.

Illustrations by Loring Eutemey

Want to separate a dining foyer or "L" from the living room? You can do this by using a screen to partition off the two areas. An attractive decorating idea you might try: Cover one side of the screen's two or three panels with a plaid wallpaper design, the other with a floral (A wealth of color-coordinating patterns are available these days.) to create an architectural divider that's an add-on, not a built-in. If the plaid is on the dining side, use its matching fabric on living-room lounge chairs or, reversing the sequence, pick up the living-room pattern on dining chairs.

When do you use one pattern throughout a room? According to interior designer Ann Heller, the "all-over" concept works best in a bathroom or bedroom.

"It's sometimes difficult to pull a bedroom together," Mrs. Heller observes. "You buy a bedspread in one department, and often you have to go elsewhere for draperies. Matching bedspread and draperies to walls makes a room cozy, and with coordinates from the same company, you know they'll match."

As for the bathroom, a sensational wallcovering—"maybe a color or pattern so flamboyant you'd not think of using it elsewhere," Mrs. Heller suggests—offers the quickest, least expensive way to do over a room where you can't change the basics.

Keep a youngster's room (above, right) "pulled together" with a papered ceiling, painting the room the background color of the wallpaper.

"Fixtures are fixed," says Mrs. Heller. "And, very often, so is flooring. In an old house you begin to hate it. So you simply work around it," she explains.

Here are more of Mrs. Heller's ideas for creating decorative and/or architectural changes:

- Lower a ceiling by papering it and painting the walls to match the paper's background color. (Mrs. Heller suggests doing this in a child's room, just to keep it neat-looking, especially if the youngster "plasters" the walls with pictures of friends and favorite rock stars!)
- Break up a long solid-colored wall by adding vertical panels of wallcovering framed with decorative molding.
- Create a focal point by papering only one wall or—as Mrs. Heller did in our cover picture—by papering one wall in a floral and the remaining walls in a coordinating geometric.
- If a wall is broken up by too many windows or doors, camouflage the fact by carrying one pattern the length of the wall. Paper the doors and use a matching fabric for curtains or draperies. A small print, plaid or check, is more effective in this instance than a large, dramatic design, Mrs. Heller advises, because it calls less attention to architectural imperfections.

- Add a touch of the traditional to a plain pipe-rack room by installing a carved wood molding to create a dado or chair rail. Use a plaid or a stripe below it, a coordinating floral above. Or if the floral is the "heavier" pattern, reverse the two.
- Generally speaking, in using a single pattern, use a large pattern in a large room, a small one in a small room—unless, of course, you want the large space to appear larger or the small space to appear smaller. "Regardless of a room's dimensions, you can combine large and small patterns, depending upon placement," Mrs. Heller observes. "But if you use a minute geometric throughout a large room, you often get a blurry effect—all you see is color, not pattern. So you're better off using just an interesting-looking textured solid."

Mrs. Heller also offers some shopping suggestions.

- When you select a wallcovering, look at it in daylight as well as lamplight. Colors tend to change in different light.
- If you're coordinating wallcovering with an existing fabric, take along a swatch of the fabric to check against sample books.
- Study the photographs in sample books to determine a wallcovering's scale and to check the repeat (the number of inches a pattern occupies before repeating itself). This way, you can determine whether or not the floral you fancy for the bedroom will overpower it or whether the geometric you like for the living room will lose itself in so large a space.
- If you have a preconceived notion of the type of pattern you want, ask your dealer to recommend the books you should study. Books, besides indicating scale, often provide you with decorating ideas—ways to use wallcoverings that are more interesting than the "four walls, one-pattern" approach.
- Measure carefully before you place an order. Even the most expensive wallcoverings vary in color from run to run, and if you have to go back for more, it's unlikely that your second order will be from the same run. Your dealer will help estimate your needs. He will also advise you on the proper adhesive to use if yours is to be a do-it-yourself installation (more than 50 percent are today).

Trends? Don't worry about them, Mrs. Heller advises. What's in good taste today will be tasteful tomorrow. Many of today's most handsome wallcoverings are traditional designs recolored for contemporary interiors.

Patterns run the gamut from Colonial to contemporary; from country chintz to Art Deco; from herbs and birds for the kitchen and shells for the bath to elegant moirés, grass cloths and damasks for more formal rooms. In scale, they run from petite geometrics to giant graphics; in surfaces, from shiny Mylar and slick patents to cork, pebble and woodgrains.

You've got lots to pick and choose from—as backgrounds for colorful living!

Ways to Wake Up Your Windows

A paradox in decorating today is that while our society is reaching new levels of standardization and mechanization, we are simultaneously creating an imaginative, highly personal approach to living. Style is no longer something to be followed blindly but something to be created on one's own terms. This is apparent in how we dress and in how we decorate our homes.

An outstanding feature of any room is its windows—which open up all sorts of possibilities for dramatic innovations in room décor. One of the more important trends occurring in window treatments today is that heavily swathed, elaborate "putting-on-the-dog" looks are out . . . trim, casual lines and color are in.

READ ABOUT THE NUTRITIONAL FOOD PREPARATION BREAKTHROUGH THAT CAN END YOUR SEARCH FOR THE PERFECT DIET:

Eat all your favorite foods—yet lose weight every day without dieting! Revolutionary DIET-GRILL takes inches off your waist —adds years to your life!

Reverses to a smooth griddle for low-calorie cooking of eggs, pancakes and French toast!

Deep finger grooves allow up to 80% of the fat to drain harmlessly away!

by Laurence Paulsen, Nutritional Science Writer

Let's talk sense about diets! There are literally hundreds of products on the market making fantastic claims about helping you lose weight. Some say they can "melt the pounds away" with a magic pill. Others have even gone so far as to assert that they'll make you "lose weight while you sleep". I'd like to move away from these pie-in-the-sky weight-loss claims and tell you some blunt, straight, honest facts about human nutrition—and about one of the most sensible and healthy weight-loss systems I've ever come across.

THE MOST COMMON CAUSE OF OVERWEIGHT—

Once you sift through all the claims and theories about dieting, you come to one fact that's impossible to get away from . . . fat causes overweight! Whatever diet fad you choose, it will most likely try to get you to do one basic thing—cut down on your fat intake! Most diets try to get you to do this by making you give up all of the foods that help to make life fun. Yet the heart of the problem is still simply this: cut down on your fat intake and you'll lose weight!

HOW TO CUT FAT FROM YOUR DIET AT ONCE! WITHOUT DIETING! WITHOUT GIVING UP THE FOODS YOU LOVE!

As noted earlier, you can cut down on fats by subjecting yourself to "starvation" and self-denial diets. But there is a far easier way! And that's simply by eliminating the fat from the food you eat. Do that and you can eat your favorite foods and still lose weight.

Meats like pork chops, prime steaks, bacon, ham, lamb chops, hamburgers, meat loaves and spare ribs contribute most of the fat to our diets. Yet by cooking these meats on the revolutionary DIET GRILL shown on this page, you can cut as much as 80% of the fat from them! There will be just enough fat left to help stabilize your blood sugar level (this is one of the few beneficial effects of a small amount of fat in our diets).

TRY THE REVOLUTIONARY DIET GRILL NATURAL WEIGHT-LOSS SYSTEM ENTIRELY AT OUR EXPENSE—

The revolutionary DIET GRILL pictured on this page is the heart of the NATURAL WEIGHT-LOSS SYSTEM. Made of heavy cast aluminum with deeply carved finger grooves, it cooks meat above the heat—allowing as much as 80% of the fat to drain harmlessly away! And its super-size (10%" square) lets you cook family-size meals. Turn it over and it becomes a smooth griddle that saves even more calories by letting you cook eggs, pancakes, French toast and hash browns with practically no oil. And stove-top use saves heat.

The DIET GRILL NATURAL WEIGHT-LOSS SYSTEM is healthy because the less fat the less cholesterol, which is the leading cause of heart disease. You can add years to your life while taking inches off your waist. And you lose weight naturally, without drugs that can ruin your health—without dangerous Diuretic pills that can cause serious imbalance in your body.

Sunset House would like you to try this NATURAL WEIGHT-LOSS SYSTEM entirely at our expense. It includes the book "Natural Fat-Free Weight Loss" which tells you about DIET GRILL and even has special menus built around cooking with the revolutionary DIET GRILL. Total cost is only $7.99. We'd like you to use it—actually cook delicious meals with it—actually see the harmful fat drain out of your foods and out of your diet! If you're not completely happy, just return the DIET GRILL for a full refund. You'll have tried the system entirely at our expense.

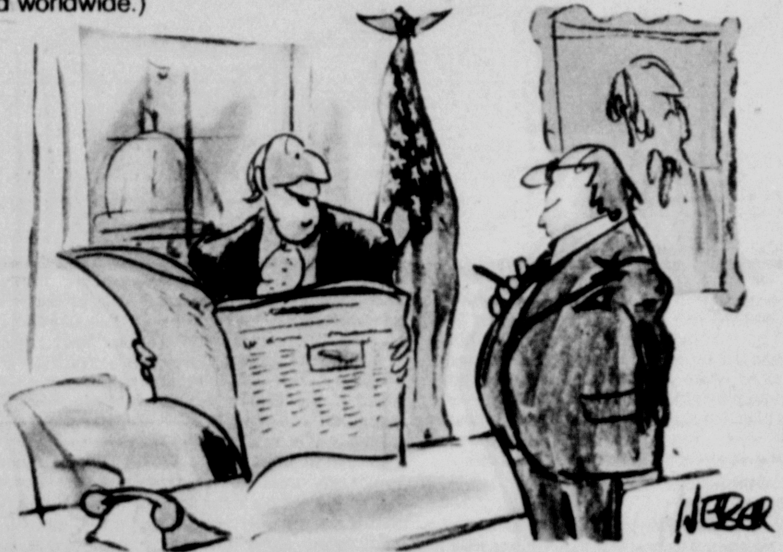
Political pollution. With Congressional election campaigns raging hot and heavy across America, we've noticed that some candidates continue to play politics with energy issues. In the interest of cleaning up some of this political pollution, we hereby publish a "Voters' Guide to the Political Cheap Shot."

The "dollar-a-gallon" ploy. Candidates using this one tell the voters that only their heroic efforts have kept gasoline prices from reaching a buck at the pump. Those "efforts" consist largely of the retention of price controls only for petroleum and some petroleum products, including gasoline. But the fact is, many brands of gasoline are selling for under their legal ceilings, because of competition in the marketplace. Even if all controls were lifted, and all the crude oil used in this country climbed to the price of imported oil, a gallon of gasoline at the pump would still cost substantially less than a dollar. Which makes this whole approach nothing but a cheap shot.

The "obscene profits" bit. Below-the-belt campaigners charge the oil companies with assorted rip-offs, resulting in huge windfalls. But the numbers tell a different story: In 1975, for example, Mobil's rate of return on shareholders' equity was 12.3 percent—the average for all U.S. manufacturing. (According to Forbes magazine, Mobil ranks only 327th in return on equity among major U.S. corporations. Our profit in the first half of 1976 was 1.4 cents on every gallon of petroleum sold worldwide.)



"IT'S DAYS LIKE THIS I'M THANKFUL FOR A FREE PRESS. I'M THE LEAD STORY."

The "keep it vague" crowd. These campaigners simply run against oil company "conspiracies" and claim the industry constitutes a "monopoly." But they never get specific, doubtlessly because the facts give lie to their claims. How can 8,000 oil and gas producers, 130 refiners and 15,000 wholesale marketers constitute a "monopoly"? And can you imagine so many companies, with their thousands of employees, privy to any "conspiracy"? Besides, laws against monopoly and conspiracy are vigorously enforced. So let the voter beware of broad charges, lacking in substance. Almost always, these are cheap shots.

The good-guy checklist. How about the other side of the coin? How can you tell if your candidate is an energy good guy? The best way is to ask. Where does the candidate stand on the decontrol of natural gas, as an incentive to greater production? On more offshore drilling to make America less dependent on foreign sources? On putting more of our country's coal resources to work?

Good questions deserve good answers. And the energy good guys (or gals) won't resort to political cheap shots.

AT HOME

Continued

Since decorating is very personal, you need to decide what you want to achieve early in the development of a room. This will be based on your style of living, on the character of your home, on the furniture you already own. Do you like formal things such as brocades, rich carpets and crystal chandeliers or informal cotton prints and tweeds? Do you want a period room or a contemporary one? The mood you choose will help determine the type of window treatment you use—as well as everything else you select for the room. Both shades and curtains can help style your room and create the special effect or mood you're striving for.

Sophisticated dining (above) with a sweeping view. At the window are Levolor's slim aluminum blinds, punctuated by reed-like tailored draperies.

Fabric-laminated shades (left), with scalloped hems, grace the windows in a young girl's room. Curtains sport tiebacks caught up in Directoire style.

Shades or Blinds? The Difference Makes the Décor

Window shades in cloth or vinyl, whether custom-made or from stock, have never looked smarter nor been produced in greater colors or textures. They make delightful teammates with shutters, swags, valances and curtains; or they can stand alone, most strikingly, in contemporary rooms.

Shades are particularly important in these energy-saving days, too. Controlled tests show that they save up to 8 percent on the fuel dollar in winter and 21 percent in summer!

You might consider woven wood blinds, which also are becoming popular for casual room settings, as are thin-lined Venetians. Both come in a choice of bright and low-key colors. The matchstick blind—in natural or tortoise shell—has a great following, too.

Shade-Cloth vertical blinds work beautifully with sliding glass doors and look smart on regular windows as well. When hung from the ceiling, they create an illusion of height, as indicated in the bedroom illustration on the cover page of our "At Home" section.

Curtains for Colorful Window Dressing

If you're curtain-oriented, there's news for you, too. Tiebacks are coming back! The sassiest ones are caught up high, in French Directoire fashion. Matching window shades with scalloped hems echo the classic mood.

Homemakers skilled in using the sewing machine are stitching up pretty patterned sheets to make curtains. Sheets can be used also to sew comforters and dust ruffles.

Here are some tricks of the decorating trade to help you plan:

- Ceiling-high installation of curtains, shades or blinds creates a long, clean line and makes both the ceiling and window seem taller. Also a set of windows varying in height can be easily unified in this way.
- Wide windows can be treated as a single unit or divided into sections. A series of shades can create a partitioned effect; while one wide element across a picture window or a shallow bay window unifies the area.
- Sliding glass doors are usually aluminum-framed, and it is best to hang your curtain or shade beyond the doorframe itself. Vertical blinds are the latest way to treat the sliding door, because the blinds fold back neatly when you want to use the terrace.
- A too-narrow window can be made to look wider by setting your curtains well outside the window frame to expose as much glass area as possible. Then use a shade or narrow-slat Venetian blind over the glass so that it can be raised to let in plenty of light.
- The small window and the awkwardly placed window benefit most from being dramatized within the frame. Here's an eye catcher! Line the jambs of the window with mirrors. Then, whatever you put inside the frame will be beautifully reflected.

That's the news—slimmed-down, less fussy window dressing is less "paneful," more with it. Just choose the one that will do most for your window, the room it flatters, and of course, your budget! FW

Talking 'Patty Prayer' Doll

now I lay me down to sleep...

Kneels and says her bedtime prayer!

Nothing to wind up—no string to pull.
Whenever you want her to she says

"Now I lay me down to sleep
I pray Thee Lord my soul to keep Guide me safely through the night
Wake me with the morning light.
God bless Mommy . . . and Daddy, and make me a good girl. Amen."

Makes a beautiful gift!

Just press her tummy and Patty recites the entire children's bedtime prayer in her precious childlike voice. Almost 20 inches tall, she's soft and lovable and dressed in a silken nylon nightie. Under the nightie her body and arms are cloth covered foam. Hands and head are soft washable vinyl—her beautiful lifelike hair can be combed and styled. Patty's delightful voice comes from a miniature record player in her tummy. Open the zipper on her back to turn the record over and she sings "Brother John"! Operates on a single penlight battery (included). Money back refund if you (and your favorite little girl) are not perfectly delighted.

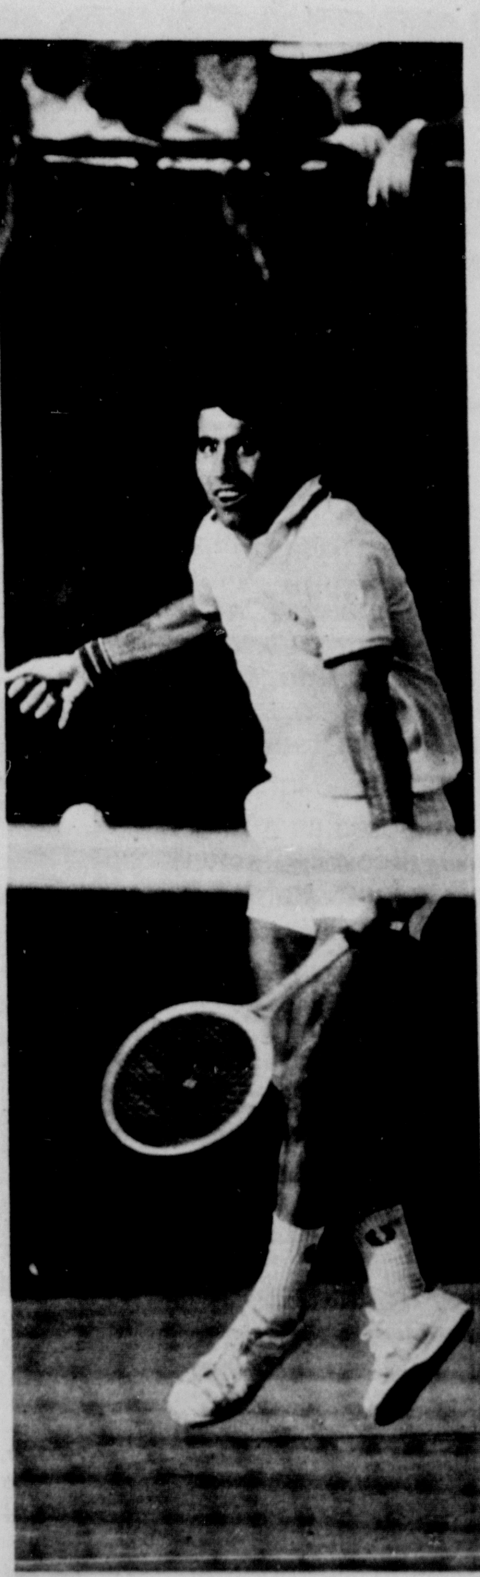
MANUEL ORANTES

A Tennis King Without a "Killer Instinct"



Kevin Fitzgerald/Sport

Latins have a reputation for gallantry, and no Latin fits this role better than Manuel Orantes, the 1975 U.S. Open tennis champion. A boyish-looking, cheerful left-hander from Barcelona, Spain, Orantes never argues with officials if a close call goes against him, and he'll even hit a ball out on purpose if he feels his opponent has been wronged on a previous call. Orantes has also been known to stop playing and applaud an opponent for making a particularly good shot. He finished first in the 1975 U.S. Open tourney by whipping Jimmy Connors in the final round. . . . The tables were turned this year. Orantes made it to the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open, but lost to Bjorn Borg. Borg, in turn, was defeated by Connors, the '76 champ. Orantes first became a ball boy at the Royal Tennis Club in Barcelona. His father, who worked in an optician's shop, couldn't pay for professional coaching, so the club members decided to act as his "angels." Orantes was soon winning junior championships and at the age of 18 became the youngest player ever picked for the Spanish Davis Cup team. . . . Although he gave a good account of himself on the tournament circuit, he was unable to win major tournaments. Critics blamed this on his lack of a "killer instinct." Orantes, however, felt the real trouble was his back, which became stiff and painful during long matches. So he stopped playing tennis for awhile to undergo treatment, which included special exercises every night. Orantes's game began improving markedly. He also credits the boost in his tennis career to his marriage last year. "I used to be very homesick when I traveled, but I'm not any more because my wife Virginia is always with me," he says. "She also keeps after me when she feels I am not doing my best, and this is good for my game."

Our Government Won't Accept Claims Made By Doctors, Scientists & Medical Agents About

100% PURE NATURAL GINSENG

Why Do Millions Of Chinese, Russians, And Europeans Praise It?

Ginseng has been whispered about, talked about, written about, tested, experimented with, prescribed, sold, and taken for more than 5,000 years. Was it the first wonder drug? Consider these facts:

The Chinese Book of Drugs, written almost a century before the birth of Christ, advised doctors to prescribe Ginseng for a tranquilizing effect on the brain, to soothe nervous irritation, to help concentration, to improve the memory, and to lengthen the life span. In fact, in Ancient China, when every medicine failed to work, the doctor prescribed Ginseng.

Kan-Jin, personal physician to the great Buddha of Nara, gave Ginseng to his patients to relieve tension and restore serenity. It was advised that Ginseng should be used to overcome fatigue.

In the Thirteenth Century, Marco Polo brought Ginseng back from China and introduced it to the Western world. Jesuit missionaries sent back reports of all the various illnesses for which Ginseng was being prescribed in Fifteenth Century Japan, as a guide for Spanish and Portuguese doctors. Today, more people are studying, researching, prescribing, and taking Ginseng.

Russian doctors now supply Ginseng to their Olympic athletes and their cosmonauts, to help combat fatigue and relieve the symptoms of stress.

In Switzerland, a country famous for its work in prolonging human life, 70 percent of the doctors report that they are prescribing Ginseng to their patients. Chinese soldiers are being issued Ginseng on a regular monthly basis to guard them against shock when injured and before reaching a hospital.

In 1974, the first International Ginseng Symposium was held in Korea. Scientists from more than a score of countries, exchanged the latest information on this "original wonder drug", as they called it.

Last April, when the Symposium on Gerontology was held in Lugano, Switzerland, research papers on Ginseng were presented by five different countries.

Through the centuries, Ginseng was credited with relieving more symptoms than perhaps any other natural drug. The list included, but was not limited to: heart palpitations, rheumatic pains, aching joints, tiredness, tension, strain, malaise, poor circulation, tremors, heartburn, nervousness, anxiety, diarrhea, insomnia, lassitude, dullness, stress, impotence, loss of memory, sciatica, neuritis, and neuralgia.

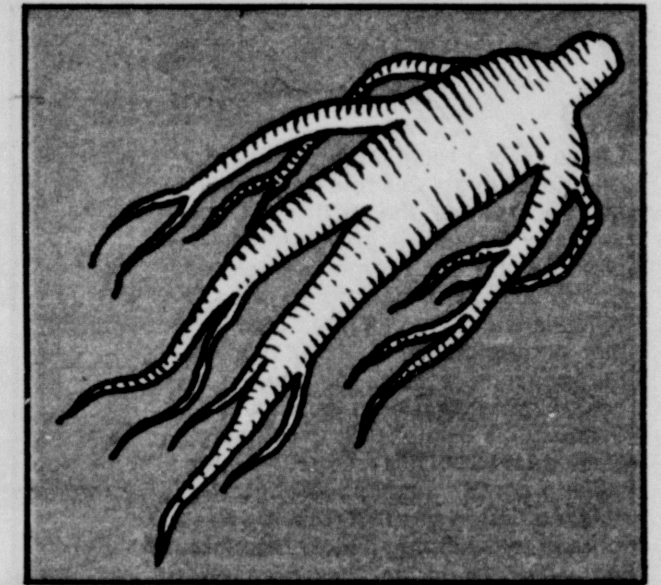
Can all the scientific evidence be ignored?

Ginseng has been administered as a powder, a tea, a tincture with alcohol, a salve, an elixir, a tonic, a capsule, and a tablet.

It took hundreds of years for thousands of drugs and treatment techniques to be approved and accepted. Acupuncture was not permitted in the United States until the 1970's. Do you know it took 38 years for vitamins to win acceptance since their discovery in 1913? Will it be Ginseng's turn, next? Perhaps. After all, we don't usually stay too far behind the rest of the world for very long. In the last Olympics, when the athletes of every country had their stamina and endurance pushed to new limits, Ginseng was supplied to Russian athletes as a natural way to increase strength and stamina.

More articles have been written about Ginseng than any other herb! It's one of the hottest products in America today — millions are going out of their way to find original Ginseng. One person tells another about what it does! Called "The all-healing root of man", Chinese Emperors spent as much as $400 an ounce on this Oriental wonder.

Should you try Ginseng? Well, that is up to you. From all we have learned and read and studied, if you are going to try Ginseng, for whatever reason you may have, it would be better to buy only 100% pure natural Ginseng in easy-to-take tablet form. That's the only kind we sell.



Please note this: with the increasing demand for Ginseng all over the world, the supply of the natural root takes five to seven years to mature — so get your supply now.

Don't you think it's about time you found out what Ginseng will do for you . . . as so many millions have done?

You'll never know until you try it. Fill out the handy coupon below and mail it today. It only costs you 20¢ a day for the thirty day supply, virtually 13¢ a day for the sixty day supply. Money cheerfully refunded if you aren't delighted.

Woman with arthritis increases grip strength with Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub

PHILADELPHIA—"My grip strength improved," said Sara Kait. A spritely 75 year old nursing home resident, Miss Kait had taken part in tests conducted by Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub and Extra Strength Lotion. First an instrument was used to measure grip strength. Then Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub was applied for temporary relief of minor pain and to improve mobility. Later, when tested again, the grip strength of most of those tested had significantly improved. "It certainly works," said Miss Kait.

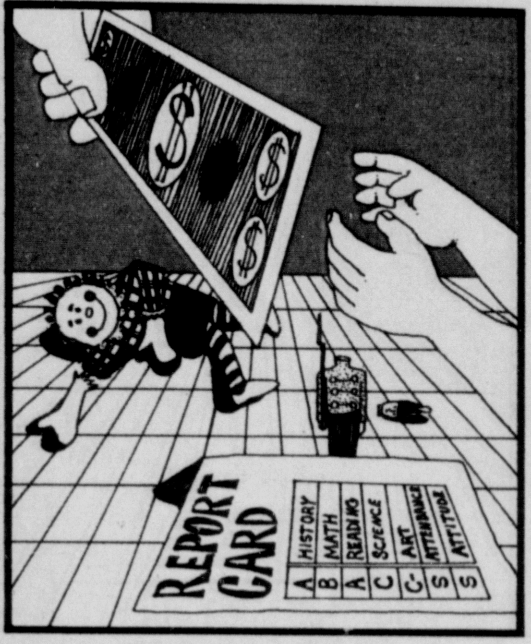
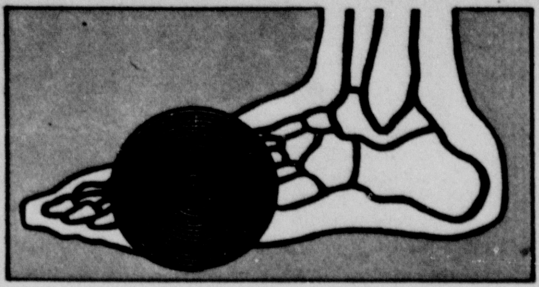
MISTAKES PARENTS MAKE ABOUT CHILDREN'S ALLOWANCES



Recently a group of parents was agonizing over the "problem" of children's allowances. One father finally said, "We're going to give them whatever they need, anyway, so what difference will rules make?" Child psychologists believe, however, that some of the conditions under which a youngster gets his or her allowance are important. For example, some parents add a bonus to the allowance when a child gets a good report card and withhold all or part of it if the youngster does something to displease them. Children raised on the "reward and punishment" system subconsciously learn that money can be used as a device to bribe a person, to goad him or to penalize him. Even more unfortunate is the implicit message that money is a medium of "ethical exchange" in which cash replaces personal standards of values or ethics. A second error parents make regarding allowances is criticizing the way children spend their money. For example, one parent has a rule that if his child buys a toy and it breaks within a week, the cost of the toy is deducted from next-week's allowance. The theory is that the youngster will learn to look for good value when he buys. But experts say these kinds of controls destroy the whole learning process of receiving allowances. "It is important to allow a child to make mistakes with his own money," points out child psychologist E. Nora Ryan. A parent may give advice or set a good example of wise buying, but to criticize a youngster's errors constantly will either make him secretive about what he does with his money or make him feel incompetent about handling it. Caution: Conversely, the doting parent who gives extra money to make up for what the youngster wasted on a poor purchase is not preparing the child for the realities of adulthood. —By Norman Lobsenz

My Feet Were Killing Me...Until I Discovered the Miracle of Hamburg!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sightseeing my feet were killing me.



Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Elysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Featherspring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Hamburg with my own countrymen.

Today thousands of Americans of all ages—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

© Featherspring International Corp. 1976

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet. Flexible Feathersprings will bring you guaranteed relief with every step you take.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Hamburg can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

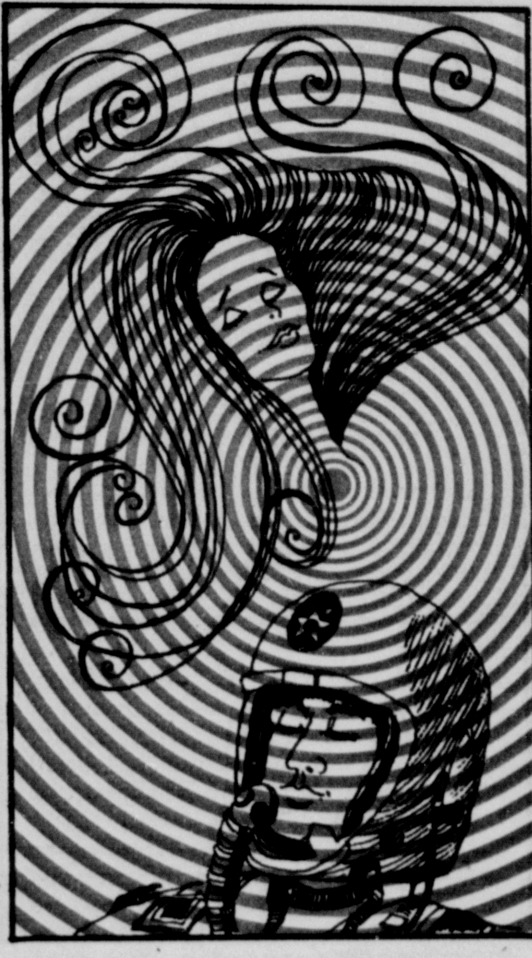
PEOPLE AND YOU

HOW WOULD YOU REACT TO NEAR-DEATH?



People who've been in near-fatal car accidents, near-drownings, a near-disaster of any kind have come back with surprising tales. A 21-year-old girl, whose car was spinning toward a wall, remembers entering "a calm dreamlike state with a feeling of being at peace with everything." A doctor, who almost drowned, says, "Once I realized I couldn't rescue myself, an indescribable calmness came over me." A 24-year-old mountain climber, recalling the time he clung to a spot above a 2,000-foot drop, says "My thoughts speeded up; time slowed down. I developed an understanding of death as something beautiful." A psychiatrist and clinical psychologist have interviewed 114 people who've experienced near-death. These researchers discovered that as long as people struggled to rescue themselves, they felt anger. As soon as they believed their efforts were hopeless and they resigned themselves to dying, they experienced calm, pleasurable emotions. A jet pilot, endangered in an abortive takeoff in Vietnam, found this peace also gave him a sense of complete control. In that temporary, dreamlike state, he was suddenly capable of doing what was needed to make an escape. The experts believe the evidence indicates that when people are faced with sudden death, they find the strength to cope and accept it serenely.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

CINDERELLA ASKS FOR A RAIN CHECK

She'd rather be a movie "queen"

A Lebanese beauty contest winner could have said "yes" to a proposal of marriage by a wealthy Arab prince and lived the rest of her life in luxury. But Suhaila Farhat wants to be a movie queen, and not all the oil in Kuwait can change her mind. The 22-year-old beauty left her prince in Kuwait, the richest country in the world, to seek her own fame and success in the land of Hollywood. And while she struggles for stardom (She has appeared in three movies in the two years she has been in Hollywood.), the prince waits patiently for her return as his fertile oil lands make him wealthier every day. "I must live for myself," Suhaila declares. "I'd much rather strive for success than be a princess. I want a movie career. If I accomplish this, as far as I'm concerned, I will have everything. Then it is possible that I will return to the prince." Meanwhile, the prince tries to win her back with frequent telephone calls, expensive gifts and promises of a Cinderella life. But Suhaila is determined. "My father is furious at me," she says, "and he won't help me with money—after all, I had turned down the prince. When you go against the wishes of everybody—parents and fiancé —it is not easy. But knowing I can stand on my own two feet is very rewarding. I have no regrets. The prince says I am the only one he loves. He telephones me and always asks, 'Are you a success yet?' And I reply, 'No, but I'm working on it.' He knows that this is something I must do. And he promises he will wait for me."

Facts about the Finicky One: Among the many letters to celebrities received at FAMILY WEEKLY offices each week, are sacks addressed to Morris the Cat. Morris can't write, so we have his royal nod to speak on his behalf. He's annoyed by the same questions asked time and time again and, once and for all, wants to put the record straight. For those wanting to know "Do you live a normal cat life?" the answer is "Certainly. During the day, I have the run of the place where my trainer, Bob Martwick, works. At night, I'm in Bob's apartment. Cozy beds aren't for me. I like corners, also the area under a desk. After all, I'm a cat, not a prince." In response to "Do you know who your parents are?" Morris gets a little misty-eyed. He has no idea. There have been innumerable claims, but all check out as false. As to Morris's favorite food, it's tuna. He can't get enough of it. His marital status is of countrywide concern. He is a bachelor and spurns the ladies. But he wasn't always that way. According to Mary Daniels, author of Morris: An Intimate Biography, that's how Morris got hauled into the animal shelter where he was discovered; a result of an annoyed lady who kept complaining that Morris was forever romancing her cat.

THE YOUNGEST MAYOR IN THE U.S.

Serving a town without a generation gap

Keep your eye on 21-year-old Jimmy Chapman, who can't go any higher in his hometown government because he's already the No.-1 man. He's the mayor. And there is no generation gap in Susanville, Calif., a town of 7,200 people. The mayor's greatest boosters are the senior citizens of the town. "They are wonderful," says the mayor. "It's just like having dozens of grandparents." Chapman, who's been Susanville's mayor since March of this year, won the support of the older residents by displaying a keen awareness of their problems. He is also concerned with the development of steam-energy resources to boost the area's waning economy. The young mayor is also "proud of making every cent of the $1.5 million budget count." The city employees include 10 firemen and 10 policemen. "I have proved myself to the doubting Thomases," Chapman said, "and many of the citizens are proud to have such a young mayor." The aggressive Democrat has sandwiched his public service between a full-time position as a graphic artist and studies at California State in Chico—where he graduated in May with a degree in public administration. He has already set his sights higher and will be running in November for a seat on the Board of Supervisors. And beyond that? "Well, if I don't get elected to a position in public service of some sort, I don't know what I'll do. That's where I know I can do the most good," the mayor said.

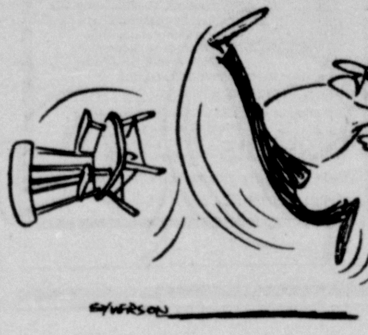
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

By Richard Armour



FALL GUY

Let's say I bump my head against
A ledge or opened door.
I'll not quote here the things I've said,
Including oaths I swore.

Or maybe what I did was trip
Upon a step or boulder
And cut my face or sprain a wrist
Or bruise a knee or shoulder.

Do I denounce my clumsiness?
Am I at me incensed?
No, I, as maybe you have done,
Blame what I fell against.

We bought our daughter a longer extension cord for her phone. She needs to get outdoors more. —Herm Albright

While an Indian film was showing recently at a movie theater in New York City, two Indians were employed to stand in front of the theater for advertising purposes. Accosting one of them, an inquisitive woman asked:

"You are a real Indian, aren't you?"

"Yes, madam," was the courteous reply.

"How do you like our city?" she asked.

"Fine, madam. How do you like our country?"
